Jessie embryo brings $21,000

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO
LANCASTER — Bidding stopped at $21,000, Thursday, for an unborn embryo, the top-selling consignment of the Spring Promise and Garden Spot Holstein Sale, here at the Guernsey Barn.

Willow Street breeder, Mowery Frey purchased the embryo out of Lime Hollow Elevation Jessie, one of the few Holsteins to write a six-generation Excellent pedigree. Consigned by Siam Holstein Partners II of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, the embryo is sired by Glendell or Valiant and due this summer. Frey has his choice of sire and sex of the embryo.

The Excellent 2E dam, and Elevation daughter out of an Irvington Pride Admiral, also completes eight generations of 20,000 pounds cows. The Jessie cow boasts a top record of 25,510 pounds of milk and 1,017 pounds of fat as a 5-year-old.

Thursday's sale, managed by R. Austin Backus, Inc. of Mexico, N.Y., marked the 11th Spring Promise Sale and the 41st Garden Spot Sale. According to Backus spokesman Peter DeBlock, Jr., the final tally showed a gross of $163,600 and averaged $2,200 on 81 head.

"We're very pleased and thought it was a good sale," DeBlock reported.

The top-selling live animal brought $12,200. Arie Breedyk of Chino, Calif. purchased the open heifer, consigned by Bernice Syndicate and Marlu Farm of (Turn to Page A22)

Dairy Cooperative Federation, Inc. and four other milk dealers with alleged co-conspiracy to restrict where former Dellwood Foods shippers would be able to sell their milk, said Abrams' staff member Linda Gargulo.

In addition to NEDCO, New York State is suing Glen and Mohawk Milk Association, Queensboro Farm Products, Inc., Tuscan Dairy Farms, Inc. and Oneida-Madison Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc. for $5.4 million dollars according to NEDCO spokesman Calvin Cobb.

"NEDCO vehemently denies the allegations of the conspiracy," said Calvin Cobb. A recent NEDCO report claimed "there is no factual basis for a complaint against NEDCO or its key executives."

In January 1982, NEDCO, a cooperative federation with 64 member cooperatives, acquired the Fraser, N.Y. manufacturing plant from Dellwood Foods, Inc.

NEDCO is required, by agreement with its cooperative members, to purchase all its milk requirements from those members. To secure membership from

Adams District honors farmers

BY SHEILA MILLER

YORK SPRINGS — Two Adams County farmers were honored here Thursday evening as the Adams County Conservation District presented its Outstanding Conservationists awards during the 35th annual banquet.

Dairyman Edwin Shearer of R2 Dillsburg was recognized for his conservation efforts for 1981, while Carl Keller of R3 Gettysburg was honored for his long-term achievements in conservation farming.

Shearer and his wife Judy have only been in the farming business for the past 4 years. They moved to their Adams County 75-acre farm in 1978 from Harrisonburg, Virginia.

The Shearers, who describe themselves as "city kids", attribute their success in farming to the guidance and assistance they received from federal agencies like the Farmers Home Administration, the Soil Conservation Service, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and to "a lot of good friends who held our hands."

"When we scraped our knees getting started in farming with no experience, they were quick to put a Band-Aid on our hurts," said Shearer.

During their four-year career in the field of agriculture, the Shearers have built a registered herd of Holstein cattle that now numbers 50 head. Their 45-cow milking string pumped out an average of 16,000 pounds this year. This statistic is down from their rolling herd average of two-years-ago.

"We had a production average of over 18,000 pounds in our second year of dairying, but then the drought hit us. We're only now beginning to get back up," admitted Shearer. "It's a lot easier dropping off than building production up again."

With the help of FmHA, SCS, and ASCS, Shearer entered in a long-term cost share agreement for his conservation work. Coping with the erosion problems on the wet, erosion-prone soils required a major construction effort in a short time period.

Along with contour strips, which the Shearers staked off on the entire 70 acres of cropland, the erosion problems in the fields were brought under control with the construction of 3 diversions, 1 dry dam, and 1 drop box to catch water exiting the diversions. The wet

Off the Sounding Board

By Sheila Miller, Editor

"Of, for, and by farmers?"

When U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block came out with his recent soil and water conservation survey and invited farmers throughout the nation to voice their opinions and concerns about how the federal government was running the erosion control program, there was much speculation by Pennsylvania's farm community about how the Keystone state would fare in the race with other agricultural states for funding.

Well, the wait-and-see period is over. Last week, even before the official results of USDA's public survey on the program could be tabulated entirely, the secretary made it unquestionably clear just where the whole East Coast rates as far as his administration is concerned.

Last Wednesday, Block announced that USDA would be providing $9 million during Fiscal 1982 in "targeted" agricultural conservation program funds to 15 states. Guess who wasn't invited to participate?

Not only was Pennsylvania and its critical erosion problems overlooked by Block as he took aim at his allocation "targets," but so were the neighboring states of Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, and New York — all important agricultural states in the Northeast and all with important conservation problems.

The key word in Block's announcement is "targeted." Those eight letters pointed the direction the USDA chief was heading as he outlined his "preferred program" items in the recent public survey that has turned out to be a sham.

This public opinion poll was carried out by USDA's Soil Conservation Service as directed under the Resource Conservation Act and was only completed late in January. According to a Pennsylvania SCS spokesperson, the final tally of the national survey has not been completed to date, but that isn't stopping Block from eagerly implementing his ideals.

Without waiting to see if American farmers agree with his thinking, Block is making sure that his preferred program "targets an increased proportion of USDA conservation program funds and personnel to critical areas where soil erosion or other resource problems threaten the productive capacity of soil and water resources" — to quote the USDA questionnaire.

Block's March 10 announcement also explained how his new concept of targeting "will allow federal, state and local governments and farmers themselves to attack the most critical problems."

Not surprisingly, this, too, was addressed in the questionnaire. It spelled out Block's preferred program would call for strengthening the existing partnership between landowners, local and state governments and the federal government, and would set the stage for matching block grants to states and reduced federal conservation program funds.

The concept kowtows to Reagan's new federalism policies and attempts to wean the state and local conservation agencies off the federal funding nurse bottle that has assisted the soil and water conservation efforts since the days of the Dust Bowl.

Not only is Block jumping the gun in targeting the cost share funds through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service to 15 pet states in the Midwest, South, and West (Tennessee, Washington and Block's home state Iowa are targeted to receive more than $900,000 each), he also is targeting SCS's staff and funding to these states to provide additional technical assistance.

Now it may seem that we're making a strong case about these $9 million in targeted funds when the total national budget for 1982 agriculture conservation amounts to $190 million of which the eastern states will get a share. But, the point is, this may be an omen of things to come. And why did Block waste millions of dollars on a phony survey if he wasn't planning to abide by the farmers' wishes anyway?

Even though the final results of the questionnaire aren't available to confirm our suspicions, if the rest of the nation felt about block grants and target areas the way Pennsylvania's farm organizations did, there's no way Block could be carrying out the farmers' "preferred" program.

Carl Kaufman, the former state director of ASCS in Pennsylvania and now the state executive director of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union, shares these sentiments.

"It doesn't matter how the farmers answered the survey," he stated. "The secretary will do what he wants."

Kaufman, who was in charge of the first RCA survey done in 1980 during the Carter Administration, said the public told USDA back then that they wanted to see the conservation program maintained as it was with adequate funds. "Block's preferred program came in about seventh on the list," he recalled.

With Block's "do-as-I-please attitude," it's apparent the conservation survey was a democratic facade designed to make farmers believe USDA really cared what they thought. As it turns out, Block's preferred program is in no way "of, by and for the farmers" but rather "of, by and for the feds."

CHRIST AND THE MADMEN March 21, 1982

Background Scripture:
 Mark 4:35 through 5:20
Devotional Reading:
 Galatians 3:23-29.

The man was, according to Mark, a "demoniac"—a "man with an unclean spirit." In other words, he was a man possessed by some entity other than himself, an entity that was evil and made him mentally ill, just as other "unclean spirits" made people physically ill.

If you've ever worked closely with the mentally ill, you will know that, although the term "demoniac" may seem archaic in this day and age, it is an apt description for those with serious disturbances. Their behaviour easily may be described as "demonic," as it is under the control of something not themselves.

What Do You Want, Jesus?

The picture of the demoniac is dramatic. The man is ostracized from society, living among the tombs (particularly avoided by Jews) where no one was likely to disturb him. They had tried to chain him, but his strength was also "demonic." It seemed too, that the man was more destructive to himself than others: "always crying out and bruising himself with stones."

The demons—whatever they were—seemed fully in control. Yet, as soon as Jesus came near, they felt threatened: "What have you to do with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God. I adjure you by God, do not torment me." Illness, whether mental, spiritual or physical or all three, recognized in Jesus a mortal enemy. There was not room enough for them and Christ.

Another indication that the demons were not Jesus' "little helpers" in disguise is the way in which he disposed of them. For the Jew, there was no more despised, hated animal in creation than the pig. Religiously, all swine were "unclean," able to separate a man from his God. So there could have been no more terrible finale than for the evil spirits to be sent headlong into a herd of swine.

Begging Jesus to Depart

Jesus' healing of the man was more than making him mentally whole. The man's dis-ease was social as well. He was a man ostracized from all human fellowship. They had tried to chain him. When they saw him cured, sitting next to Jesus, "they were afraid." In fact, "they began to beg Jesus to depart from the neighborhood."

The fact is, there are many times when we'd like to ask Jesus to depart from our neighborhood. We may complain about the "demoniacs" among us, but often we are even more disturbed when he begins to bring healing into our midst. We are afraid of wholeness because it changes people. The sickness in that neighborhood went considerably beyond the madness of the demoniac. And in ours, too.

Jesus healed a madman and the madman, restored to his right mind, began to heal the neighborhood: "And he went away and began to proclaim in the Decapolis how much Jesus had done for him; and all men marveled."

To Check Ventilation Systems
 We are into the season of the year that ventilation is very important. The fans in the poultry houses and dairy barns have been working hard through the winter months. They have accumulated dust on the louvers and screens and developed loose belts, so they are less efficient — in other words they are not moving as much air as they are rated.

This is a good time to go through your building and clean the fan blades, the louvers and screens. Tighten the fan belts, and be sure to check the inlet screens. Many times, in our poultry houses, we're not getting air circulation because the air cannot get into the building. Clean these inlet screens so they are not restricting air.

Also, be sure to check the thermostats to make certain they are working properly. A thermostat stuck in the "on" position could cause chilling and even freezing to poultry and livestock. This could upset production, especially on poultry and dairy farms.

Poor ventilation can cause health problems in poultry houses and "off" flavored milk in dairy barns.

To Top-Dress Pastures
 Areas that are in permanent pasture will respond well to additional fertilizer. On many farms this area cannot be used for crops, but this does not mean that it cannot be productive. On straight grass pastures, the application of a 10-10-10 fertilizer will make a big difference. In pastures with considerable clover, a 0-20-20 fertilizer will increase grazing capacity. Some livestock farmers will treat only part of an area early in the spring to produce grazing several weeks earlier than the balance of the field. Just because a tract of land is permanent pasture is no reason that it cannot be productive.

To Control Wild Garlic

We may like onions in our hamburgers and in other foods, but very few of us like onion-flavored milk. This can easily happen on dairy farms where wild garlic plants are allowed to grow. Many pastures are infested with wild garlic. One of the very best times to start control measures on this weed is early in the spring when the young plants are 4 to 8 inches high. An application of 2,4-D low-volatile ester will knock them down. When this is applied around the middle to latter part of March, little damage is done to any legumes in the area. If garlic plants are allowed to mature each year, the pasture area will become so contaminated that dairy cows can not utilize the grass.

To Practice Safety Around Liquid Manure Pits

Many manure pits will be emptied at this time of year for field application. This by-product of the livestock and dairy business is very useful as fertilizer. However, the pit can be a safety hazard because of poisonous and explosive

OUR READERS WRITE, AND OTHER OPINIONS

Not included

You put out a great rural publication and I guess we take this for granted and never write to tell you this. Editors usually only hear from readers when they have a complaint.

In your February 27th issue on page D-6, your heading says "Co-op speak out for Milkerendum" and you include PFA in your subheadings on co-ops. PFA is a farm organization, not a co-op.

It would have been well if the Grange and Pennsylvania Farmers Union viewpoints would have been included also.

Keep up the good work.

Mild milk ribbing

I am writing in regard to an article on alfalfa management published in the February 13, 1982 edition of Lancaster Farming.

The article was based on a presentation I made at the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council Annual Meeting in November and was well written. There was, however, a typographical error in the third paragraph which has brought me some good-natured ribbing from around the state.

The first sentence should have read "Spring growth is rapid because of mild temperatures and ample moisture". The word "milk" appearing in the original article has brought me mail inquiring as to the proper temperature of the milk at application time, as well as more information on application rates.

Unfortunately, this article should not be the inspiration of new market development activities by the dairy industry in the state.

gases. When the mixture is agitated in order to be removed, these gases are more plentiful and much more dangerous. Good ventilation about the pit is very important. Also, anyone who goes down in the empty pit should be wearing a gas mask. These gases are dangerous and can be fatal to both humans and animals. We urge all farmers to caution their employees of this potential danger.

NU-PULSE MILKING SYSTEMS

Roe & Mary Russel
Ro-Dale Farms, Rome, Pa.

"We weren't happy with the milkers we were using and the simplicity of the Nu-Pulse milker impressed us very much. Therefore, in 1979 we changed our milker system to the Nu-Pulse milkers. Because of the simplicity, we've needed very little service from our dealer over the past 3 years."

"With the Nu-Pulse milker, we've noticed the udders are softer & there has been no problems with teat ends. Among our herd of 102 cows we have very little mastitis. Our S.C.C. was 600,000 to 800,000 before we had the Nu-Pulse milkers. Now it is down to 350,000. Our herd average is 17,215M 700F.

We had a lot of problems before with our milkers falling off, but with the Nu-Pulse milkers that hasn't been a problem at all.

We were told how good the Nu-Pulse milker is and we've found it to be that and more. We have strongly encouraged other dairymen to use Nu-Pulse milkers."

Northern Tier producers hear component pricing argument

BY JANE BRESEE
Staff Correspondent

NORTH TOWANDA, — The Bradford County Jersey Cattle Club hosted dairy producers from the Holstein and Guernsey Cattle Clubs to hear a possible solution to the national milk surplus problem given by Guy M. Crews, representative from National All-Jersey, Inc. of Columbus, Ohio.

Crews, a veteran of marketing Jersey milk for many years, advocated that the surplus could be alleviated two ways: by raising the minimum standards of fluid milk as California did by raising the butterfat from 3.2 percent and solids-not-fat content from 8.35 percent to 8.7 percent and by imposing end product pricing on Class II and Class III milk.

End product pricing means that milk would be priced on its ability to yield butter, powder, cheese, etc. Milk containing higher fat and higher solids-not-fat content produces more cheese. Crews said, citing a study by Rodney Brown of the University of Utah. End product pricing would raise the value of this milk $1-2 dollars a hundred weight, he estimated.

Crews claimed that if this plan were enforced nationally, it would eliminate half the overproduction.

The price incentive for higher-fat, higher solids-not-fat milk would reward those who produced it and lower the incentive to produce merely for volume, he said.

Crews stated he had taken his idea to most of the major milk cooperatives. "The real important marketing people, the co-op leaders, believe in this," he said, "but are afraid what producers' votes might do to them."

Considering the country's mood against surplus, Crews admitted he is worried that if the National Milk Producer Federation two-tier plan is put before Congress, it "might fly", but he does not favor the National Milk plan because the world market cannot stand the surplus being dumped on it.

End product pricing has been successfully tried in several cheese plants in the Minnesota-Wisconsin area, Crews said.

Using the success in the record high milk consumption per capita in California as an example time and again, Crews maintained that if the cooperatives and producers joined forces and pushed this plan, it could be adopted during the Reagan administration by changing regulations, not Federal Orders. The Department of Agriculture officials say they will not enforce milk production controls, Crews reported, so the surplus problem must be attacked another way.

Crews concluded his talk by asking the dairy producers to urge their cooperative leaders and dealers to adopt the plan he presented.

Tom Noble, president of the Bradford County Jersey Cattle Club, welcomed the 60 dairy producers from three counties. Officials present were Laverne McCarty, Sullivan County director of Eastern Milk Producers' Cooperative; Richard Kingsley, president of the Bradford Holstein Club; Ben Wilcox, president of the Bradford County Guernsey Club; Dave Norman of Tioga County, and Eugene Harris of Bradford County, both state directors in the Jersey Cattle Association; Carl Gore, president of the Bradford-

Bradford County Jersey Cattle Club director William Swingle, left, of Canton poses with Guy M. Crews of the National All-Jersey, Inc. Crews spoke to assembly dairy producers on component pricing as a possible solution to surplus.

Sumner pushes PA products

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO
LANCASTER — Pennsylvania agriculture may be growing better, but according to Jim Sumner, Director of Bureau of Markets with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, the state's number one money-making industry receives only a tiny portion of the total state budget.

PDA currently operates on a budget of $1.6 million, which is equivalent to 1/2 of one percent of the total state budget, said Sumner, the keynote speaker at Inter-State Milk Producer's Cooperative District 5 meeting on Monday. The dwindling funds constitute one of the reasons why an increasing number of Pennsylvania farmers reach deep into their own pockets to help fund marketing and research programs.

Sumner explained that in this age of decreased government regulation or federalism, producer-funded marketing programs begin to break the cord between the government and private sector.

"This is really where all of our ground to be gained lies," said the market director.

The apple, cherry and potato industries operate marketing and research programs with $250,000 from producers. Currently, potato producers are expected to conduct a referendum to double their assessment rate.

In his push of Pennsylvania products, Sumner reminded the 150 dairy farmers in attendance that their own referendum was definite with a vote expected in the spring. He also warned that another spring event, the spring flush, "will probably be the worse in history."

He complimented the IMPCO members on their sole ownership of Holly, a major market for IMPCO surplus.

"That'll help," said Sumner,

"but it won't cure all our ills."

Echoing Sumner's sentiments, District 5 director J. Wade Groff remarked that producers should be glad that present-day agriculture provides food for only 15 percent of pay of the average wage earner.

"That still doesn't take away the problem of surplus, we still need to address it," said Groff.

Following the District 5 business

Lois Hess is flanked by husband Charles A., left, and father-in-law Charles H., right, as the trio was honored for their consistent performance on IMPCO's honor roll. The Hess family milks 55 Holsteins in Pequea.

CEILING FANS are industrial quality all metal units of sturdy construction, attractively designed and finished in baked white enamel. The combination of the aerodynamic blade design — quality sealed for life bearings — and the reliability of the capacitor start motor with overload protection, provide one of the most cost-efficient means of air circulation possible. These fans are completely maintenance free.

A FAN FOR ALL SEASONS

In winter, fans would be normally on lower speeds to improve employee comfort and productivity by gently pushing warm air down to floor level. Fuel consumption costs are reduced by better use of heated air. In summer, fans operating at higher speeds help remove hot stagnant air and dissipates humidity.

Cattle 'shrink' 4-5 percent on way to market

COLUMBIA, Mo. — "Shrink in slaughter cattle is greater than we suspected," a University of Missouri-Columbia animal scientist reported this week.

"Up to four or five percent of body weight can be lost in the first few hours of transport," Malcolm Asplund said.

Only a small percent of the loss in weight is a loss of the gut contents, he said. Much of the shrink is in the carcass itself.

"Confining the animals and withholding feed and water causes as much shrink as does hauling them," he explained.

"Weight is regained—but slowly—after it has been lost from stressed and fasted animals."

To reduce shrink, Asplund recommended that cattle be full of feed and water before transportation begins. Then they should be taken to slaughter as quickly as possible.

"If long hauls are necessary, make frequent stops for feed and especially water," he said.

"Feed and water provided after a long period of withdrawal must be given at least 24 hours before slaughter or they won't do much good."

Finally, he said, more thought needs to be given to the fair distribution of the cost of shrink between the feeder and the packer.

'Computerese' may soon be a farmer's second language

BIGLERVILLE — They are the latest innovaton in the agricultural revolution. Some theories say we can't farm without them while others caution not to be lulled into purchasing one. A major company in the field estimates that it will do $600 million dollars worth of business this year with half of that volume dealing with farmers. What are they? Mirco computers.

A varley of interested persons ranging from farmers to teachers to agribusiness persons gathered at the Biglerville High School Cafeteria Monday evening, March 15, for a hands on meeting to discuss the application of computers to farmers. The workshop, sponsored by the Adams County Extension Service, was directed by Don and Tom Mincemoyer, a father and son team from Penn State, and afforded the group the opportunity to discuss computer terminology to actually work with 2 Apple Plus II, Radio Shak TRS 80, and the TI 59 micro computers and programs.

with computers the way they grew up with tractors, they must familiarize themselves with the terminology of computers, what Mincemoyer calls "Computerese".

He listed several questions that potential computer owners should ask themselves before making a purchase.

First, what are you going to do with your computer?

He emphasized that if you can't list ten good reasons why you should have a computer in your management program, then perhaps you should not purchase one. Micro computers have almost endless capabilities and can do simple things fast.

Secondly, you must define what your role is going to be. Are you a programmer or a user?

Mincemoyer explained, "If you're going to be a user, buy the YORK — Two Ocean View Sexation daughters were the top sellers at the Adams-York Calfarama, held Tuesday evening at Avalong Farms, with a sale average on the 40 head of yearlings and calves of $1,062.

"Avalong Sexation Supreme Silky" was high seller at $3,500, with the final bid on the growthy heifer coming from June Boyer, York.

The yearling heifer is from an Excellent daughter of Oak Ridge Regal Improver. She made several records over 20,000 milk for consignors Avalong Farms of York, including a 9-year lactation of 22,332 pounds milk and 828 pounds fat, with lifetime credits over 167,000. A maternal sister of the top-priced heifer also has over 20,000 pounds milk in her first two lactations at Avalongs.

Runner up for the top spot was a paternal sister, "Donleamar Sexation Sexy," purchased by Leah Mummert, East Berlin. An August 29 calf, she's from a Very Good daughter of Hilltop Apollo Ivanhoe, with a top record of 23,682 pounds milk and 712 pounds fat. Consignor was Leroy Deputy, East Berlin.

Jane Thompson, East Berlin, took home the third-high seller, "Ashcombe-D Glendell Josalin,"

Delta 4-H'er Angela Cooper paid $1,750 for the next high animal, sired by Valiant and consigned by Mark Deputy, East Berlin. "Donleamar Valiant Beth Ann" is from a VG-86 dam by Mayor Royal Design. Her first two records were over 20,000 milk, and she's again projected beyond that mark in her present four-year lactation.

"Kingway Very Ruby" sold to Magdalene Myers of Dover for $1,200, consigned by Kingway Farms. The September calf is by Kingway Elevation Very. Her dam is a GP-81 daughter of Kingstead Ivanhoe, with four records over 20,000 pounds milk and a consistent fat test well in the 4 percentile, with lifetime credits of over 165,000 pounds milk and 7,100 pounds fat.

A number of the calfarama consignments went to out of state buyers, with several to North Carolina. A good-sized crowd turned out for the consignment event, hosted in the upper-level of the Avalong Farms dairy barn, with Remsburg Sale Service of Jefferson, Maryland handling arrangements.

MILK MARKET NEWS

Federal Order No. 4 Class 1 MILK PRICE $15.24 FOR APRIL

Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine recently announced a Class 1 milk price of $15.24 per hundredweight for April 1982.

This price is down nine cents from the March price and is 20 cents below the April 1981 Class 1 price. Order No. 4 prices are announced for milk testing 3.5 percent butterfat f.o.b. plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia and also within 75 miles from the nearer of Washington, DC or Baltimore, MD. There is also a 6-cent direct-delivery differential applicable to producer milk received at plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia.

Shine announced a Class 11 milk price of $12.50 per hundredweight for February 1982 and a butterfat differential of 17.0 cents for the month. The Class II milk price is down 10 cents from the previous month while the butterfat differential is unchanged.

These class prices are based on the February 1982 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $12.46 per hundredweight at a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chicago for February was $1.4747 per pound and the nonfat dry milk price was $.9361 per pound, f.o.b. plants in the Chicago area.

Hearing set for amended marketing orders

The Agricultural Marketing Service of the USDA will conduct a public hearing to consider proposals by dairy co-ops to amend nine Federal milk marketing orders that regulate the handling of milk in the following marketing areas: Middle Atlantic; Georgia; Upper Florida; Tennessee Valley; Tampa Bay; Louisville-Lexington-Evansville; New Orleans-Mississippi; Greater Louisiana; and Nashville, Tennessee.

The hearing will begin on March 16 at 9:30 a.m. at the Airport Holiday Inn North, East Point, Georgia.

The proposals would provide in each order during April, May and June 1982 a hauling credit on certain bulk Class II and Class III milk transferred or diverted to unusually distant outlets for surplus disposition.

One of the co-ops has requested that these proposals be adopted as soon as possible so that the amendments can be made effective for the spring months of 1982. The co-op claims that the proposed action is needed because of increased production, declining fluid milk sales, and the loss of manufacturing capacity in the area over the past several years.

For further information contact Richard Glandt, Marketing Specialist, Dairy Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. 202-447-4829.

Federal Order No. 2

According to a recent order 2 bulletin, dairy farmers who delivered milk during the first month of 1982 to handlers regulated under the New York-New Jersey Federal milk marketing order received payment on the basis of 13.35 per hundredweight.

On a same-month basis, this was a drop of 11 cents from the previous year compared to the December 1981 decline of three cents. The December decline had been the first in more than four years.

No Increase in Class 1 Price

The four-year period of consistent price increases (same-month basis), which ended for the uniform price last month, had already ended for the Class 11 price two months ago.

January 1982 marked the end of that period for the Class 1 price; at $14.77 per hundredweight, it was the same as for January 1981. The Class 11 price of $12.58 per hundredweight was nine cents lower than a year ago.

Producer Receipts Still Rising

The volume of milk in the January 1982 pool was 919.8 million pounds, and increase of 23.2 million pounds (2.6 percent) over the previous year. This was a slightly smaller increase than occurred during the last two months of 1981.

The unusually severe winter weather throughout the area had an adverse effect on the sales of fluid milk products during January 1982.

Class 1 utilization normally increases in January following their holiday period in December. However, January 1982's volume of Class 1 milk, 396.1 million pounds, was about the same as December 1981 and it was almost seven million pounds lower than a year ago. It was only the third time since the Orders were expanded in mid-1957 that the Class 1 volume for January fell below 400 million pounds; the other two low months occurred in 1977 (392) and 1978 (399).

The decline, combined with the increase in producer receipts, pulled the Class 1 utilization percentage down to a new January low, 43.1 percent. It was a drop of almost two points from last year's utilization percentage.

Harkin reports on welfarists' push for legislative hearings

INDIANAPOLIS, In — "It's time for animal agriculture to meet the challenge of those individuals and organizations that advocate regulating our livestock production practices in the name of animal welfare," said Congressman Tom Harkin (D-IA) last week. Harkin was addressing a luncheon of pork industry leaders here during the National Pork Producers Council's annual American Pork Congress Convention.

Harkin, who is chairman of the Subcommittee on livestock, Dairy and Poultry of the House Agriculture Committee, pointed out that he and many other members of Congress are receiving letters urging them to hold hearings of H.J. Res. 305, a House Joint Resolution introduced by Congressman Ron Mottl (D-OH).

Mottl's resolution would establish a 14-person committee on farm animal husbandry. This committee would carry out an investigation of livestock production practices and report their findings.

"These people urging us to move forward to enact legislation in Congress are serious, well-intended people who have deep convictions on this issue and intend to see the issue addressed."

"These individuals and groups are knowledgeable about the political process and know what they need to do to get attention. I hope Pork Producers and other agriculture groups will do the same. We need to hear from both sides," said Harkin.

Although Harkin did not indicate whether Congress would hold hearings on the issue, he did indicate that he and other members of Congress are receiving many inquiries about the possibility of hearings.

N.Y. Cattlemen to promote freezer beef direct sales

MARATHON, N.Y. — Freezer beef and direct sales to the consumer will be the theme of the promotion campaign launched by the Central Division of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association.

The campaign will begin with a booth at the Marathon Maple Festival March 27-28 where Central New York beef cattlemen expect to reach thousands of consumers with information about beef nutrition, cuts of beef, how to make the best use of economical cut of beef, and how to buy freezer beef.

The prime emphasis will be to provide consumers with names and addresses of cattlemen who market their product as freezer beef through direct sales.

Plans for the promotion campaign were made at a recent Division meeting. Division chairman Kenneth Swan of Whitney Point named Jean Schwartz of Earlville as chairman of the booth project and Peter Darby of Clinton to design and construct the booth.

County directors in the Central Division have been asked to contact beef producers in their respective counties to see if they wish to be listed as having freezer beef for sale at some time during the year. These county directors are: Ralph Rose of Glen Aubrey for Broome; Ray Weller of Jordan for Cayuga; Ronald Wolford of Greene for Chenango; Bob Card of McGraw for Cortland; Jim Mather of Marcellus for Onondaga; Bob Scott of Hannibal for Oswego; Richard Benson of Potsdam for St. Lawrence; Don Schwartz of Nichols for Tioga; Gordon Hollern for Tompkins; Mrs. Schwartz for Madison; and Clark for Oneida.

Producers in the Central New York area who have not been contacted but who wish to be included in the listing of sources of freezer beef are to get in touch with Kenneth Swan, Box 52, Whitney Point, N.Y. 13862.

Swan said he plans to have each of the county directors take the promotion booth to a shopping mall in his respective county for a display.

"This will help us reach thousands more consumers with positive information about beef and will help us create a viable market for direct sales of our product. With an increased public acceptance of our product and a strengthened market program we will in turn help all aspects of the beef industry in Central New York and across the state," said Swan.

Goat club to meet

LANCASTER-The Dutch Country Dairy Goat Club will hold its next regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday April 1, at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. Anyone interested in dairy goats is invited to attend.

The main topic for the evening will be "Care of the Kidding Doe". Another interesting sideline will be an exchange of "Old Time Remedies".

There will be ample time for questions and answers. Besides being informative, these meetings also provide an opportunity for fellowship and an opportunity for goat owners to exchange experiences and concerns.

program you want, then buy your computer. If you're going to be a programmer, then buy your computer first and purchase or write the programs that you want." He defined computers as the hardware and programs as the necessary software.

Mincemoyer cautioned that software varies in prices from $10 to $1,000 and that prices do not directly reflect quality since there are as yet no consumer quality controls on these products or registered right to programs. He urged that when considering the purchase of a program, sample it first or at least read the documentation for it to be sure it will do what you want it to do.

Tom Mincemoyer pointed out that the weakest area of micro computers right now is the availability listings of programs. However, Don Mincemoyer, of Penn State Ag Education department, listed various magazines and newsletters where information is available. He also mentioned several Penn State Extension programs that are in the process of cataloging their material.

The younger Mincemoyer urged the audience to utilize these magazines and newsletters in the next step towards purchase. He pointed out that it is imperative to purchase only the essential, useable programs or else your computer will probably end up in your garage.

Finally, make your purchase. Mincemoyer emphasized that only by taking the time to learn the use of your computer, will you reap the maximum harvest of benefits from its efficiency.

County Agent John Schwartz summarized, "When you go to computers it is also a decision to make changes in your management system. It will give you the ability to calculate management decisions, but its only helpful if you take the time to use it."

Schwartz announced that Adams County has been chosen as one of four counties state-wide to participate in a pilot program with Penn State in what Schwartz called electronic mail. He said that the Adams County Extension office and the Penn State Fruit Lab each would be receiving a computer terminal in the next few weeks from the University. These terminals will be hooked directly into computer stations in the entomology and fruit departments of the University. And during working hours, they will serve as direct lines of communication for the in-the-field questions, supplying instantaneous answers thereby eliminating the delay time experienced through the mail.

Environmental conference focuses on waste, acid rain

PHILADELPHIA—How will current federal policies impact on Pennsylvania's environment? This question will be addressed at the twelfth annual conference of the Pennsylvania Environmental Council to be held March 24-25, at the Holiday Inn, Center City, Harrisburg.

During the two-day conference, delegates will participate in six discussion sessions which will explore: The Clean Air Act Policies and the Federal Clean Air Act; the Clean Water Act; the Land and Water Conservation Fund; Acid Rain; Hazardous Waste Management and the Federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA); and Surface Mining.

A plenary session, scheduled for Wednesday morning, will focus on the "Regulatory Process and the Technique of Permitting as a Device to Protect Environmental Quality."

Some of the issues expected to be discussed include: "budget cut-backs and economic consequences; impacts on community health standards; standards-based criteria vs. best available technology; the potential need for new enabling legislation; new roles and mandates for citizen participation; and potential new public/private sector relationships.

Panel participants will include representatives of state and federal government, private industry, academia, and environmental groups.

For further information contact: Patricia B. Schoettle, Conference Director, Pennsylvania Environmental Council, 225 South 15th Street, Philadelphia, PA 19102. Telephone: 735-0966.

The Pennsylvania Environmental Council is a statewide, non-profit, citizens' action organization dedicated to environmental quality. Together with its research arm, the Pennsylvania Environmental Research Foundation, the Council works to unite environmentalists, consumers, business, and government in constructive approaches to environmental problems.

What's he doing baling at this hour?

Whether it's early in the morning and there's still dew on the windrows, or late in the afternoon... he's out baling! He's treating his hay with Beacon Hay Pre-Serv*, and that means he can bale at up to 25% moisture! So, he can bring in his hay early in the day, perhaps before bad weather hits. Or he can bale two or three hours later in the afternoon. Or when the hay is almost field cured, but not quite.

What's more, he'll have better hay.

Because of its higher moisture content, there's less leaf shatter. There are more high-protein leaves that will turn more milk production. No wonder we call hay treated with Beacon Hay Pre-Serv SuperHay!

Lancaster Holstein breeders compare notes with friends

LANCASTER — What do Linden Loch Holsteins, Walebe Farms, Star Bright Holsteins and Junge Farms have in common?

Except for the fact that all milk Holsteins, Lancaster Holstein Club members found the four farms as distinct as the snowflakes that began to fall at the close of the 13-hour tour on Tuesday.

buses at various points in Lancaster.

The first stop was Walebe Farms in Collegeville, Montgomery County, the largest farm on the tour. Out came the plastic boots which marked a day of bending exercise for tour members. Owner Earl Waltemeyer and herd manager Leonard Switzer were on hand to answer questions and describe the 2,000-acre operation.

Walebe Farms began in 1963 as a registered Jersey operation and added Holsteins five years ago.

Today, the farm houses a milking herd of 280 Jerseys and 200 Holsteins.

Waltemeyer explained that approximately 1/2 of the annual 6 million pounds production is supplied by Jerseys and processed for the farm store, maintained on the grounds. The Jersey milk, which tests at more than 9 percent solids is standardized at 3.8 percent butterfat.

Rolling herd averages for the Jersey and Holstein herds are 11,500 pounds of milk and 552 pounds of fat and 16,000 pounds of milk and 572 pounds of fat, respectively.

The high producing herds are milked, almost round the clock, in a six-stall rotary parlor. Waltemeyer noted that as recipient heifers came fresh with almost 200 ET pregnancies, last year, shifts of milkers were kept busy for 28 hours with the twice-a-day milking.

The diversified operation also included several greenhouses, one of which housed 50 calves in individual stalls. In addition, the farm has a maintenance shed for body and engine work.

The large operation, which employs 70 people, was a sharp contrast to the tour's second stop.

Tour chairman Harold Shellenberger of Mount Joy, right, introduces the tour's first host, Earl Waltemyer of Walebe Farms, in Collegeville.

"Fancy meeting you here!" Debbie Miller Brubaker runs into an old friend, Great View Mindy Star, while visiting Star Bright Holsteins. The Excellent 96 3E Holstein was bred by Debbie's father Paul Miller of Linglestown. The 10-year-old Invahoe Star daughter made three records of more than 30,000 pounds.

Linden Loch Holsteins owner Jim Shaw and daughter Wendy Heffner introduce an out-

Star Bright manager David Paul explains the ins and outs of investment cattle to tour members. Paul's 200 acre farm began as a

Jim Shaw's Linden Loch Holsteins in Oley featured a 50-cow herd. The Berks County farmer's philosophy for his family farm was, "keep everything simple and spend everything on the cows."

Shaw's rented operation included just hay and corn on his 150 acres where, "every acre counts."

The former Irvington Farm manager, Shaw explained that some of his herd traces back to the famed Irvington Pride Admiral sire. In fact, most of the semen in the Linden Loch tank includes some of the premier sires of the breed.

"New bulls don't excite me. I like to wait and see how they'll turn out," he remarked. Currently, Shaw uses a lot of Elevation, Astronaut, Bootmaker and Pabst to name a few.

His wife Barbara explained that embryo transplants, which have been used with limited success at Linden Loch, present an expensive option for the rented operation.

But for some, expensive procedures are just another investment. And the 60 head of investment cattle at Star Bright Holsteins, the group's third stop, produced more than 200 ET pregnancies last year, said farm manager David Paul.

Paul explained the 200-acres Northampton County farm began as a family enterprise but now contains about 80 percent investment cattle. Paul noted that field work is cut back a little each year so that employees can spend more time with the valuable Black and Whites.

Star Bright deals with a world wide market, said Paul. Currently, the farm has 20 bulls traveling to studs outside the U.S.

A recent classification of 50

fancy Star Bright animals resulted in 37 Excellents and 13 Very Goods. Paul credited much of the breeding program success with the use of such top sires, Bootmaker, Arlinda Chief and Elevation.

Similar to Paul's operation, Ray Moyer of New Tripoli, neither owns nor rents his Holsteins. Moyer, manager of the Robert Junge Farm in Lehigh County, has a salaried position at the Junge Farm with free rein of the breeding, feeding and milking program.

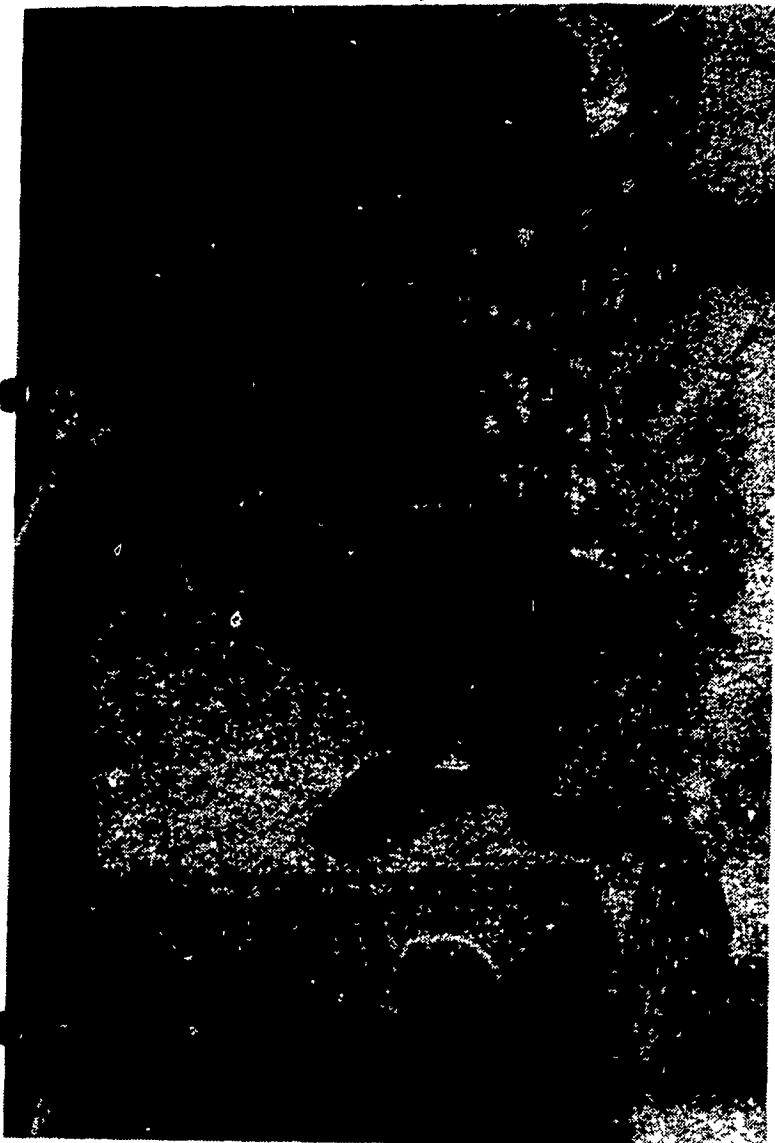

Twelve years ago, Ray and wife Karen fulfilled their dream to farm, without cows, land or buildings. Instead, they were introduced to Robert Junge of Philadelphia, who was looking for an ambitious family to manage one of his farms. The parties reached agreement, with the stipulation the Moyers maintained the aesthetics of the farm.

In fact, when the Moyers needed extra silos recently, Junge okayed the addition but added a wood covering to the outside, to complement the rest of the farm.

Outside, the farm retains its uniqueness, but the Moyers' progressive changes inside have been a complete face-lift.

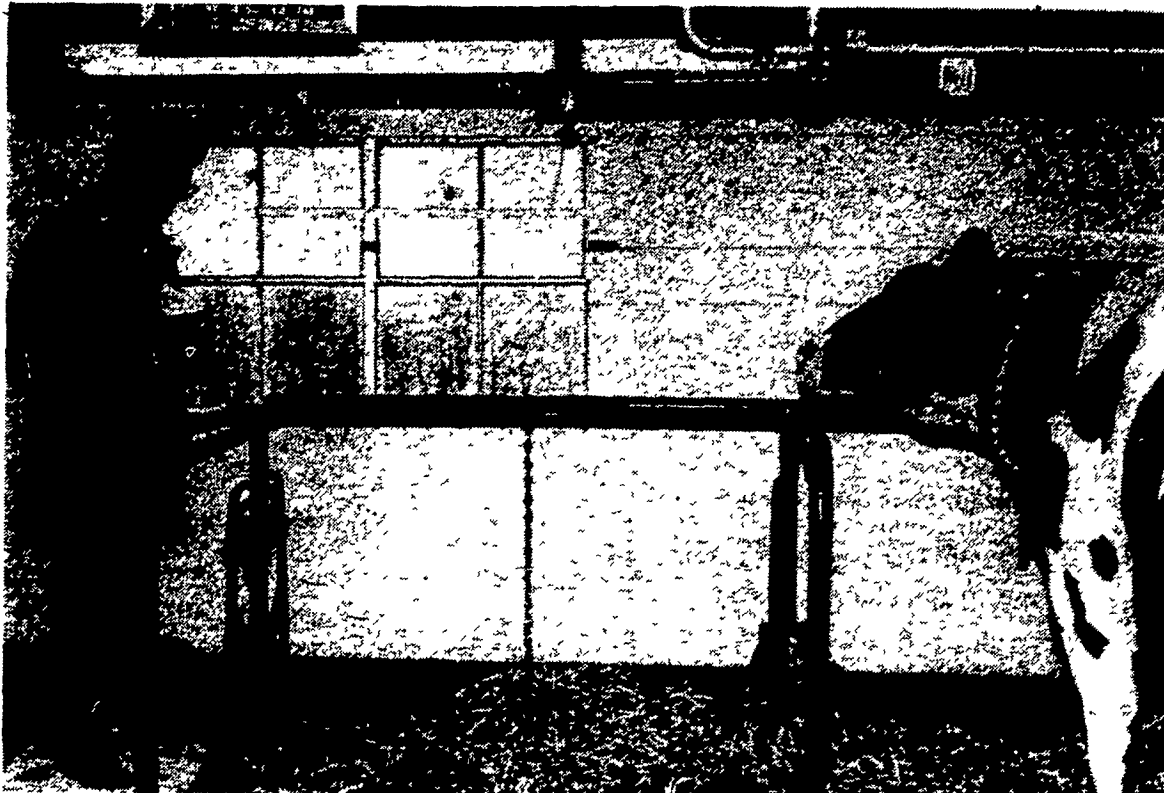

(Turn to Page A28)

A stainless steel milk line foreground, which travels underground to the milk house, was one of the highlights of the Junge visit.

It's an eye for an eye when this Star Bright boarder appears to conduct her own sight-seeing tour. She chooses William Fredd of Quarryville as her first subject.

Not only were Lancaster breeders treated to some of the finest Black and Whites in the East, but they also met up with the national champion Jersey in both milk and fat at Walebe Farms. Rocky Hill Favorite Deb, who boasts a top national record of 35,000 pounds of milk and 1,900 pounds of fat, shares an earfull with her black bovine buddy.

There's only one way to distinguish good silage. Steve Kauffman of Elizabethtown "nose" for sure and demonstrates for Mark Weiler of Stevens.

Sixteen tie-stalls were replaced with 79, following the addition of a wing. The six-foot long stalls are concreted for about the first three feet. The remaining foundation is made of a limestone base.

A stainless steel milkline runs above the cows' heads and sharply drops into the ground at the barn's end. The Moyers also have added an outside manure storage pond, which can hold up to a year's supply.

Moyer's breeding philosophy is basic for his 79-head herd, which produces an average of 18,600 pounds of milk a year.

"We just try to match each cow up with the bull that will improve her weaknesses," Moyer explained.

The common weakness that most tour members complained of was that looking at fancy cows and different operations definitely created an appetite. But relief was within a couple miles. The Kempton Fire Hall provided a hearty meal for the road-weary travelers at the end of a long day.

Michael Eby, 10, may be thinking of the future in the Holstein business as he casts a discerning eye toward the high indexed investment cattle at Star Bright. Michael is the son of Mel and Joyce Eby of Gordonville.

Steve Neff of Quarryville, opts for the great outdoors as he studies the Junge Farm's manure storage, which has the capacity for one year's storage.

Long-time Holstein breeders retire from co-op

CENTERVILLE — On Wednesday, Atlantic Breeders Cooperative bid farewell to dairymen Herman Stebbins, York County and Earl Noel, Adams County as these two Holstein breeders relinquished their respective chairs of president and director during the farmer-run cooperative's 18th annual meeting.

Stebbins left ABC after serving the co-op for 37 years. A firm believer in artificial insemination, Stebbins was one of the driving forces behind creating a co-op to make superior sires available to average farmers. He assisted the organization both at the county and state levels, and has served as its president for several years.

Another dedicated farmer for the cause of improving cattle through artificial insemination, Noel confessed a sadness in leaving the director's post after 16 years of working with the co-op.

These two breeders have left large shoes for two new Holstein breeders to step into. Paul King, of R2 Delta, York County and Ken Zeigler from Carlisle, Cumberland County will be trying them on for size for the next 3-year term.

Reelected directors included: Clyde Martin, East Earl, Lancaster County; Chaney Reese, Warriors Mark, Centre County; and Don Glessner, R1 Berlin, Somerset County — all Holstein breeders.

During ABC's business meeting, David Mellinger reported to the assembled farmers and other agribusiness people on the financial situation of the co-op. Hitting them with the bad news first, he reported that total income for the bull stud was down 24 percent last year — dropping from $625,000 in 1980 to $476,000 in 1981.

On the cheerier side, Mellinger noted that member sales were up about 11 percent and totaled $354,000 last year. But, offsetting this income was a decrease in nonmember income which was off

York County Holstein breeder Herman Stebbins, center, stepped down from the president's chair and out of the Atlantic Breeders' Cooperative after 37 years of service. Adams County's Earl Noel, left, also bid his farewell to the cooperative's secretary Norman Sollenberger during ABC's 18th annual meeting on Wednesday.

60 percent, due to a corresponding dip in nonmember semen sales. He pointed out the 1980 nonmember income had come to $300,000 but fell to $122,000 in 1981.

In the face of all the lower income statistics, Mellinger kept heart and shared with the group of representative farmers the encouraging fact that nonmember sales had strengthened during the past six months and that he hoped this trend would continue.

Mellinger reported the two bull barns being constructed at ABC's headquarters near Lancaster have been built thus far without borrowing any funds. "We've put $400,000 of cash flow funds into the barns up to this point. One of the barns is completed and the second is almost finished. We're hopeful we can complete construction without borrowing any money at all," he said.

In the area of business operations, ABC's Harry Roth reported that the co-op has achieved two new 'highs' in its history of marketing semen.

"Last year we sold 1½ million units of semen," he said. "And, along with that, we had the highest conception rate ever. That reflects quality of service and semen collection." Roth attributed much of the cooperative's success to cooperative technical assistance provided by the Extension Service at county workshops.

Roth expressed his excitement about the future of the A.I. industry, stressing the important breakthroughs that are occurring in both male and female reproduction. Through programs like Young Sire Sampling, Roth said higher genetic bulls are entering the sire service each year. Computers, linear scoring of dairy cattle, and a broader genetic base have created a dynamic time for farmers, which Roth described as "the most exciting time in the 40 year history of A.I."

In his 77th public speaking engagement since becoming dean of Penn State's College of Agriculture last July, Sam Smith boasted the fact that Pennsylvania's number one industry

World weather runs wet and dry

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Many of the world's winter grain areas were wet during the first week in March as significant precipitation was recorded in both hemispheres, according to a report issued last week by the Joint Agricultural Weather Facility of the U.S. Departments of Commerce and Agriculture.

In South Africa, however, corn crop prospects are well below normal due to lack of rain, and subsoil moisture is deficient in some northern parts of China's winter grain areas.

Highlights of the report follow.

—United States. Above-normal temperatures were common in the West and Southwest while unseasonable cold covered the North from Montana to New England. Snow cover increased over the Plains, particularly from Nebraska north and eastward, protecting winter grains from cold Arctic air. In the Southeast, fieldwork was underway until showers began after mid-week. Significant rainfall was recorded from East Texas and the Central Plains to the East Coast, and along the Pacific Coast and over the Northern Rockies.

—USSR. Generally dry weather returned to the major winter grain areas of the Ukraine and North Caucasus. Above-normal temperatures prevailed with daytime highs above freezing in many locations. Most of the Ukraine is vulnerable to potential winterkill due to lack of significant snowcover.

—Europe. Generally dry weather continued across the Iberian Peninsula where Spanish winter grains are in the vegetative stage and would benefit from more moisture. In contrast, winter grain areas from northwest Europe south into France and Italy received generous rainfall. Soil moisture conditions in northern Italy were considerably improved.

—Mexico. Rain over Southern Plateau corn and bean areas improved soil moisture, but several other districts were dry. Warm weather permitted corn planting in some of the low elevations of the south and upper northeast. Crops along the coastal plains of the Bay of Campeche received adequate moisture. Sunny, warm weather prevailed over most other principal agricultural areas.

—South America. Only scattered showers fell on Brazil's corn and soybeans in Sao Paulo and Parana. In contrast, crop areas of Santa Catarina and Rio Grande do Sul received adequate rainfall. Early harvest activity had only minor delays in Brazil. Argentine corn, sorghum, first-crop soybeans and cotton benefited from dry weather as most crops neared maturity.

—Eastern Asia. Above-normal precipitation continued over some northern parts of China's winter grain areas. Subsoil moisture is still deficient, however. Very light rain in southern winter grain areas was adequate for the crop's minimal water needs. Conditions to the south should be favorable as rice planting begins. In South Korea, above-normal precipitation benefited winter grains as above-normal temperatures allowed continued growth in the south.

—South Asia. Wet weather continued in winter grain areas of northern India and Pakistan and temperatures fell to much below normal ranges. Rain and strong winds reportedly flattened winter grains, now nearing maturity, but no local damage estimates are available. Rainfall in Bangladesh and Eastern India improved prospects for spring-harvested crops.

—Northwestern Africa. Above-normal rainfall maintained favorable growing conditions for winter grains in Tunisia and Eastern Algeria. Soil moisture was adequate for crop needs in central Algeria and areas to the west.

—South Africa. Shower activity failed to improve the crop outlook in the Maize Triangle, although the rain may have helped the late filling of kernels. Early-planted fields had matured, however, and many areas were too dry to benefit from the moisture. Overall crop prospects continue well below normal.

Wheat and feed grain sign up

CHAMBERSBURG — D. Merle Baughman, county executive director of Franklin County ASCS office, has announced the enrollment period for the 1982 Wheat & Feed Grain Programs is now open and will continue through April 16.

Feed grain supplies are about 13% above last year and wheat supplies are up 14% over last year. U. S. Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block is urging Wheat and Feed Grain producers to enroll in the 1982 Wheat and Feed Grain Programs.

According to Block, this action will strengthen wheat and feed grain prices by reducing supplies for the 1982-1983 marketing year. Based on the best estimates, it is expected the next marketing year, which begins October 1, 1982, carry-over on feed grains could be around 2 billion bushels, the largest since 1960.

To qualify for program benefits, which includes Target Price Protection, Price Support Loans and Grain Reserve Loans, a farmer must devote to conserving use 10% of the established feed grain bases and 15% of the established wheat base.

Something new for 1982 is that two bases have been established for feed grains, one for corn/grain sorghum and one for barley/oats. Also, a wheat base has been established. Producers will be notified in the near future of these bases and yields. A farmer may participate on either one or all bases.

Participating producers will receive the following target price (per bushel) protection: wheat, $4.05; corn, $2.70; sorghum, $2.60; barley, $2.60; oats, $1.50.

Participants will be eligible for the following Commodity Credit Corporation loan rates: wheat, $3.52; corn, $2.55; sorghum, $2.42; barley, $2.08; oats, $1.31. Price support loan rates for Pennsylvania are slightly higher.

ABC meeting

and employer is agriculture. However, Smith said, most people and legislators still think of Pennsylvania as a coal, steel, and trucking state.

Smith reported that during 1980-81, Penn State Extension poured $4 million into central Pennsylvania. Part of the total, he noted, was a generous contribution by county commissioners of $750,000.

"The old days of get bigger and get richer are no longer true," Smith observed. "At Penn State, we're working economics and efficiency into Extension recommendations."

Smith pointed out that Penn State is currently putting a lot of time into marketing research. "Right now we're seeing excesses in milk which, in 5 to 10 years, will be a thing of the past," he said.

The Penn State dean expressed his concern that legislators don't understand that agricultural research, just like farming, "can't be turned off and on like a faucet." He stressed the need for them to realize that farmers can't go out of business one day and back in the next, and neither can the ag researchers.

Wrapping up the annual meeting was the election of a new slate of officers. Crawford County dairyman David Slusser, Centerville, will be picking up the president's gavel. Assisting him as vice president will be William P. Moore, Chatham, Chester County, with Norman Sollenberger, Franklin County staying on as secretary and John Paxton, Grove City, Mercer County continuing to serve as treasurer.

NK develops creeping alfalfa

ROCHESTER, MN — A new "creeping" alfalfa which is well adapted for use in pasture renovation, erosion control, and possibly as a base for no-till planted row crops was spotlighted at the recent American Forage and Grasslands Council meeting. The "creeping" alfalfa, called Spredor 2 by Northrup King was described as self-perpetuating. It is an alfalfa with the ability for new plants to spring up from the lateral roots of the original or "mother plant."

The original plant is established from seed. This "mother plant" develops in much the same way as standard alfalfa. Later (anywhere from 6 to 18 months, underground lateral roots develop off the tap root. These lateral roots are found anywhere from an inch to six or more inches below the surface. Buds form on these lateral roots, resulting in new alfalfa plants. This new plant also has the ability to express its own creeping rooted habit and spring up new plants.

Other important features of Spredor 2 alfalfa in pasture renovation are its low-set crown, excellent winter hardiness, and observed ability to withstand ice soils were drained with the installation of thousands of feet of tile.

Now, the Shearers can rest assured when they no-till plant 50 acres of corn to provide silage for their Holsteins that their soil won't continually be washing off the farm as it did in years past.

To point out the extreme damage erosion had done to the farm, the Shearers told how, under the direction of SCS, they cleaned out a small pond on the farm.

"After we drained the pond which had silted in, we began the clean up. We hauled 250 loads of top soil in 10-wheeler trucks out of the pond and spread it back on the fields. So you can see how bad the erosion was on the farm," emphasized Shearer.

With the conservation practices sheet damage better than standard alfalfas.

Lower seeding rates (2/3 of the normal alfalfa seeding rate) make this new creeping rooted alfalfa a money saver for farmers. Another economic advantage is a longer stand life because of the demonstrated ability to rejuvenate a stand.

the Shearers have now implemented on their farm, their quarter-acre pond should never be smothered by silt again.

While the Shearers have only been in the farming business for 4 years, veteran farmer Carl Keller has been cooperating with the Conservation District in Adams County for more than 15 years and has been farming all of his life.

Keller, along with his 7 sons, now farms close to 2,000 acres, raising the grain to fatten about 125 steers each year. Using no-tillage, minimum-tillage, and the traditional moldboard plow, Keller prepares the soil to plant corn, soybeans, wheat, oats, barley, and clover-timothy hay.

Keller explained most of the conservation work he's been involved in has been carried out on the farm where he was raised. Tile drainage, strips, and a diversion have helped preserve the family farm and its soil.

What led Keller to see the conservation "light" those 15-or-so years ago? "When I was combining grain and the machine dropped into a ditch in the middle of the field, I decided it was time to do something about the erosion. I didn't like jumping over ditches," he recalled.

"I knew if I didn't do something then, there would be nothing left for my sons to farm someday."

Keller, who was genuinely surprised at receiving the conservation award, said, "I had no idea I was getting this award tonight. That's why I couldn't say a word when they presented it, otherwise I could have had something prepared."

"I'm very proud," he concluded.

Dellwood shippers, NEDCO claimed it had to compete with the milk dealers named in the lawsuit as well as others. NEDCO reported the marketing program offered to former Dellwood shippers was the same as in effect with all other NEDCO marketing cooperatives.

From Abrams' office, Gargiulo explained that several Dellwood shippers declined membership to NEDCO because of a costly initial fee. To join NEDCO, Dellwood producers were subject to an up-front assessment of 20 cents per hundredweight based on their 1981 production, said Gargiulo. The assessment was in addition to NEDCO's 11 cents per hundredweight membership fee.

NEDCO has denied any relationship with alleged co-conspirators Queensboro Farm Products, Inc. and Tuscan Dairy Farms, Inc. According to the NEDCO report, the two remaining alleged co-conspirators, Glen and Mohawk Milk Association and Oneida-Madison Milk Producers Co-op have directly competed with NEDCO for the Dellwood shippers' milk. The report also noted that Oneida-Madison succeeded in gaining commitments from approximately four percent of the former Dellwood producers.

Attorney General Abrams held a press conference in Syracuse on Monday to announce the commencement of the lawsuit. However, NEDCO officials were not contacted until the formal papers were served on Tuesday.

Gargiulo explained that notifying the defendants following Abrams' announcement is "a perfectly normal practice." She noted that in a lawsuit, defendants become aware of the action when they have been formally served.

Following the state's allegations, a NEDCO source announced that the co-op will defend to the fullest extent any complaint against NEDCO President Robert McNamara and General Manager Robert Forsythe.

★ STALL BARN FEEDING IN YOUR LOOSE HOUSING SET UP ★

Computer controlled feeding provides you with all the advantages of individual cow feeding in your free stall housing. For many years dairymen have known that tie stall barns are the way to feed cows and loose housing is the way to house and milk cows. NOW the computer feeder gives the dairyman in loose housing the answers to feed for Max Feed Conversion as in a Tie Barn.

The cow number, feed quantity and choice of rations are entered on a keyboard. The computer looks at a tag permanently fastened to the cows ID rope and will allow her to eat 1/2 of this each 12 hr. period.* At the end of each 12-hour period, the computer will record on tape the consumption of each animal programmed.* Other time intervals available.

the USSR during the 1981-82 marketing year — the sixth year of the Long Term Grain Supply Agreement.

The marketing year for corn ends Sept. 30.

To date, the USSR has bought 12,806,300 tons of grain for the sixth year of the long term agreement — Oct. 1, 1981, to Sept. 30, 1982. Of this amount, 5,858,400 tons are wheat and 6,947,900 are corn.

Milkerendum draws final questions, comments and criticism

HARRISBURG — Is the milk marketing proposal hard to understand? Will the government really take a back seat in the producer-run program?

These were just some of the questions fired at the panel members last Friday during the final public hearing of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Order Program.

State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell chaired a four-man panel that also included: Deputy Agriculture Secretary J. Luther Snyder; Chief Counsel John Lampi; Director of Bureau of Markets James Sumner.

Although the pros and cons of the milkerendum were represented by producers and co-op officials, both sides generally agreed that the dairy industry is faced with severe over-production problems.

Some opponents questioned the necessity of sending their milk check stub along with their ballot. Hallowell explained the stub will provide more accurate information when tabulating volume of milk, needed for a majority vote. Hallowell also reported that an incomplete ballot would be discarded.

Other producers argued that the proposal, as written, contained language that should be simplified.

Program supporters stressed the need for the Order, which they hope will have a positive impact on the market place. Some producers said they felt by opposing the program would only lead to a "penny wise but dollar foolish" situation.

Panel members listened for more than two hours to often times repetitious testimony and questions that duplicated many of the views aired during the five previous statewide hearings.

At least one dairyman declined testifying rather than risk repetition.

"I'm not a cow," replied Dauphin County dairyman Tom Williams. "I don't chew my cud twice."

The Advisory Committee met following the hearing and drafted the final proposal which included only minor changes. The Committee corrected a typographical error, added parentheses around a phrase, clarified that the rate of assessment be based on 3.5 percent butterfat milk and deleted the word, "proposal" in the title of the program.

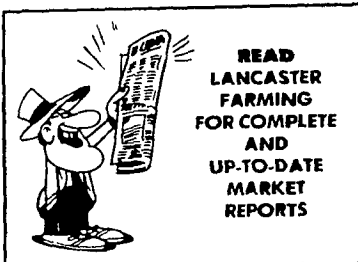

Dairy co-ops will begin polling their members who along with all state producers will receive ballots in early May. The statewide referendum will be held between May 8 and May 22.

The marketing program will be approved if a majority of dairy farmers voting, by both number and volume of milk produced, approve the proposal. — DMT

The Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council is expanding its educational program for producers and allied industry in Pork Production. An idea was conceived by the late Dwight Youngling, Swine Extension Specialist, at The Pennsylvania State University, to provide more education for the specialized operations.

These seminars will be bringing to Pennsylvania some of the most respected people in the industry. Hopefully the seminars would be very informal with some demonstrations, slides, and question and answer periods.

Who is eligible to attend such an event? Anyone interested in swine production. At this time, a fee is being requested to help to defray some of the expenses. Any number of people from a farm an allied industry can attend.

The Pennsylvania Pork Producers is providing this program to the pork industry a part of its service to pork producers. The Council urges all producers to support their industry by becoming members of a local pork association and participating in the voluntary check-off program at the market place.

23 complete Purina seminar

CAMP HILL — Twenty-three dairy farmers from the Coburn and Bloomsburg areas successfully completed a seminar on dairy farm management conducted by the Ralston Purina Company.

The farmers also toured the Ralston Purina plant in Camp Hill as part of the seminar program.

Addressing the seminar participants, Gary A. Anderson, division sales manager for Purina, said that the rapid growth of the livestock and dairy industries in Pennsylvania may be the key to the future food supply of the East Coast.

"With the current economy and rising transportation costs, I expect that Pennsylvania agriculture will play a pivotal role in the entire food industry because of its proximity to the population centers along the East Coast," Anderson said.

The dairy seminar was taught by Greg Muchmore, a Purina district manager. He stressed the need for producers to keep abreast of advances in ruminant nutrition and dairy technology.

He pointed to last year's introduction of the Total Nutritional Index by Purina, which takes into consideration not just current milk production in formulating milk

Generator rations, but also long-term effects as breeding efficiency, body maintenance and weight changes, effect on metabolic functions, health and long-range production.

The plant tour and the dairy management seminar were sponsored by Martin Feed and Fertilizer in Coburn and Klingerman Brothers in Bloomsburg.

Participants who successfully completed the training included:

John L. Devinny and his son, John E., both of Springs Mills; Bob McCool and his son, Keith, both of Madisonburg; Steven Rossman, Rebersburg; Don Feterhoff and brother, Jeffrey, both of Aaronburg; Delmer Homan, Aaronburg; and Jim Martin, Coburn.

Also, brothers Barry and Jay Wise, Benton; Dave Dougherty, Shickashinny; Nate Kolb, Stillwater; Dennis Gallick, Bloomsburg; Donald E. Moore, Coburn; Ken Gephart, Rebersburg; Vincent E. Benner, Woodward; M. Donald Shawver and his son, Lonny, of Spring Mills; Mary Z. Kerstetter, Spring Mills; Dennis R. Feterhoff, Aaronburg; Gary L. Kerstetter, Spring Mills; and Glen Miller, Spring Mills.

APOLLO

Top alfalfa yields. Come rain or come shine.

Apollo is one alfalfa that's more than just a fair-weather friend. Apollo was specially bred to help you produce consistently big yields of top-quality forage, even under some of the most severe growing-season stresses.

Phytophthora root-rot, for example, can cost you plenty in lost yields, reduced feed value and prematurely depleted stands. But Apollo's high resistance to this "wet foot disease" adds as much as 3.3 tons more quality-forage potential to each alfalfa acre compared to susceptible varieties.

Apollo also has high bacterial wilt resistance, moderate resistance to anthracnose and Fusarium wilt, and is less affected by pea aphids, spotted alfalfa aphids and leafhoppers than most other alfalfas.

Combine all this with good winter-hardiness, fast growth and rapid recovery after cutting—plus GroZone® seed coating for extra assurance of healthy stand establishment—and it's easy to see why you should plant Apollo.

It's America's favorite alfalfa, come rain or come shine.

Betty Groff adds "country charm" to cooking

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

Betty Groff, cook and lecturer, brought her brand of country charm and humor to the women's breakfast program held as part of the Pennsylvania Holstein convention at the Marriott Motel.

She spiced her demonstration with many anecdotes about entertaining at her Groff's Farm Restaurant in Mount Joy and about her travels promoting the two cookbooks she has written.

Speaking to all those dairy enthusiasts, Betty followed the theme of the morning, "spotlighting our Dairy Products."

"I don't even have margarine in the house," she added, to the obvious delight of all.

Betty came to the Marriott with appliances and food to produce several recipes which she shared with the women. She was only slightly handicapped by the fact that she could use just two appliances at one to avoid blowing a fuse.

From the beginning she dispelled any false notions about gourmet food, saying "Gourmet is a very worn out word. It simply means well prepared."

With copies of her cookbook on each table and printed recipes to follow, Betty told the women, "Recipes are to be used and followed the first time around. Then you can do anything you want."

When it came time to mix up the winter sausage casserole she prepared for the group, Betty dug in with both hands, saying "I like to use my hands to mix ingredients. You get a lot better feel for what you're doing. Besides hands were made before utensils."

She deftly mixed the ingredients and poured them into the waiting, greased casserole. When the casserole came out of the tiny toaster oven slightly burned, Betty was casual, when the group left the room she tasted some of the charred potatoes.

About greasing casseroles Betty says, "Never work to get the last bit of butter out of the pan when greasing it. You can leave it in." She also suggests using the butter wrapper to grease pans, to use every bit of the goodness you've paid for.

A former dairy farmer's wife, Betty obviously felt at home with these Holstein women, many of whom she knew personally. She admonished them, "Don't ever say you're just a farm wife."

In response to an often asked question, Betty said, "The only reason my husband Abe doesn't miss the dairy farm is because the cows didn't talk as much as our guests."

She said she was a dairy farmer's wife who became allergic to cows. My father passed on the gift of gab and that problem."

It was evident throughout the program that Betty's great love, in addition to good-tasting food, is meeting and greeting the guests who come from all over to taste her famous Pennsylvania Dutch cooking.

"We get more comments about the beauty of country cooking. Country is hottest in the city. There everything is country - furniture, fashions and designs," Betty relates.

While her first book, Good Earth and Country Cooking, deals strictly with Pennsylvania Dutch cuisine, her second, Country Goodness Cookbook, is a broader look at country cooking. "I started out just using things in everybody's cupboards," she says simply.

Betty said it took four years to write the second book, adding, "You pray a lot and hope you pick a title that will be in three years down the road." So far she feels she has been successful with this book.

When asked about the Groff family's newest venture, Betty told about the Cameron Estate Inn, a bed and breakfast country inn near Mount Joy. "It belonged to Simon Cameron, Secretary of War during Buchanan's era. The estate had 1400 acres because he wanted it to be the biggest farm in the county. It was his country manor."

There is an arch cellar in the inn with chestnut wine racks to hold 1500 bottles of white wine and 650 bottles of red.

"When we bought it we didn't think we'd have the restaurant. Now we serve meals there because people don't want to leave to eat. Many of you have entertained tourists in your home, and it is one of the greatest ways to get the word out about farm families," she says. The inn features French service and recipes from her second cookbook.

"There too we use nothing but cream and butter," Betty notes.

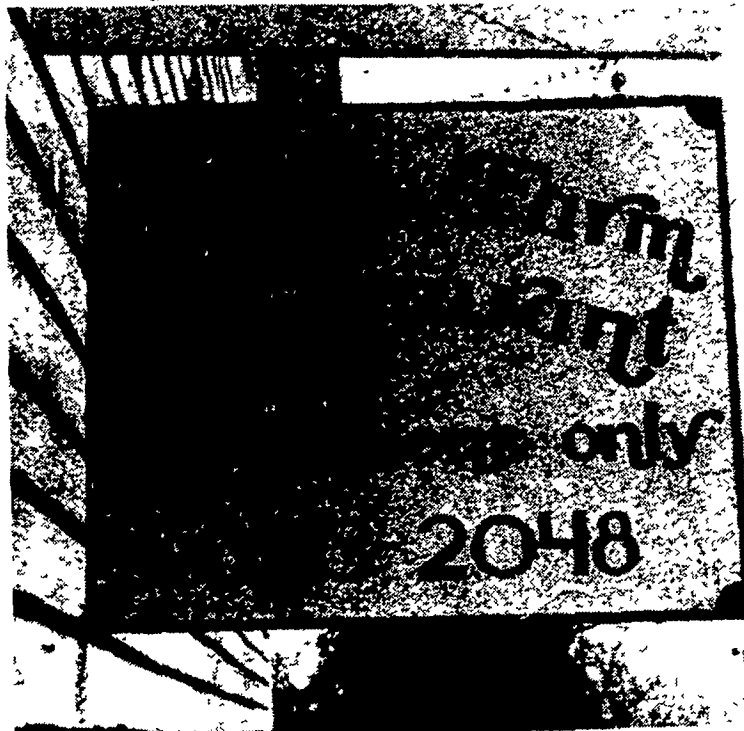

Betty recalled the early days of entertaining busloads of people in her home on Saturday nights. "You learn to improvise. When I first started the restaurant I had a four burner stove. I learned how to stack pots because when you're feeding 32 people you need a lot of food."

Since moving from the farm to Mount Joy, Betty said she does most of her testing in the kitchen in her new home.

One of the recipes she shared with the women was for vichyssoise, or cold potato soup. "You have to acquire a taste for it, but it is wonderful in the summer when you want the richness. Put it in a bowl of crushed ice. The joy of vichyssoise is serving it very, very icy cold."

She added, "You should serve one thing as a surprise element when you entertain."

To a question about saffron, Betty responded, "People do not understand why saffron is so expensive. You cannot substitute turmeric for saffron." While some people suggest marigold stamens as an alternative to saffron, Betty notes that it will add color, but no flavor.

Another recipe she prepared was "Charles-Louis's Blueberry Cheese Pie. She said, "This recipe is one of my favorites and it is extremely popular in the restaurant."

The recipe calls for arrowroot, and Betty explained, "Arrowroot is similar to cornstarch and you can substitute cornstarch for it. The reason I like it is that arrowroot does a better job." She said cherry pie made with arrowroot will ooze slightly when cut instead of holding a rigid shape as it does with cornstarch.

Betty said she especially likes this cheese pie recipe because it can be used throughout the summer, beginning with strawberries, moving on to blueberries and even using peaches. She prepared it using fresh strawberries and a purchased pie shell. She suggested having some purchased pie shells on the shelf for those last minute occasions when you really need them.

When beating the cream she used an old hand beater, and said, "It's kind of fun to do things the old-fashioned way." Besides she pointed out that electric appliances make so much noise they often cannot be used for her television demonstrations.

The two most important things in the kitchen, according to Betty, are the microwave oven and the food processor.

Betty noted, "Presentation is just as important as what you serve. People eat with their eyes."

Nutmeg can be used with fruit or cheese to "make it a little more delightful," according to Betty. "In my home we always served nutmeg with lemonade." She mentioned that this sometimes brings surprised looks to the faces of guests, but added, "I sometimes deliberately do something for the fun of watching guests' reactions."

Until last year, Betty told the women, "we froze 100 dozen ears of corn for use in the restaurant. Now we use dried corn, except in the summer."

Cow Identification Tag —

each cow wears a special tag with her number engraved on it for visual identification. The tag also carries the cow's coded number which is read by the cow identifier at each feeding station. Once the tag is placed on the cow, it never has to be removed or changed when a cow puts her head in a feeder, her identification code is read by the Cow Identifier mounted on the front panel of each feed station. A signal is transmitted back to the Central Control Unit, and the feeder automatically dispenses the correct ration and amount of feed for that particular cow. Feed is dispensed at a controlled rate which matches a cow's normal rate of consumption. If she moves away or is pushed aside feed delivery stops.

Central Control Unit—

you program the Central Control Unit for the exact amount of grain each individual cow should receive, and select any combination of up to four different feed rations including concentrate, complete feed, high moisture shell-ed or ear corn that any cow can obtain. You can also instruct the unit how you want the feed to be dispensed throughout the day. The daily printout will alert you when your cows eat less than its programmed feed level. The Central Control Unit may be installed in your house for convenient access.

points out, "I've gotten to the point where I like my vegetables crunchy. Some children don't like the flavor of soy sauce, so I use bacon or butter to stir fry them." She suggested that stir frying is a gradual way to change over to crunch vegetables.

Following her demonstration, Betty graciously autographed cookbooks for the women at the convention and renewed some old friendships among audience members.

Chopped chives for topping

Melt butter in heavy soup kettle. Sauté onions till golden and soft. Add potatoes, chicken broth, salt, and pepper. Simmer on low heat till potatoes are very soft, even mushy. Blend or puree mixture in a food processor, or press through sieve with a wooden spoon. Return to kettle. Add light and heavy cream.

Over medium heat, stir constantly until mixture begins to boil. Remove and put through sieve or processor again. Cool to room temperature. Cover and chill several hours in refrigerator. Soup should be very cold when served. To serve, pour into chilled bowls and top with chopped chives. In very hot weather, place crushed ice in large bowls and serve soup in cups on top of the ice.

1 teaspoon salt
Freshly ground pepper

Brown the sausage till golden brown. Place half of it in the bottom of a large 2 1/2 quart oblong baking dish. Add half of the sliced potatoes and sprinkle with half of the flour and salt. Add half the chopped cabbage. Repeat, using the ingredients in the same order. Sprinkle pepper on top. Pour the milk over the dish and bake in a preheated oven at 375° F. for 1 hour. If using a deep baking dish, increase the baking time by approximately 15 minutes.

NOTE Potatoes may be used peeled or not. Adjust the amount of salt if the sausage is bland. For a stronger flavor and more color, use smoked sausage.

Yogurt-more than just health food

NEWARK, DEL — You don't have to be a health food fanatic to enjoy yogurt. Working men and women, children and athletes all over the world consume this popular food every day.

Ready to eat when you buy it, yogurt seems right at home in our fast-food society, says Pam E. Berentsen, nutrition intern at the University of Delaware. Yet is has a very long history.

According to legend, yogurt was an ancient accident, when milk left out in a warm place began to ferment and curd. Nomads of Asia Minor and Persia found that the nourishing, custard-like substance could be easily transported.

Today, millions enjoy this milk by-product in various forms including frozen custard, Swiss-style and shakes. Flavors range from natural, to single fruit, to mixed fruits with nuts.

Yogurt's nutritional value can be compared to milk. Both are excellent sources of calcium, riboflavin and protein. Calories vary with brand and flavor. An eight-ounce cup of plain low-fat yogurt has 123 to 145 calories. However, the same quantity of fruit-flavored yogurt contains 230 to 260 calories.

Is yogurt really a balanced meal in a cup? According to nutritionist Jean Mayer, yogurt is highly nutritious, but is deficient in iron, copper and Vitamin C, and is less valuable as a protein source than meat or fish. For all well-balanced meal, also include foods from the cereal, fruit and vegetable, or protein groups.

Cut the cost of yogurt by preparing it at home with a few basic ingredients. Purchase plain yogurt to use as a starter. The only other ingredient needed is skim milk. Yogurt must be fermented at a warm temperature for three to eight hours, depending on the recipe. Fruited yogurt will require the addition of fresh or frozen fruit and a small amount of sugar.

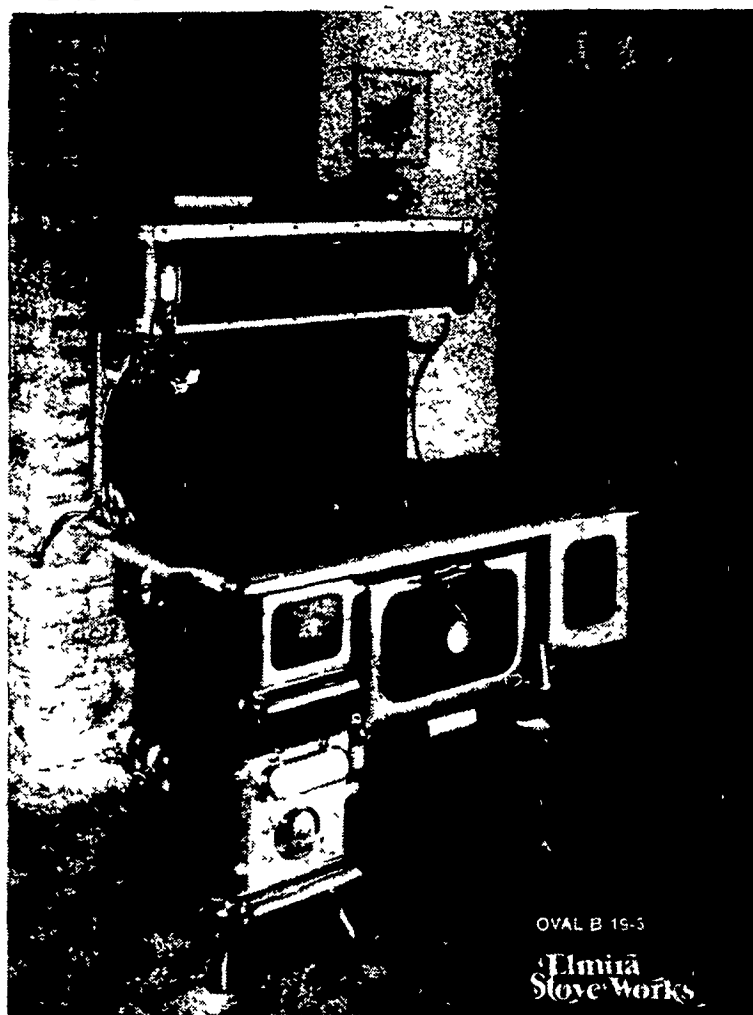

Recipes abound for creative ways to prepare and serve this smooth product. Children find it is fun and easy to make. Prepare either plain or flavored yogurt, then be creative. Top it with spices; add nuts or fruit; blend it in pancake batter; try it as vegetable dip; or use it as a salad dressing.

Plain Yogurt

2 T. plain yogurt (starter)
2 C. skim milk

Heat milk to below boiling (about 200 degrees F), then cool to 150 degrees F. In mixing bowl, place yogurt; blend in warm milk. Put 2 tablespoons of mixture into a cup to use as a starter next time. Cover both cup and bowl with plastic wrap and a towel and set in a bowl of warm water (115) degrees F). Be sure to keep water temperature constant throughout time period. Let mixtures stand 6-8 hours until firm when shaken. Chill yogurt and starter. Yield: 2 cups.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

When I lifted the "February" page on our kitchen calendar to "March", I was surprised or should I say horrified. There were only about five or six days that did not already have a notification of a meeting or something important that had to be accomplished.

The first weekend was a busy one. We traveled to Penn State for the commencement program where we saw our son get his Ph.D. It is a long and sometimes hard road to a doctorate in agronomy. Afterward, we had a nice family gathering at Mt. Nittany Inn and caught up on the news.

He told us that he will be flying to Texas for a job interview. And, I had to smile when he said that he was asked to pose for a bank advertisement in a local paper. All that education in his head and now they realize that he also has a pleasing physique.

And another chuckle followed when he said that someone asked him if he was the original owner of the 1950 Dodge that he drives—actually it was his Grandfather's car.

The following day we saw our little granddaughter baptised. Then our youngest, Cindy, returned on the train from her weekend stay with friends at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. She gathered her suitcase and we set out for Penn State again. My husband and I were crammed in the back seat because she did the driving and as she is almost six feet tall she needed lots of room for her legs.

On the way home we took a few back roads and I had an opportunity to photograph a picturesque, round, red barn. We even stopped to see a friend who we'd only known previously through telephone conversations.

When we got home it was nice to see the lights in the milking parlor as Philip was doing the milking for us. He too left three days later for college where he will graduate in May. But even though the children have gone back to school, I know there will be plenty of things to keep us busy.

Cost of lunch up? Bag it!

Lunch box fare can be as nutritious and inexpensive as it is fun to eat. So if the cost of lunch is 'taking a bite' out of your budget, then bag it!

Youngsters will appreciate lunches and snacks that offer a little surprise everyday and so will those hired hands in the field.

One welcome addition to any lunch box is nuts. High in protein and low in saturated fat, nuts provide a healthful alternative to sugary treats. Included among our recipes this week are nut recipes that give a homemade touch to lunch box snacks and are great to have on hand for unexpected guests.

But the hallmark of the paper-bag lunch is the sandwich, followed by a pickle. Choose your favorite too. Following the recipes are a few suggestions for adding flare to a brown bag lunch.

PEANUT CRACK-UPS

10 cups warm popped popcorn
1 1/2 c. salted peanuts
1/2 c. margarine
1 c. firmly packed light brown sugar
1/4 c. dark corn syrup
1/4 t. salt
1/4 t. baking soda
1/2 t. vanilla extract

Mix together popped corn and salted peanuts in a very large bowl. Keep warm in 250 degree oven. Melt margarine in a heavy 2-quart saucepan. Stir in brown sugar, corn syrup and salt. Bring to a rolling boil, stirring constantly.

Boil without stirring, for 5 minutes. Remove from heat, stir in baking soda and vanilla. Quickly pour over popcorn-peanut mixture, tossing until kernels and nuts are well coated. Spread out in shallow baking pan.

Bake at 250 degrees for 45 minutes, stirring once or twice. Remove from oven. Turn out on aluminum foil to cool. Break into pieces. Store in tightly covered container.

WHOLEWHEAT NUT MORSELS

1/2 c. walnuts
1/2 c. margarine
1/2 c. firmly packed light brown sugar
1 egg
1 t. vanilla extract
1 1/2 c. unsifted whole wheat flour
1/2 t. baking soda
1/2 t. salt
1 pkg. semi-sweet chocolate morsels

Coarsely chop walnuts; set aside. Cream margarine and brown sugar on medium speed of

If the cost of buying your child's school lunch and your lunch - if you work off the farm - is getting you down, then start bagging it. A brown paper bag lunch doesn't have to be boring or unnutritious. Bag lunches are excellent too for those days when the fieldwork demands long hours.

electric mixer. Beat in egg and vanilla until mixture is light and fluffy. Sift together flour, baking soda and salt; add to creamed mixture and mix on low speed until just blended. Stir in chocolate morsels and walnuts.

Drop mixture by rounded teaspoonsfuls onto ungreased baking sheets. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes or until done. Remove cookies from sheets and cool on wire racks.

COTTAGE EGG SPREAD

1 1/2 c. small curd cream-style cottage cheese
1 t. salt
1/2 t. Worcestershire sauce
1/4 t. pepper
1/4 t. dry mustard
4 to 6 drops hot pepper sauce
8 hard-cooked eggs, chopped

If desired, press cottage cheese through sieve. Combine in medium bowl with seasonings, stirring until blended. Stir in eggs. Cover and chill several hours or overnight to blend flavors. Use as a sandwich filling, spread on crackers or melba toast.

FRESH KOSHER DILL PICKLES

30-36 cucumbers
3 c. white vinegar
3 c. water
4 T. salt
spices

Bring vinegar, water and salt to a boil. Place 1/2 T. dill weed, 1/2 t. of clove garlic (sliced) and 1/2 T. mustard seed in the bottom of each quart jar. Fill jars half full of cucumbers. Add another layer of 1/2 T. of dill weed only. Finish packing jar with cucumbers. Fill jar 1/2 inch from brim with boiling solution. Process in sterilizer for 5 minutes.

Beat the cost with brown bags

Costs of school lunches — up. Cost of shoppers delight — up. Cost of businessman's special — up. It's time to revive that great American tradition, the brown bag lunch.

Once something to hide, the brown bag lunch is out in the open — in the office, in schools, at meetings, and just about any other place people get hungry. They're easy to carry, their contents cost less than lunch in a cafeteria or in a restaurant, and usually taste much, much better.

Extension nutritionists at Penn State say that there is no need to sacrifice nutrition or taste in order to reduce family lunch costs. A little advance planning and the use of proper containers can keep family favorites fresh and ready to eat for hours. The key words are planning and favorites.

First, think about what the lunch carrier really likes to eat. If it can be made in sandwich form, so much the better. And if you make sandwiches the night before, leave the lettuce, and tomato to be added in the morning, or wrap them up separately to assemble before eating. Do vary your speciality by trying several types of breads and fillings. Whole wheat and bran breads add zest and nutrition.

Second, if the lunch carrier wants soups, spaghetti, or other hot dishes, those wide-mouthed, single serving sized insulated jars are the answer. They come in several sizes, to fit every appetite. The containers can also be used for cold salads, especially those made with salad dressing or mayonnaise which must be kept cool, or for gelatin or pudding desserts.

Your planning should include selections from each of the four food groups: milk and cheese; meats, eggs, or other meat substitutes; fruits and vegetables; and breads and cereals. The midday meal should contain about one-third of the day's nutrients.

Remember, the only good lunch is one you want to eat. So, pack up your brown or green, or polka dot bag, and you're all set to go.

Cook's Question Corner

ANSWER — Jean Coleman of Louisa, Virginia and all other cooks interested in homemade loaf bread can find an oatmeal bread recipe, thanks to Doris Weaver of New Holland, at the end of the recipe section. Another bread recipe from Benjamin Beiler has been forwarded to Mrs. Coleman.

QUESTION — Could I have a few recipes for Italian dressing, made from scratch? I do not want the prepacked store envelopes. Can anyone help?

Elizabeth Schlegel, Mertztown

CORRECTION — If you snipped out a fudge recipe in the March 6 issue of Lancaster Farming, you may want to make the following correction sent in by Mrs Ruth Wright: When she wrote 3x6 oz., it means 3 packages of 6 oz. or 18 oz. all together of chocolate chips. Thank you Mrs. Wright.

Bag a lunch

FREEZE-AHEAD CHICKEN SANDWICHES

1/2 c. shredded Swiss cheese
3 T. corn relish
1 T. finely chopped green pepper
1/8 t. salt
2 T. dairy sour cream
3/4 c. chopped cooked chicken
8 slices whole wheat bread, buttered lettuce

Combine cheese, relish, green pepper and salt. Blend in sour cream. Add chicken. Makes 1 cup. Spread on bread; close. Wrap individually and freeze. Remove from freezer 2-3 hours before serving. Thaw in wrapper. Add lettuce and serve.

Although the sandwich is the mainstay of the paper bag lunch, select from these other categories to make that meal-away-from-home a special treat.

—Pack a munchable or two: cheese-stuffed celery, cubes of cheese on a wooden pick with pickles and olives; bunch of grapes, cherries, or strawberries, stuffed prunes or dates; small bags of corn or potato chips, chocolate covered raisins, marshmallows, candied orange peel, cupcakes or cookies; any whole fruit, like apples, pears, oranges or bananas.

—Make ahead and freeze: chicken, tuna, cheese and cheese spreads, shrimp, or ham salads.

—Thermos Surprises: milk, cocoa, coffee, flavored milk drinks, buttermilk or skim milk or cream soup. Squat thermoses will hold baked custard puddings, chilled fruit- or berry-flavored yogurt, salads, cut up fruits.

Following is a recipe in response to a request from Cook's Question Corner. This homemade bread would also taste good in a lunch box meal.

OATMEAL BREAD

1 c. oatmeal
2 c. boiling water
1 T. butter
1 t. salt
— Mix together and let cook till lukewarm.
1 pkg. yeast
1/2 c. lukewarm water
1 t. sugar
1/2 c. molasses
5 c. flour

Add yeast mixture and molasses to oatmeal mixture. Stir well. Add flour, let rise two times then put in loaf pans and let rise again. Makes 2 loaves. Bake for 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

LANCASTER — OK cooks, let's take a look at the quaint little wood spice rack that you payed so much for to dress up your kitchen. All the bottles are neatly filled and labeled. But how many of the spices included there have you actually used in the last week?

If you say one or two, is it because you're just unfamiliar with the cooking use of each? Would you begin challenging your cooking habits and practice with different spices if you knew how to use each?

Following is a list of some of the most familiar spices most people have sitting on their racks

But before you use any, there are a few things you should learn about herbs and spices.

Herbs are spices, but in practice a distinction is made between them. A spice is the roots, bark, stems, leaves, seeds, or fruits of a plant, and many of the seasonings called spices come from the tropics. Herbs are the leaves of soft-stemmed or grassy plants, usually from the temperate zone. The packaged herbs and spices in stores are dried.

Use seasonings sparingly — seldom ever more than one per food. Herbs are meant to season, not dominate the taste.

Now, if you think you really know all about the spices on your rack, try listing all of them without looking. When you think you have them all, compare them with the seasonings you actually have. Then try to learn as much as you can about your herbs and spices. The most common are:

—celery salt — blend of ground celery seed and salt;

—cloves — nail-shaped dried brown buds of evergreen clove tree, grown in East and West Indies;

—dill weed — leaves of plant of parsley family; delicate flavor. Should be used to flavor potatoes; also good with sauerkraut, fish and in salad dressings.

—fennel seed — aromatic seed of plant of parsley family; slight licorice flavor.

—garlic — garlic clove from root of bulbous annual of lily family; available in garlic powder and garlic salt.

—marjoram — dried leaves of plant of mint family; aromatic flavor with bitter undertone; use in gravies, roasts, fish, omelets, poultry seasonings.

—mustard — mixture of brown and yellow seed from annual herb plant; pungent flavor.

—oregano — dried leaves of perennial plant; also available ground; strong aromatic flavor; good for beef, pork and tomato dishes.

—paprika — dried, stemless pod of sweet red pepper; available ground; mild, slightly sweet flavor.

—parsley — dried leaves of biennial plant; mild, pleasant taste; blends well with all other herbs.

—rosemary — dried leaves from perennial evergreen shrub of mint family; sweet, pinewoods flavor.

—saffron — dried stigmas of crocus; pleasantly bitter flavor; expensive.

—savory — dried leaves of plant of mint family; piquant, aromatic flavor; good in stuffings and casseroles.

—sesame seed — dried, hulled fruit of tropical annual herb, rich, nutlike flavor.

—tarragon — dried leaves of shrub-like perennial; available ground; slightly astringent flavor.

—thyme — dried leaves of perennial plant of mint family; also ground; warm, aromatic flavor.

Launder clothes contaminated with pesticides

NEWARK, Del. — Even if you're unconcerned about "ring around the collar" or dull gray work clothes, there's one laundry problem you should take seriously. When clothing is contaminated with pesticides, your health depends on proper laundry techniques.

Some pesticides are more toxic than others. The label lets you know. Labels with the word "danger" or "poison" indicate products that are highly poisonous; clothing contaminated with these chemicals should be handled carefully. Clothing that is completely saturated with highly toxic pesticides should be discarded.

Pesticides with labels that read "warning" are moderately toxic. Slightly toxic pesticides have "caution" on the label. Clothing completely saturated with moderately or slightly toxic pesticides can often be salvaged by thorough laundering.

Knowing how toxic a pesticide is will indicate how hazardous the contaminated clothing will be to handle, but not how difficult it will be to clean. That depends on the formulation of the pesticide. For example, laundering easily removes 2,4-D amine because it's water soluble. However, 2,4-D ester is much more difficult to remove.

Wash contaminated clothing separately. Otherwise it could contaminate the rest of the load, says Philip W. Tipping, assistant Extension entomologist at the University of Delaware.

Prerinsing helps remove some residues. This can be done in several ways: presoaking in a suitable container, prerinsing with agitation in an automatic washing machine, or hosing down garments outdoors. Prerinsing is especially effective for removing wettable powder formulations of pesticides.

Multiple washings are often necessary to clean clothes contaminated with concentrated pesticides. Always wear rubber gloves when handling such garments. A single washing is usually sufficient for clothing contaminated with diluted pesticides.

Hot water is most effective — the hotter the better; cold water is usually inadequate.

Clothing that is contaminated daily should be washed daily. Residue that accumulates on a garment is harder to remove.

Pesticides can carry over to subsequent laundry loads because of residues in the machine. To prevent this, run the washing machine empty, using hot water, detergent and the machine settings and cycles appropriate for washing contaminated clothing.

Finally, line dry garments to prevent dryer contamination. Exposure to sunlight will also break down residues still present on the garment.

Farm debt triples in 10 years

UNIVERSITY PARK — Farm debt has reached nearly $200 billion, triple the $59 billion of 10 years ago, reports Penn State's College of Agriculture.

Ironically, low net farm incomes in the last 2 years — $20 billion in 1980 and about $22 billion last year — along with record-high interest rates have sharply reduced the growth of farm debt. From 1977 to 1979, it rose at an average annual rate of 15.4 percent, compared with about an 11-percent rise in 1980 and 1981.

Total farm debt is so large that its significance for individual operators is difficult to translate. Debt averages about $72,000 per farm, though the largest 10 percent of our farms carry well over half the total debt.

The high cost of credit, combined with low farm prices, has forced many producers to postpone major purchases of replacement equipment and has prevented some others from even qualifying for needed loans. Repayment delinquencies and defaults on existing loans are expected to increase the first half of this year.

Hunterdon County reports 4-H activities

FLEMINGTON, NJ — The most recent meeting of the Milford Dairy 4-H Club was held at the Nelson home in Pittstown.

Members plans to participate in the county 4-H window display contest and hold a bake sale.

Presentations were given by the following members: Andy Nelson on the five major dairy breeds; Trista Beatty, on the many wonders of milk; Tracy Beatty, on filling out growing cards; Becky Alpaugh, inside the udder of a cow; Hope Atkinson, registry applications and Tom Gonzales, hoof care

Small Animals

Adult leaders are urgently needed to start neighborhood small animal clubs in different Hunterdon County communities. It is becoming increasingly difficult for Hunterdon County's one small animals 4-H Club to handle the great demand for this kind of project by young people. If you are interested in hamsters, gerbils, rabbits, and their kind, like children and are well organized, consider taking on a small animals 4-H club. Lots of young people need you. Call the 4-H office at 201-788-1340 or 1341 for more information

"The Farmer" laments

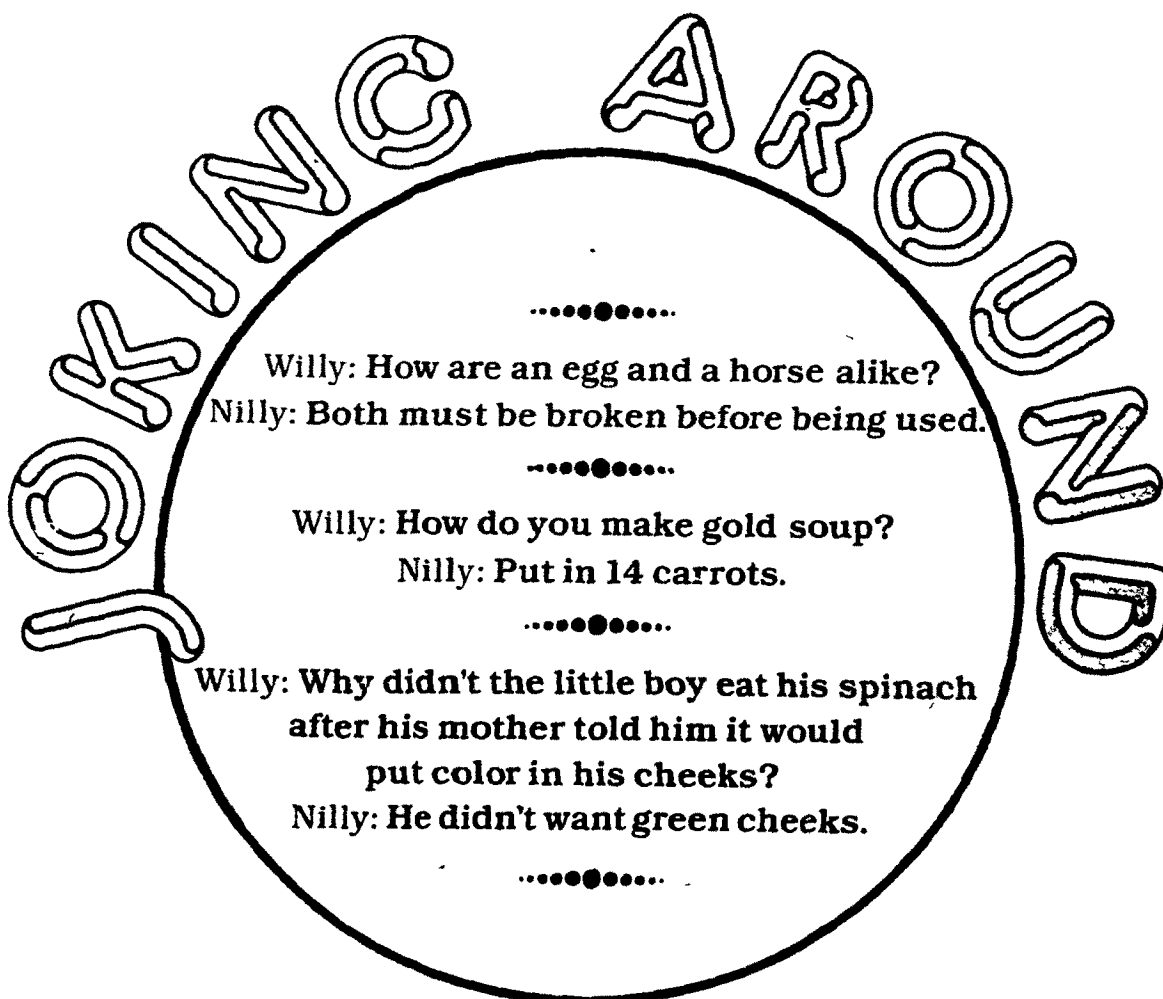

From time to time we like to know what you, our youngest farmers, are doing at home on the farm. Roy Diller, 12, of Dillsburg, is one such youngster keeping farming growing at home and at school. He wrote a report on farming and composed a poem which his mother sent in to share with you

The Farmer

There once was a farmer named Joe, he was like any other farmer though,
he bought everything retail and sold it wholesale,
what was poor Joe to do
He was losing a whole lot of money, he soon wouldn't be able to afford his bread and honey, so he went to the store and looked at the bologna, the same he sold to them the day before.
When he sold the beef it was only worth 38 cents, when they sold the bologna it was worth $2 68.
Now you wonder why the farmer will soon be extinct,
The farmer loses money on every deal so if I were you,
I would bless my every meal.

COOKING FOR ONE

Yes! You can live alone and still eat well. Cooking for one requires a little planning, a little patience and a determination to give up junk food.

If you think you're ready for a healthier and more interesting culinary life, here are some tips for you. If you're not ready, read these anyway. You may be convinced there's more to a meal than pre-packaged or take out specials.

Taking advantage of store "specials" doesn't mean you have to eat chicken everyday. Buy the family pack and separate the pieces, put each in a plastic bag, and freeze. You're ready to choose any piece you need, depending on your menu.

Buy ground beef in the very large size, separate into meat loaf, patties, and tiny meatballs and freeze them all. Individually frozen meatballs thaw quickly so you can use only what you'll need for that day.

Making rice tonight? Make several servings at once and like meat, separate into serving sizes freeze and store in individual foil packets. When you're ready to use one of those extras, simply thaw directly on an electric unit, in a toaster oven or on the top of a pot when cooking the rest of the meal.

Couldn't eat it all? Don't throw it away. Keep a "soup pot" container (a one or two quart size does nicely) in your freezer and collect all those leftover goodies for a hearty soup or stew on a cold or rainy night. Don't worry about mixing flavors, several types of broth and meat only add to the taste. Experiment and create your own house specialty.

Breads and pastries are sometimes a problem. There's always the temptation to "eat it to save it." We all know how easily that builds unwanted weight! Just keep it in the freezer — it's easy to thaw in the toaster or toaster oven. You can even make sandwiches with frozen bread. In fact, if you do, your lunch will be fresher at noon.

Remember, cooking for one means you can eat what you want when you want it. Don't skip meals or give up and go out to eat. It's nearly always less expensive, less time consuming, and more tasty to have that extra special "special" at home.

When you get tired of that, you can always invite a friend to share. But first, do yourself and your friend a favor, practice cooking for one. You'll be delighted with the money you save and the variety of your meals — if you plan ahead to eat well.

IRONING EASE

Ironing is certainly less difficult and less time consuming today than in the past thanks to permanent press fabrics and finishes, tumble drying and steam ironing. But the art is undergoing a revival with the increased use of natural fibers such as silk, cotton and linen. It can be made easier with "ounce of prevention" techniques to discourage wrinkling in the first place.

Be sure you check garment labels for care instructions. For machine washing use, wash water temperature with agitation and spin cycles suggested by the manufacturer. The permanent press cycle of a washer, for example, helps prevent the setting of wrinkles in such items by cooling the wash water before a spin and using a low spin speed.

Dryer temperature and time are equally important. Separate lightweights from heavy pieces for more even drying. Absorbent and bulky fabrics retain more moisture and take longer to dry. Don't dry too large a load. Clothes need room to move freely to reduce wrinkling. The use of a permanent press cycle in drying calls for a 10-minute cool down at the end of the cycle for wrinkle-free results of these garments. Avoid overdrying of all wash loads. This not only tends to set wrinkles, but makes clothes feel harsh.

It is very important to remove clothes from the dryer drum at the proper time, generally as soon as the machine shuts off. However, don't simply drop the dried laundry into a basket. Prompt attention to smoothing seams, collars and cuffs on blouses, shirts and dresses and hanging them up helps cut down or eliminate ironing board duty. The same treatment applies to trousers. Many light wrinkles will hang out or require just a quick touch-up pressing. Undergarments, playclothes, knits need only to be smoothed and folded. Flat pieces, such as tablecloths and napkins, should also be smoothed to reduce wrinkling and make ironing easier.

Ironables may be removed from the dryer damp dry. If ironing is to be done later, they can be stored in a plastic bag. Items like corduroys, quilted fabrics and knits retain their shape better if removed from the dryer before they are completely dry and while they still have a trace of moisture in them.

With the use of a steam iron and ventilated ironing table that permits the steam to move through the clothing, dampening and arduous ironing are things of the past, especially if overdrying is avoided.

Watch for hidden sugar high in sugar are often devoid of needed nutrients such as minerals and vitamins. Despite this, annual per capita consumption of sugar and other caloric sweeteners is around 130 pounds.

That's up from 104 pounds in 1920. Why the increase? According to Maryetta Dorricott, Delaware County Extension home economist, many researchers question whether Americans deliberately are choosing to eat sweeter foods or whether they are losing control as they eat more commercially prepared foods at home and in restaurants. In 1920, more than 60% of the sugar eaten by the average American was "discretionary" — added to foods in the home.

By contrast, recent studies by the U.S. Department of Agriculture indicate that only about 25% of the sugar consumed today is discretionary. The other 75% has been added to food or drink at the point of processing before the food is brought into the home. Even foods we don't think of as sweet have sugar added to them. Catsup, salad dressings and peanut butter are examples. Most packaged foods have ingredient labeling, with the ingredient present in the largest amount listed first. The rest of the ingredients are listed in descending quantities. But that doesn't tell you amounts. If more than one type of sugar is listed, the sugars may well be one of the chief ingredients in the food.

If you want to limit your sugar intake, you'll need to learn the names of the sugars and sugar substitutes often found on labels. The most common ones are sucrose (from cane or beet sugar, generally), fructose (also found naturally in fruit and in honey, along with glucose), lactose (found in powdered or fluid milk), glucose, dextrose, corn syrup, corn sweetener, natural sweetener, invert sugar and honey.

Plagued by diseases?

Was your vegetable garden plagued by diseases last summer? Now's the time to make sure you don't run into the same problems again this year.

Extension plant pathologist Bob Mulrooney says there are several ways to control diseases in your garden. One is by rotating crops so that you don't get a pest buildup in any particular spot. In a small plot this may be difficult, but you still ought to be able to alternate plants like tomatoes from one end of the garden to the other.

If you lost tomatoes to verticillium or fusarium wilt diseases last year, by all means do not plant them in the same location again — or for the matter, eggplant, potatoes, or peppers. That soil is a reservoir for wilt now and you should wait at least two years before growing another one of these crops in the same location.

Sanitation is another cultural practice which can help eliminate diseases in your garden this summer. Take the time to spade under any plant refuse left over from the last growing season. Until this has been worked into the soil it, too, could be a source of infection.

A third way to make sure you have fewer problems next summer is to make sure you plant disease-resistant varieties of fruits and vegetables. As you look through your seed catalogs over the next few weeks, you'll find many hybrids that are resistant to one or more diseases — or at least tolerant of them. These are the ones to order.

Don't even think about growing tomatoes that aren't resistant to both verticillium and fusarium wilts. Several varieties even have nematode resistance, which is another plus. Sometimes you'll see the initials VFN or VF in the plant name. This indicates the diseases it's resistant to. Varieties with excellent wilt resistance include Big Girl, Better Boy, Spring Set, Jet Star and Supersonic. For canning, Heinz 1350 is a crop resistant tomato.

Cucumbers are another crop where disease control is important. Look for hybrids resistant to cucumber mosaic and scab. Some are also resistant to powdery mildew, downy mildew, and anthracnose.

For snap beans, Mulrooney suggests you look for rust and mosaic virus resistance.

Sometimes you may run into problems of keeping quality in vegetables grown for winter storage. Most of the new improved winter squash varieties are pretty York-Women of the York County Farmers Association are "in stitches" over the organizations upcoming third annual summer farm tour.

Brightly-colored full size quilts are on frames at the homes of Ethel Gross, Manchester, and Kay Taylor, Airville, being stitched together by the group's women members.

A drawing for the two custom-designed coverlets will be just one good keepers, though black rot control fungicides may still be necessary in a wet season on this crop.

If you plan to grow onions for storage, remember that yellow varieties tend to keep better than white ones.

A misconception of many home gardeners is that disease resistance is the same thing as immunity. But even resistant varieties won't withstand heavy disease pressure, warns Mulrooney. Given the right environmental conditions or a very high level of pathogens in the soil or spores in the air, many plants can become infected which under normal conditions won't show any disease at all.

Sometimes, too, you'll run into problems because of bad timing. Late-planted summer squash, for instance, will often be hit by a lot of mosaic virus, which is transmitted by aphids.

Home gardeners who practice crop rotation and good sanitation, who select disease-resistant varieties, and make fungicide applications during times of heavy pressure, ought to have a minimum of disease problems in their gardens this year.

York women tying up loose ends for summer farm tour of the highlights of the Association's free-to-the-public farm tour, set for Saturday, June 19, on four farms in the Manchester area.

All members interested are invited to contribute an hour or two of time to the quilting project. Experience is not a requirement, since veteran quilters are lending their expertise to first-time stitchers.

Another event geared to attract the attention of the public to the farm tour is a recycling craft contest, open to men, women, and children of all ages.

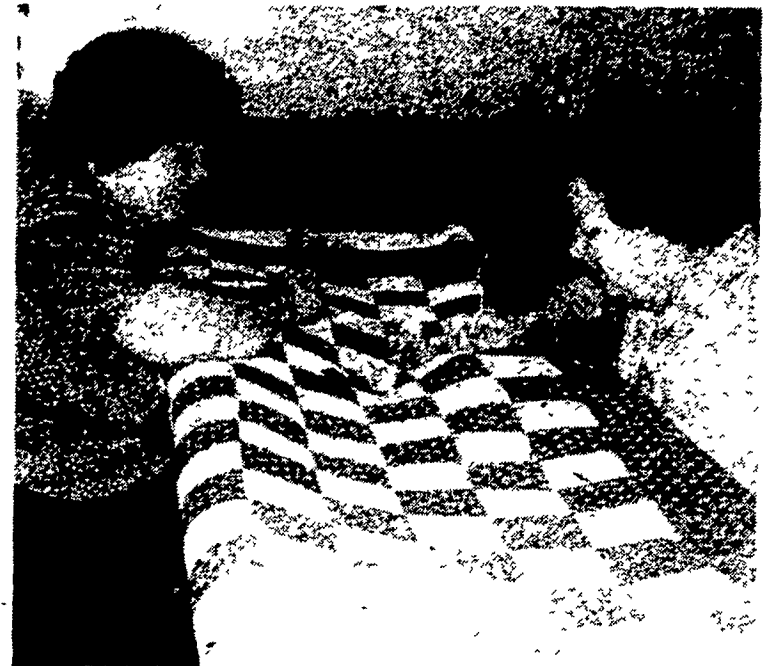

"We're looking for useful and decorative items, designed from throwaways — like glass, plastic, aluminum, foam, cardboard," says Bess Hutchenreuter, chairman for the recycling competition.

The philosophy of the recycling idea is to encourage the public to learn the art of finding uses for items that normally go on the trash pile, adding to the national disposal problem that is part of the threat to farmland preservation.

Putting a discard to use, rather than have it buried in farmground, is an attempt by the York County Farmers Association to contribute to preserving the prime farmland of central Pennsylvania.

Entries will be judged during the June tour, and must be preregistered by June 10, with an item name, description, and the name, address and phone number of the competitor, to chairman Bess Hutchenreuter, R2 Box 75, Airville, Pa. 17302-JB

Conserve soil, fertilizer

LEBANON — "An efficient fertilizer program may help farmers turn a profit," says Burrell Whitworth, conservationist with USDA's Soil Conservation Service.

The conservationist recommends farmers match crops with soils. "Use a soil test for efficient lime and fertilizer management. A shortage of one nutrient results in limited utilization of other investments. Likewise using too much of any nutrient is a waste of energy and dollars," reports Whitworth.

Crop rotations, including legumes, can make fertilization more efficient, Whitworth adds. "According to Penn State's Agronomy Guide, the residual nitrogen from a good alfalfa stand has the potential to supply 125 pounds of nitrogen per acre the first year of corn and 75 pounds per acre the second year."

Planting crops in rotation also helps distribute labor and reduce the risk involved with single crop enterprises, he notes. "Where practical, a strip cropping system can reduce soil loss by half, keeping fertilizers in place."

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Over and over, these thoughts keep battling around inside my head, overwhelmed by the insensibility of it all.

Item: A five-year-old York County youngster was recently beaten to death by her mother and the mother's boyfriend, so badly bruised and battered that authorities reportedly could not even identify her race from the mutilated face.

Item: A movement of supposed reformers across the country continue to argue for regulations that would change the way in which farmers care for their livestock, ostensibly because of "abuse."

Item: A Philadelphia judge, commenting on current law, remarks that beating an animal carries a heavier jail penalty, six months, than does a child beating offense, which gets three months.

Somewhere along the tracks, our society is becoming disastrously derailed.

Farmers have had to go on the defensive against accusers who criticize the way animals are cared for. Poppycock. An "abused" animal will not thrive. It will die. Not only are farm families generally rather attached to their animals, but sheer sense of economics says that an investment such as expensive farm animals must be carefully and properly nurtured.

Oh, that countless children would get the loving attention given farm animals. For here we are, on the other hand, faced with a very real situation of genuine abuse, abuse of defenseless

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania Treasurer R. Budd Dwyer has installed a toll-free "Waste Line" in his Harrisburg office to enlist citizen help in his efforts to cooperate in the state's crackdown on wasteful, improper and illegal spending of Commonwealth funds.

Dwyer called upon Pennsylvania citizens to use the "Waste Line" to report instances of misspending, improper or illegal spending they know of or come across.

All matters reported, Dwyer said, will be checked out by the children. It's an incredibly tragic situation of apparent epidemic proportions, given the economic stressed and family breakdowns of today's lifestyles.

Frankly, I can hardly deal with the subject; it unhinges me emotionally. And close behind in unbelievability comes the documented stories of adult children abusing their elderly parents. Tales of spouse-beating aren't too uncommon, either.

To the credit of the large percentage of people who are becoming genuinely horrified by the current state of child protection laws, a collective outcry will doubtless be heard. And hopefully changes. The sooner, the better.

The time has come to correct the real "animal abuse" — the battering of the human animal.

"Waste Line" records waste of state funds

Treasury Department's Bureau of Pre-Audits or other appropriate agencies.

Dwyer said he had discussed the plan for setting up the "Waste Line" with the Governor's office and that Gov. Richard Thornburgh had pledged his full cooperation in acting on any legitimate findings developed by the "Waste Line."

The toll-free number for the "Waste Line" is: 800-932-0609.

Dwyer said it would be manned in his Department's Communications Bureau from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Nights and weekends, he noted, citizens can call the "Waste Line" number and record their messages.

Televised and radio promotional messages, according to Dwyer, have been distributed to the electronic media around the state, urging as a public service that citizens use the "Waste Line."

The Pennsylvania Treasurer promised that all "Waste Line" calls and tips will be investigated thoroughly and where the facts support them, funds will be shut off immediately until the reported situation or situations are corrected.

Dwyer emphasized that the anonymity and confidentiality of callers using the "Waste Line" will be respected at all times.

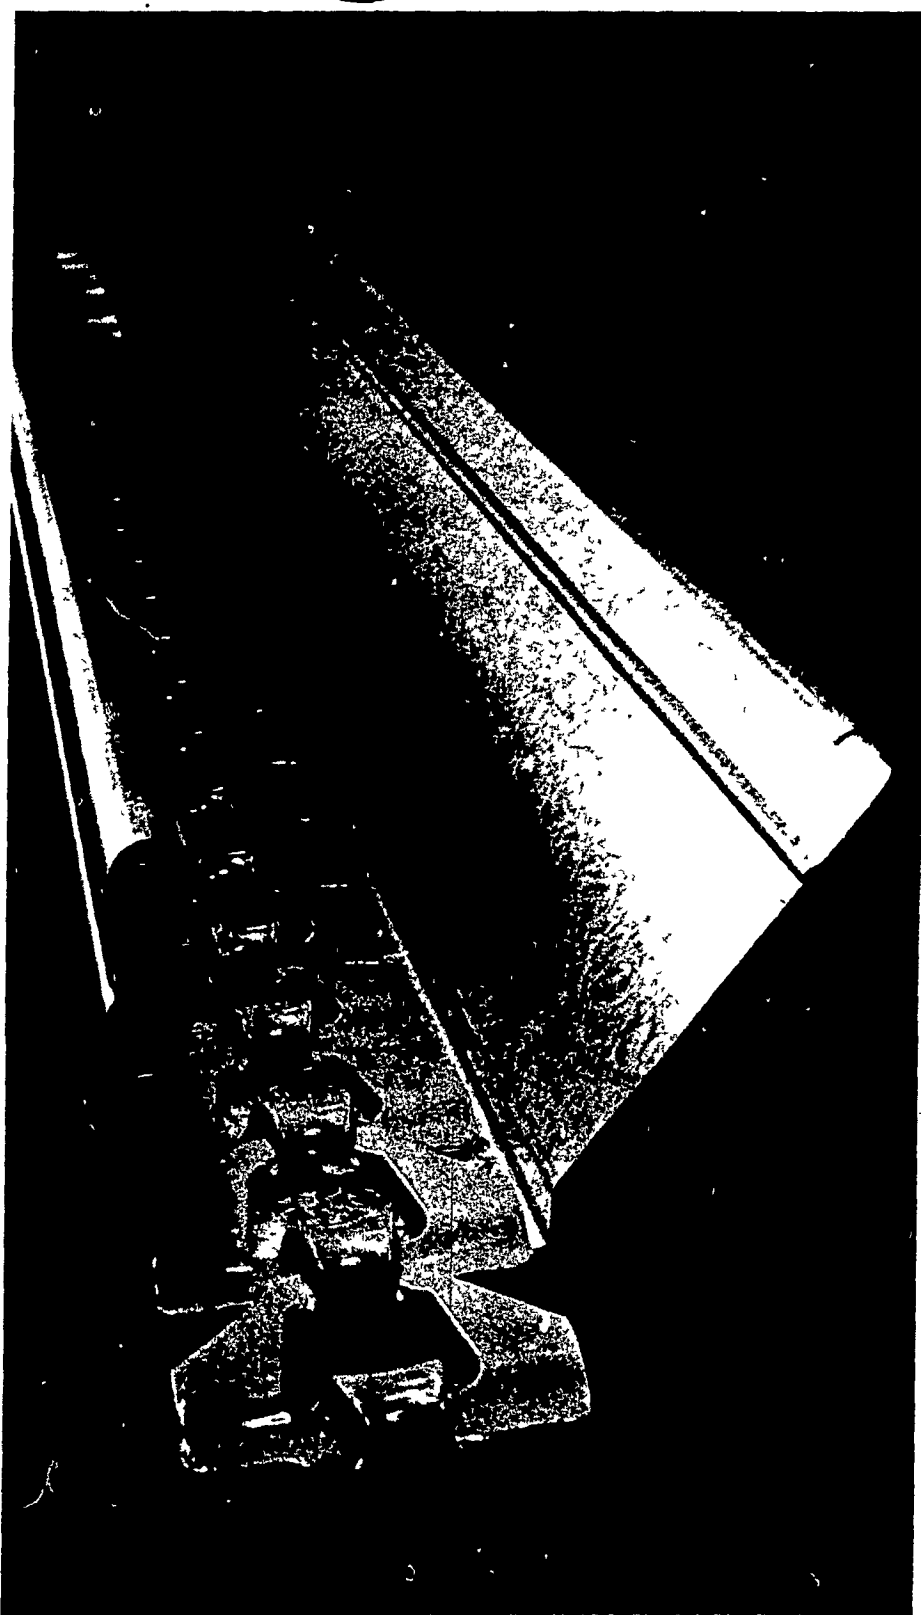

"We are looking for calls from people across the Commonwealth who witness the waste of state funds," Dwyer asserted, "no matter where and no matter how."

"And we are looking for calls from state employees to the 'Waste Line' because quite frequently they are, in the best position to see state funds being misused. These calls also will remain anonymous."

Most Commonwealth employees, Dwyer said, are honest and dedicated and those are the ones he is seeking to utilize the "Waste Line" to report instances of waste "by those few state workers more concerned about ripping off the state."

"The Pennsylvania Treasurer, Dwyer said, "is regarded as 'the watchdog' of the State Treasury. By installing our 'Waste Line' we want the people of Pennsylvania to become the 'watchdogs' for the Treasury."

A Cage isn't enough

It takes more than wire to make a cage system. More than anything else it takes a feeder.

Sure, other components are important, but mainly it's the feeder that makes the system. That's why Big Dutchman's Systems are equipped with a SPEED FEED chain feeder that feeds every bird the right amount at the right time, without waste.

When you compare poultry equipment remember that the real test of a cage system is its feeder. Big Dutchman is ready for the test.

PA 4-H'ers to attend National Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK — Five outstanding Pennsylvania 4-H members and one adult volunteer leader have been named to attend the National 4-H Conference in Washington, D.C. March 27-April 2.

Selected to participate are the following 4-H members: Darlene McConaughy, of R1, Smicksburg; Tammy Trithart, of R3 Reynoldsville; Marcia Minor, of R2, Washington; Lisa Dobrosky, of R2, Glen Rock; and Marybeth Cline of R1, Monongahela.

The adult volunteer leader named to attend the conference is Sara Eisenhart, of R1, Thomasville.

"The six were named to attend the event on the basis of their interest and participation in local, regional and statewide 4-H activities," says Cynthia Kauffman, 4-H youth specialist at Penn State.

The conference, with

headquarters at the National 4-H Center, is designed to provide meaningful involvement among youth, volunteers, and professional staff in 4-H program development at the national level. Theme of this year's conference is "4-H Pathways to the Future."

The delegates will have an opportunity to concentrate their efforts in consulting groups stressing programs in agricultural production and marketing, leadership development, international programs, and helping 4-H members better explore jobs and careers.

Teenage 4-H members, adult volunteer leaders, and Extension staff members from 46 states, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and the District of Columbia will be delegates. They will represent about 5 million members and nearly 600,000 adult 4-H volunteer leaders across the nation.

A special highlight for the Pennsylvania delegation will be a special session with area federal lawmakers.

Darlene McConaughy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde McConaughy, Jr., has been a 4-H member for nine years. She is a student at Penn State.

A member of five Indiana County 4-H clubs, she served as president, vice president, secretary, news reporter, song leader, game leader, and teen leader.

Darlene was selected to attend National 4-H Congress, National Commodity Marketing Symposium, and North American Livestock Exposition.

She was Pennsylvania and National Southdown Queen; Outstanding Pennsylvania Livestock Producer; Indiana County Outstanding 4-H Member; and Olmstead Jersey Achievement Award winner.

Tammy Trithart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Trithart, has been a 4-H member for four years. She is a high school junior.

A member of the Henderson 4-H Club, Tammy served as teen leader, news reporter, treasurer, and song leader.

She participated in the Regional 4-H Dress Revue, District 4-H Camp, State 4-H Achievement Days, local 4-H roundup, and achievement night.

Institute seeking recipes

KENNETT SQUARE — In an effort to inspire increased use of mushrooms, the Social Committee for the American Mushroom Institute's 3rd North American Mushroom Conference is compiling a mushroom cookbook.

"This will be a unique cookbook containing a collection of recipes submitted by mushroom lovers from all over the world," said Mary Ciarrocchi, co-chairperson of the committee. "We think that it will be a great advertisement for mushrooms."

The cookbook will be as complete as possible, including recipes that use mushrooms in as many ways as possible - from raw mushrooms to mushrooms used in desserts. The cookbook will also include mushroom nutritional values, low calorie ways to use mushrooms, and a "primer" dealing with the best methods for preparing, cooking, storing, freezing and serving mushrooms.

The committee welcomes recipe submissions from all mushroom lovers. Send recipes to Alma Ragler, c/o AMI, P.O. Box 373, Kennett Square, Pa. 19348. Include your name and address so that credit can be given to you in the cookbook. The deadline for recipe submissions is May 15, 1982.

The committee will introduce the cookbook at the 3rd North American Mushroom Conference in Philadelphia, August 8-11. This conference is the most important yearly mushroom industry event. After the conference, the committee hopes to make the cookbook available locally and through the mail.

Update on the poultry industry

By Herb Jordan

Penn State Extension Poultry Specialist

The market for dried poultry manure as fertilizer is active with moderate trading. Most of this organic fertilizer is purchased by crop farmers for prices ranging from a few dollars per ton to $40 per ton bulk.

This material replaces 12 million dollars worth of commercial fertilizer in Pennsylvania each year. Poultry or rabbit manure, retail in bags, may bring prices of 4 to 39 cents a pound.

Twenty years ago the first nation-wide survey was run on marketing poultry manure here at Penn State. At that time the high water content made this product unsaleable due to undesirable anaerobic bacteria causing low value and high odor.

The survey showed some producers dried manure in the poultry house using ambient air movement as it was produced, then sold it for prices ranging up to $20 a ton. Wet manure, in contrast, could not be marketed and in fact, cost $10 a ton just to dispose of.

Research on waste conversion was begun by Glenn O. Bressler at Penn State's poultry farm in 1966 to discover how to dry manure in the poultry house.

This led to work at other universities and today most poultry houses are designed to dry manure (from 75 percent moisture to 20-50 percent moisture) as it is produced. This lowers odor content, increases fertilizer value and lowers toxic ammonia gas produced among the birds. Lowering ammonia content in air can improve growth rate, health and/or egg production enough to save poultry farmers several million dollars a year in the Pennsylvania poultry industry, which now grosses over 40 million dollars a year.

This research, field testing, and survey work has helped to convert a loss of $10 ton on 300,000 tons of dry manure to a plus or positive value of 12 million dollars a ton each year on the income side of the ledger.

Solid waste, in some cases, can be converted and used as an asset instead of a liability. This one project now saves Pennsylvania poultry producers an estimated 15 million dollars each year. The survey, research and field testing was done in chemical, biological, physical and aesthetic methods of waste conversion. The goal is to develop a method of waste conversion that can be done in-line with normal production systems.

The important points in this checklist of waste conversion research and development is proper design, precise installation, judicial operation, monthly maintenance, necessary adjustment of mechanical apparatus and continuous repair as needed.

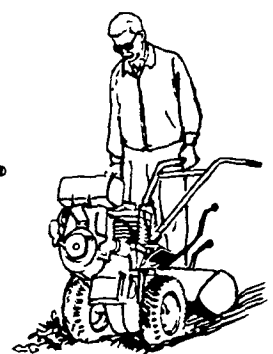

Waste conversion is a real challenge. IT IS NOT SIMPLE OR EASY; however, it can be rewarding.

Value of poultry manure is directly associated with price of commercial fertilizer as well as how it is handled and applied. Those who produce, process, store, market or purchase poultry manure must evaluate it on its plant nutrient quality as well as its value in replacing part of the commercial fertilizer at $200 to $300 per ton.

Dealers pay $8 million for Pa. furs

HARRISBURG — Fur dealers paid hunters and trappers $8,348,555.07 for furs taken in Pennsylvania during the 1980-81 marketing year, according to final figures compiled by the Game Commission.

Returns for furs were about $3 million lower than the previous year, which was the all-time high for fur buying in the state. Fewer pelts were purchased, too, with 746,295 bought in 1980-81, compared with 815,087 the preceding year.

Monetary returns to hunters and trappers for the most recent marketing year were the third best on record, having been eclipsed by the $11.3 million spent for pelts in 1979-80, and the $9.1 million figure of 1978-79.

The pelts purchased last year constituted the fifth largest number ever harvested. Declining fur prices are mainly responsible for the lower harvest and market value figures.

Declines were recorded in the number of skunks, minks, opossums, raccoons, weasels and red and gray foxes taken, while increases were noted in the purchases of muskrats and beavers.

Dealers bought 226,553 raccoons from Pennsylvania hunters and trappers last year for $3,561,758.37, an average of $15.72 per pelt. Next on the value list were 343,953 muskrats, which brought a total of $2,247,079.65, an average of $6.53 each.

The 25,517 red foxes bought in the Keystone State last year returned $1,113,904.03 to trappers and hunters, an average of $43.65 per pelt. This was the lowest-priced pelt sold last year.

Following were 24,369 gray foxes, which dealers bought for $907,505.48, an average of $36.35 each.

Other major items in the sale of furs were 105,182 opossums bought for $224,952.68, an average of $2.14 per hide, 7,348 beavers which sold for $163,056.49, an average of $22.19 per pelt, 5,657 minks which brought $119,353.63, an average of $21.10 each, 6,251 skunks purchased for $10,511.27, an average of $1.68 per skin, and 865 weasels, which returned $433.47, or 50 cents each.

The figures represent only furs harvested in Pennsylvania by hunters and trappers and bought by Pennsylvania licensed raw fur dealers. Furs shipped or transported out of state by the trapper and/or hunter or held for his or her own use are not included in the tabulation.

It is to be emphasized that the tabulations are for furs that were taken from November 1980, through March 1981, and purchased during the 1980-81 marketing year. The tabulations do not include any furs marketed during the current furtaking seasons.

AT LAST... A PROTECTIVE COATING THAT'S INDESTRUCTIBLE!

Why be tied to a paint can every two or three years, when you can coat a surface once and forget it for years?

We are pleased to announce that we are the Authorized Dealer for POXY COAT products in this area. This indestructible coating gives lasting waterproof protection and solves maintenance problems beautifully.

Unlike ordinary paints or other epoxy coatings, POXY COAT needs no baking, mixing or measuring of the two part components. Now you can enhance and protect floors, walls, equipment and any wood, metal or masonry surface.

Space age, new POXY COAT covers surfaces with a gloss in six glowing colors plus black, white and clear. The gloss stays hard, free of scuffs and scratches even in high traffic areas. The acid resistant properties of POXY COAT can withstand just about anything in today's corrosive atmosphere. All exterior and interior surfaces can be beautified and protected for a minimum of ten years when used in accordance with instructions. That is GUARANTEED IN WRITING!

POXY COAT is manufactured to rigidly controlled specifications, designed to produce a long life and trouble-free finish for roofs in industry, farm and home structures. This unique coating forms a film of high water resistance, abrasion resistance, exceptional durability and gives an insulation factor of between 15% 20% on surfaces. POXY COAT's finish enables it to withstand climatic variations, continued batterings of strong winds and the rigors of sun and rain.

WHAT DOES IT COST? It's cheaper than paint. One coat is all that's needed yet it lasts three times longer and covers up to three times more surface than paint.

It's hard to believe, but we are so convinced of the excellent results you will obtain with POXY COAT that for those who like to "try before they buy" we have arranged to supply you with a FREE SAMPLE.

Contact us now. Our samples are limited. DON'T BE TIED TO A PAINT CAN — COAT ONCE AND FORGET IT FOR YEARS!

Conrad Weiser FFA unveils Keystone plaques

BY LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Staff Correspondent

ROBESONIA — A year full of activities were highlighted March 11 for members of the Conrad Weiser FFA as they gathered with their friends and relatives during their annual banquet held at the high school.

Among the many awards presented during the evening was the unveiling of two large wall plaques honoring all the Keystone Farmer Degree recipients of the chapter, starting with the first recipient, Roland Feeg, Womelsdorf. Feeg received his Keystone degree in 1959.

The plaques were designed and constructed by members of the Conrad Weiser Alumni Association and presented to the chapter by J. Hershey Myer Jr., alumni president. The plaques feature a senior picture of each recipient as well as a list of his or her accomplishments. The plaques will be hung in the Vo-Ag Department of the high school. Donald Feeg, David Schaeffer, Sinking Springs; and Kevin Satzahn, Womelsdorf, were the primary builders and designers.

Slide presentations were given by chapter members of the many activities of the chapter, including livestock and produce shows, participation at various fairs, contests, and conferences, cider making, sales, convention, fund raisers and community involvement. It was noted that Conrad Weiser was rated fourth in Pennsylvania for chapter activities.

Frank Hess, high school math teacher, also presented a slide show. Hess showed slides of the landscape within the school district as seen from his airplane. Guest speaker was Jeff Stoltzfus, State FFA regional Vice-president. Stoltzfus spoke on the power of positive thinking, reminding the many FFA members present that a "can't get there from here attitude" can keep a person from getting anywhere. "From where you are now, you can get anywhere," he stated.

Receiving the most coveted awards of the evening were the chapter star recipients. Star Chapter Greenhand was Paul Marks, Wernersville. Star Chapter Farmer was Brian Schaeffer, Sinking Springs; and Star Chapter Agribusinessman was Andy Hess, Robesonia.

Scott Troutman, Myerstown received the Dekalb award for the most outstanding vocational agricultural student. Craig Kerchner, Wernersville, was presented with the scholarship award for having the highest grade point average. Leadership was awarded

Don't burn treated wood

LANCASTER — People who burn "treated" wood in their fireplaces or wood stoves are risking smoke-filled homes and possibly their lives, says a University of Maryland forestry specialist.

Most treated woods burn well for long periods of time but they may also be highly toxic when burned in a home, according to John F. Kundt, specialist for the Maryland

Cooperative Extension Service.

Scrapped railway ties, for example, have been treated with a wood preservative called PCP — pentachlorophenol — to prevent their deterioration in a variety of weather conditions. But burning them releases substantial amounts of dioxin, a chemical compound that is "extremely poisonous, even in small amounts," Kundt said. In addition, dioxin is considered a carcinogen, he said.

Wood treated with creosote, on the other hand, does not produce toxic fumes when burned, he added.

However, it produces dark, thick smoke that can damage furniture, and rooms, he said.

"The smoke also may make people ill," he said.

Other types of treated wood include those cured with a form of salt called "copper chromate arsenate," a highly toxic substance when released in smoke burning wood, Kundt said.

They turn old trunks into treasured chests

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

LITTLESTOWN — "People have really responded favorably to what we're doing here. I think they've had it with antique shops that look like warehouses."

That's how Mary Lou Koons, proprietor of Koon's Barn in Littlestown, feels about her business venture of converting an old bank barn into an antique buyer's delight.

As Mary Lou points out, she and her husband Jim are proving that you can start a business with limited capital investment if you are willing to be creative and you really enjoy doing it.

Mary Lou related that Koon's Barn really grew out of a hobby. She and her husband Jim are adept at restoring old houses. She pointed out that restoring means returning them to their original state and not simply remodeling them. So, it seemed very natural for them when they purchased their present property to restore their home, out-buildings, and barn.

Mary Lou had several years experience in retailing and after the birth of their children, decided to stay home, but still had the desire to use her past experience. So, when restoring the barn, she hit upon the idea of turning it into a country antique and handcraft shop. That way she could take advantage of her past marketing skills and still pursue her artistic endeavors in a location that would be close to her family.

The renovations to the barn were done completely by the Koons themselves. They included cleaning and scrubbing the entire barn, repointing the field stone, repairing the remaining horsehair plaster, and then carefully creating a rustic atmosphere which includes an exposed beam ceiling and even the use of the original hayracks. However, they were careful not to go too far; clean but authentic.

Both Jim and Mary Lou have Koon's Barn is located on Rt. 194 just south of Littlestown. The barn, built around 1880, now houses the antiques and creative endeavors of Mary Lou and Jim Koons plus other local craftsmen. The Koons specialize in antique trunks.

capitalized on their individual talents throughout their undertaking. Mary Lou is a self-taught artist who travels through four states to exhibit her work. Jim, a supervisor at Hanover Brands, Inc., learned chair caning and refinishing as a child from his father. Combining their talents has been their biggest asset along with their willingness to attempt just about any restoration project. In regards to their work on the barn, Mary Lou chuckles, "If you don't have the dollars, you can become real resourceful."

While one can admire artistically arranged antiques and handcrafts of every description on the lower level of the barn, of particular interest are the antique trunks on display. The Koons specialize in restoring old trunks and have a selection of more than 20 which include camel backs, steamers, and Jenny Linds.

One trunk on display is a Jenny

(Turn to Page B35)

Mary Lou displays the inside of a restored trunk. The trunks, originally used as suitcases, contained a tray called a "till" and also a divided compartment on the till which was the "bonnet box." The Koons use pressed tin, latis work, and hardware to restore the trunks.

Mary Lou has converted their old smoke house into her artist studio. Her work has won several ribbons and is displayed at various shows in a four state region.

Blair honors junior Holstein members

BY PATTY GROSS
Staff Correspondent

WILLIAMSBURG — More than 100 farmers and their families gathered recently at the Williamsburg Elementary School for business and pleasure during the annual meeting of the Blair County Holstein Club.

The large attendance prompted the leadership to remind the 154 members that they are looking to boost their membership to 172 this year.

A trio of new directors was chosen during the lengthy evening program. Mike Hoover of R.D.1, Tyrone, Dean Stern of R.D.1, Roaring Spring, and Glenn Over of R.D.1, Williamsburg, join six other county Holstein farmers on the board of directors.

Award presentation to the younger dairy farmers in Blair County dominated the business meeting, as the dairy club paid tribute to its junior members. Plaques were presented in the milk and butterfat contest.

In the 2-year-old category, first place went to Ken Hoover with an average of 745 pounds of fat. Cindy Hoover was honored in second place for high butterfat production. Cindy was also recognized for her Holstein's more than 21,000 pounds of milk. Second highest milk production was Brian Kelly.

In the 3-year-old category, John

Lind that was made circa 1850. While restoring the trunk, Mary Lou discovered that the inside had been wallpapered with a newspaper dated 1877 which contained an article about Buffalo Bill and advertisements for the costumes of the day. Mary Lou restored the outside of the trunk, but left the newspaper lining intact. The Koons can restore trunks to works of art and they also have replacement parts available.

Also on display on the lower level are Mary Lou's paintings of owls and woodland critters along with a variety of crafts by other local artists. These include wrought iron work in the blacksmith corner, handbraided wool rugs, stoneware, handmade dolls and toys, plus maple cutting boards. Of special interest for the Easter season are twine baskets that were created by a retired Adams County farmer.

The baskets are perfect for spring arrangements or for Easter "odds." Mary Lou feels that crafts are becoming more popular at the shop. She feels that they are tomorrow's collectables since as she states, "Crafts attract people because they can buy a quality item that was made with personal care."

The old hay mow of the barn now features antiques that are in the "rough" stage for those who enjoy doing their own refinishing work. Mary Lou cautions that while refinishing pieces may be fine, buying antiques at auctions can prove to be a costly mistake. She explained, "You shouldn't buy an antique at an auction. In this area dealers from the metropolitan areas come in and run up the prices. They know they can charge inflationary prices in their shops and get it. So, that means you must know the realistic value of what you're bidding on."

Mary Lou feels that more people are now realizing the investment quality of good antiques. She sees a tremendous interest in primitive and rural furniture. But, she points out that when considering starting a collection, it's best to follow your own interest.

Though Koony's Barn has only been in operation since May 1981, the Koons are already considering expanding into an adjoining wagonshed. This new area would be the "tool shed" and would display a large selection of primitive hand tools.

Koony's Barn is located just south of Littlestown on Route 194. It is open Wednesday through Saturday 10 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sundays from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Several Blair Co. junior Holstein members were honored recently for their accomplishments in the milk and butterfat production contest. From bottom left clockwise the group includes: Blair Co. Dairy Princess Betsy Stitt; Ken Debolt; Brian Kelly; Ken Hoover; John Burket; Susanne Kelly.

Barbara Woods fights for family farms

Bt Beth Henninger
Staff Correspondent

FANNETSBURG, — Barbara Woods, farm wife and mother, isn't willing to let the world pass her by at the Woods' farm huddled in the peaceful hills of Path Valley, Franklin County. She is a fighter and she is fighting for the farmer's future.

Barbara and her husband, Robert, along with four children, Jane, Carol, Brian and Ron, man the 530-acre farm and milk 50 to 60 head of Holsteins. They farm 350 tillable acres, raising a portion of their feed. The Woods also raise all of their own replacements for the herd.

Barbara said she never realized the farmer's plight until she became a farmer's wife and a farmer herself.

"I love and cherish life on the farm and feel it is my duty to become involved in farming organizations that work towards a better future for the farmer," Barbara declared. And, she has done just that — she has become involved in the Franklin County Extension Board, State Extension Board, Keystone Chapter of the Soil Conservation Society, Pennsylvania Holstein Association, and the Pennsylvania Farmers' Union where she spends numerous hours in her newly-elected office of vice president.

Barbara explained she became involved in the PFU six years ago through the encouragement of her husband. He has been a long-standing member in the organization, she said, so it seemed natural for her to join. She attended the organization's State convention during her first year as a member and really started to listen to their policies, their philosophies and their educational programs.

During that time at the convention and other PFU meetings, she said she realized that here was a group that could work toward the betterment of the farmer's life, but the group wasn't working together as a whole.

She said that in the 1920s when PFU first started in Franklin County, it was a strong, effective milk cooperative in the county and state. However, she added when the main group of leaders began to dwindle there was no one trained to step into their shoes and the organization's strength deteriorated.

Now once again, the Pennsylvania Farmers Union is strong, Woods observed, as members saw the need for a group to work on behalf of the farmer, state and federal governments. "They have pulled together to work for a main cause," she said.

Barbara is the first vice president of the PFU, — the very first. In February, PFU was chartered into the National Farmers Union in Washington, D.C. She is also the first woman to hold the vice president's post in the history of the national organization.

Barbara remarked, "That was my biggest thrill, accepting the charter for the group. To us it is more than a slip of paper, it means we are a group of 5,000 strong members working to better our future as farmers." She pointed out PFU could have become charter members of the national organization a year ago, but the Board of Directors wanted to make sure all their housekeeping was in order and that their 5,000 members would continue to be active.

As vice president, Barbara has attended hearings listened to lobbyists and spoke freely about concerns regarding the milk referendum. She, like the other 5,000 PFU members, is not in favor of the program. She said, "All it will do is take $9 million out of the farmer's pocket."

Barbara said she realizes there is a lack of advertising in the farming industry but feels there is a better way than generic advertising which the milk referendum is proposing.

"Brand advertising is what will increase milk sales," she said. In the sales of fluids, milk is listed in fourth place with soda, beer and coffee all ranking above. Why? Because people can identify with the brand name, the packaging and the jingles. Brand advertising is the dairyman's answer."

Along with the milk referendum, another major concern of Barbara's is saving the family farm. She said, "The problem of surpluses, shortages, marketing and high operating costs are in every area of farming, not only in milk. And it is killing the small farmer."

First of all, she said, the non-farmer has to realize the farmer doesn't create most of the problems. "The farmer doesn't control the weather so he can harvest a bumper grain crop, nor does he create the drought or enforce a national embargo creating over-abundance. And least of all does the farmer control the financial state of the nation."

"Take the milk problem for example," she said. "The dairyman didn't want millions and millions of gallons of surplus milk, but it was out of his control." She explained that every dairyman has to maintain escalating operating costs, and so refinances to keep the operation going. Next, the refinanced dairyman adds more cows to the herd to increase production and cover his added costs so the financier doesn't lose his piece of the pie."

She remarked that it is a vicious circle, but the bottom line for every farmer today is investment capital — if the farmer doesn't have it, he can't stay in business.

"Over the years the farmers have been used and abused," she said. "When the specialists said to the farmer — automate, get bigger, buy more, buy the largest equipment, the farmer did. And now many farmers are in trouble because of our financial structure and all because they listened to the specialists and can no longer finance their operations."

Barbara is fighting to keep the family farm lifestyle alive, but feels that the small farmer can no longer tighten his belt. "The farmer has given the consumer, government and market place everything they have asked for in food supplies, quality and production, but we can do only so much."

Barbara said she has not tried and true answers to all the problems of the farming community, but feels that the farmer can take it in his own hands to improve the situations and save a life style that has built this country. She, herself, has considered several ways in which the farming community can accomplish their goals and look toward a better future.

One way to keep farming alive in the U.S. is keep agriculture local, Barbara said. "If small farming businesses are taken over by conglomerates, the consumer as well as the farmer will be hurt. If conglomerated, there would be a definite increase in food costs, loss of quality, less identity in the products and created shortages."

She pointed out that we have already seen the effects of agriculture conglomerations in the fruit and vegetable industries where prices are high, there is not choice produce and there have been created shortages.

Next, she said, the farmer has to educate the consumer. "Consumers must realize that the food shelves won't always be overflowing. The farmer can only produce so much."

However, she added that the farmer has to do his part and voice opinions and problems to the consumer, marketers and government officials.

"Farmers have a habit of talking only to fellow farmers about their misfortunes and their accomplishments, but they (the farmer) have to realize that they are part of the whole scheme and have to work with the entire system."

Barbara stated, "This is the time of alliances in all sectors from education to religion and agriculture." She said everyone will have to work together in these areas to keep the rural community strong and solvent.

Barbara said she sees a bright light at the end of the tunnel. She sees more and more farmers fighting for their future in farming organizations and groups. She is also glad to see more and more women becoming involved. She declared that the farm wife and mother is a vital part of the farm family unit and can be much more mobile than her husband who has to attend to every day business on the farm.

She said she recently saw this increased interest at the Pennsylvania Holstein Association Convention where there was an equal number of men and women attending and at the milk referendum hearings where the farmer voiced opinions.

"This time it was the farmers talking because we are tired of letting the government and market place speak for us," she said.

Barbara remarked, "The farmer of today is not only fighting for himself, but for his children and their future, hoping to give them the chance to farm and enjoy the best of all lifestyles — the farming life."

Some might call Barbara Woods a "Super Woman." She keeps a tight schedule with her duties of Pennsylvania Farmers Union vice president, being a housewife and mother and helping to milk 50-60 head of Holsteins morning and evening. Here, with the help of her two sons, Brian and Ron, Barbara puts down clean bedding for the cows.

PSEF funds $60,000 in ag research projects

HARRISBURG—Last Tuesday, Gov. Dick Thornburgh announced over $60,000 in grants from the Pennsylvania Science and Engineering Foundation have been awarded to Lehigh University and Dickinson College for research projects which may lead to improved crop production in the agricultural industry in Pennsylvania.

A $56,755 PSEF grant was awarded to Lehigh to fund basic research aimed at increasing crop yields through the development of a process to commercially manufacture large quantities of crop-enhancing soil microorganisms.

In addition, a 5,000 PSEF grant was awarded for a cooperative research project between Dickinson, Lehigh, the Organic Gardening and Farming Research Center and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to isolate and identify naturally occurring insect repellents which are found in some common plants.

"These two grants emphasize this administration's commitment to developing new, scientific capabilities to improve the quality of life for all Pennsylvanians while, at the same time, planting the seeds which may grow into new employment opportunities for our state's working men and women," Thornburgh said. "In addition, these efforts may lead to important new methods which will help Pennsylvania's family farm operations—one of our state's most important industries."

The Lehigh University project involves the study of microorganisms which contribute to the growth of plants in low-phosphorous soils, increase water stress resistance, improve soil binding and improve disease resistance. If successful, the use of such microorganisms could result in less need for phosphate fertilizer, less need for irrigation, less soil erosion and more reliable crop yield.

The second grant, to be used in a cooperative research project, involves identification of naturally occurring insect repellents which are found in some common plants. If successful, the project could lead to the development of new commercial insect repellents, which, being naturally accruing, should be biodegradable and better and safer than current commercial pesticides.

"If successful, these research projects could lead to new economic opportunities for Pennsylvania which could cushion work force against the 'boom or bust' employment cycles of our traditional manufacturing base in the years to come," Thornburgh said.

Md. tobacco producers vote "no"

WASHINGTON, D.C. — By Majority vote, Maryland tobacco producers have decided to end mandatory USDA inspection of their product.

J.T. Bunn, a tobacco official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said preliminary results of a referendum conducted by mail Feb. 8-12 showed 1,263, or about 84 percent of producers opposed official inspection and 242, or 16 percent, favored it.

The vote effectively ends designation of four tobacco markets in Maryland — Hughesville, LaPlata, Upper Marlboro and Waldorf — as official tobacco auction markets under the Tobacco Inspection Act of 1935. The market's were so designated May 17, 1948, under the act, which requires tobacco sold at auction to be officially inspected and graded for quality.

"This vote in favor of terminating the designation of Maryland markets means there will be no federal grading for the coming and future marketing seasons," Bunn said. Federal grading is required for a product that is protected by price support. However, Maryland producers also have voted to decline price support for their product in each referendum conducted since 1965.

The referendum was conducted by mail for those producers of Maryland. Type 32 tobacco who sell their product at auction in Maryland. These growers had been receiving free, mandatory grading services from USDA. Under the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981, however, user fees have been charged since Oct. 1, 1981, for federal inspection and grading services, at the current rate of $.0045 per pound of tobacco sold at auction.

Burket was announced as a first place winner in both the milk and butterfat contest—more than 21,000 pounds of milk and nearly 800 pounds of butterfat. Second highest awards went to Ken DeBolt in the butterfat group and John Black, who had the second highest milk yield.

Brian Kelly rated highest in the 4-year-old group with nearly 22,000 pounds and a little less than 1,000 pounds of butterfat. Close behind were John Black and John Burket.

Brother and sister, Brian and Susanne Kelly of Sinking Valley, dominated the age cow awards. In butterfat, Brian was first and Susanne received the second place with 985 pounds and 967 pounds, respectively. One of Susanne's Holsteins placed above the rest with 26,885 pounds of milk. Following Susanne was John Burket, with 23,700 pounds of milk.

Blair County Dairy Princess, Betsy Stitt of Henrietta, was honored as the Distinguished Junior Girl in the Senior Division. Brian Kelly of Sinking Valley was chosen for his accomplishments as the Distinguished Junior Boy.

The Blair County organization also noted that Susanne Kelly, 14, of Sinking Valley was recently named the winner in the Junior Division of the State Holstein

The satisfaction that comes from doing a good job of farming

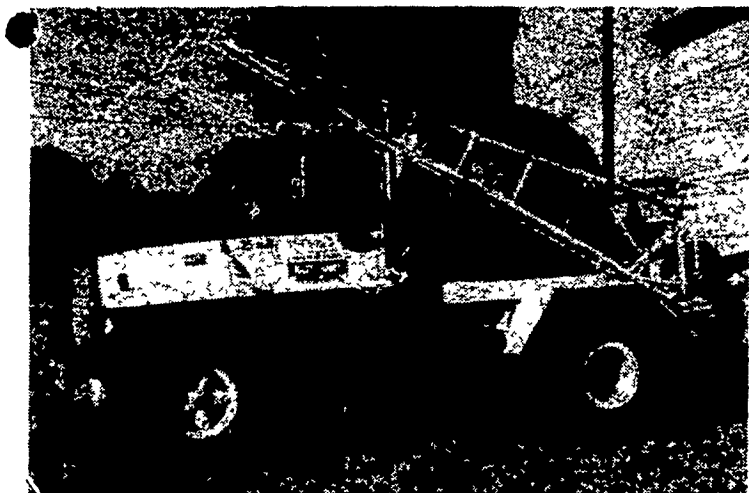

Liming is one of the most important factors in keeping your soil in the highest productive range. By raising the pH from a level below 6.0 to 6.5 or higher, you can expect to harvest as much as 5 more bushels of corn per acre, with similar increases for all other forage and cash crops.

Association's Distinguished Junior Member Contest at the State Convention.

Following the awards, election of directors and the evening meal the large crowd was treated to "A Trip to China with President Carter." Huntingdon County dairyman Wayne Harpster shared a vivid slide show with his Blair County neighbors. Harpster narrated slides, which he took while traveling as a guest of Jimmy Carter this past fall.

Pork producers to study energy

LANCASTER — Increasing energy efficiency in farm buildings will be the major topic at the upcoming "Progressive Pork Producers" meeting. Principles discussed at the meeting will also apply to other insulated buildings where heat is added in winter and where cooling is desired in summer for temperature and humidity control.

While the program is oriented toward pork producers, other people such as veal growers, broiler and starter pullet producers may also be interested in attending.

The program is being conducted by the Penn State Extension Service, and will be held Thursday, March 25 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For a copy of the program and pre-registration form, contact the Lancaster Extension Office (717-394-6851). Cost to growers is $20.00. Registrations will also be accepted at the door.

DEKALB Farmers Win In Pennsylvania

DEKALB hybrids swept Pennsylvania in the 1981 National Corn Growers Association's Corn Yield Contest. In fact, eight out of the top ten Pennsylvania entries were DEKALB. Farmers who plant DEKALB hybrids haul home more corn. They're winners every harvest.

XL-61

First Place: Pennsylvania, Class A Non-Irrigated. Michael D. Wright of New Freedom hauled home a big 196.18 bushels per acre with XL-61. DEKALB XL-61 does more than come through with consistent, big yields. It starts fast, stands strong and has very good resistance to most foliar and stalk diseases.

XL-57

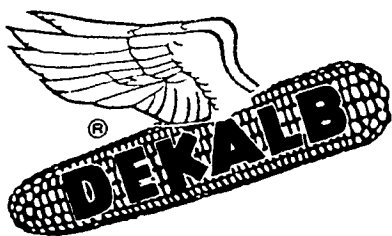

Second Place: Pennsylvania, Class A Non-Irrigated. Banner Farms in Stewartstown harvested 175.06 bushel per acre with DEKALB XL-57.

XL-71

Third Place: Pennsylvania, Class A Non-Irrigated. Jeffery Mitchell of Honey Brook harvested 172.70 bushels per acre with XL-71. DEKALB XL-71 is Pennsylvania's choice for outstanding yields plus broad-spectrum disease resistance. Goes most anywhere and comes through with top yields.

XL-55a

Fourth Place: Pennsylvania, Class A Non-Irrigated. Lapp Brothers of Cochranville harvested 171.85 bushels per acre with DEKALB XL-55a.

Be a winner. Plant DEKALB. See your DEKALB dealer today for the DEKALB hybrids best suited to your farm.

WAYNE' PUPPYOs' THE PROFESSIONAL DOG FOOD THAT STARTS THEM OFF ON THE RIGHT PAW.

Like any baby, a puppy needs lots of tender loving care.

And when it comes to feeding him right, the professionals at Wayne have just the formula.

Wayne-PuppyOs. It's the perfect puppy food because the special O shape was made with the puppy in mind. The milky coating becomes a rich source of good nutrition and makes PuppyOs more palatable than dog foods made for adults.

And the high protein formula is fortified with all the vitamins and minerals known to be essential for a puppy's proper growth during his first year. In fact, you don't even need vitamin supplements.

What's more, with 28% protein and 9% fat, PuppyOs not only helps puppies keep their coats nice and shiny but also helps them gain weight 14% faster than littermates fed an adult dog food.

Wayne PuppyOs. The professional way to take good care of puppies.

Wayne: THE ALL-PRO LINE.

JOHN DEERE

HEADQUARTERS FOR ALL YOUR FARM EQUIPMENT NEEDS

For emergency parts service count on

FLASH

Farming isn't a 9 to 5 business. That's why John Deere developed the FLASH-PLUS after-hours parts system to get emergency parts to you quickly, whenever you need them. You can depend on FLASH-PLUS and us to keep your equipment in the field.

Depend on us for service after the sale

We're dedicated to providing good service as long as you own your John Deere equipment. For quality parts, modern shop facilities, expert service, know-how, count on us. We stand behind what we sell.

215 Level-Action™ Disks

Simple adjustments and tough bearings make these disks "simply tough"

A leveling crank helps you disk without a center ridge or valley. Dura-Flex™ bearings lock dirt out and are backed by a 2-year warranty. And you can set the unique combination scrapers for soil types from sandy to gumbo.

Working widths range from 11 feet 5 inches to 15 feet 8 inches. Weight ranges from 75 to 100 pounds per blade.

Shorten refill stops by equipping your 7000 Max-Emerge™ Planter with Quik-Fill™ attachments for liquid or dry fertilizer

Getting good stands is important. That's why Max-Emerge Planters feature up-close gauge wheels, Tru-Vee™ openers, and angled firming wheels to help you get better germination and emergence.

But completing planting on time can be important too, especially if you're carrying dry or liquid fertilizer. A Quik-Fill attachment for dry fertilizer makes refilling easier and less time-consuming, especially important when you're striving for maximum yields. Quik-Fill is standard equipment with the liquid fertilizer attachment. Come in and visit about Quik-Fill attachments and all of the other attachments in the Max-Emerge Planter line that can help you do a better, quicker job of planting.

Think John Deere Financing, designed specially for your equipment needs

We back you with both farm equipment and farm equipment financing—to fit your cash-flow situation—to meet your special goals. With JDFF, you'll find more options than are generally available. Depend on us all the way—and save other lines of financing for other needs.

Come in and check out
John Deere's new leasing plan.

The Management of Oxford Greenline would like to thank you for your patronage throughout the year. As the farm industry continues to grow and change, our management looks forward to changing to meet those needs. We invite you to stop and discuss your needs for the coming year with us.

The Hedlund Basin agitator has all controls at your fingertips. Multiple spool valve assembly with four independent hydraulic functions.

The four inch agitating nozzle is veined to concentrate and control the discharge blast. Nozzle is hydraulically controlled with operating radius of 110° horizontal and 60° vertical using flexible reinforced 6" rib hose.

Big 25 inch impeller operates at 540 R.P.M. Uses 6 large forward sweep blades. Disintegrator bar extends from the impeller breaking up manure solids, offering a greater non-restricted flow into the pump. The Basin agitator pump comes in 24 and 30 ft. lengths.

STANDARD EQUIPMENT FEATURES

on the Rhino Flex 90B Disc

Narrow Transport Width. All models of the Flex 90B will pass easily through a 12' gate. This narrow transport width and better balance is achieved by folding the wings up and over the center section a full 15".
Narrow lanes and bridges should no longer be a problem when transporting the RHINO
90B

Guaranteed Quad-raseal Bearings. The unique Rhino double-row tapered roller bearing is guaranteed for two years and provides greater life and dependability than competitive bearings.
The Quadraseal double row tapered roller bearings offer more capacity than single row ball
bearings

Wing Flotation. Rhino Flex 90B wings are hinged so that they provide uniform weight distribution and flex freely to follow the ground contour for uniform plowing. For better side-to-side leveling, the wing hinges are mounted 16" inside the center section to give a more parallel flexing action between center section and wing disc blades

Wheel Flotation. RHINO engineers have placed the wheels on the 90B so that there is excellent balance and stability. There is no compromise required because there is no torque tube. Wheel flotation allows the disc to follow the ground contour and remain at the precise depth required. This ability to remain at a constant plowing depth enables you to do an excellent job of chemical incorporation and seedbed preparation regardless of soil conditions or terrain

Spring Bearing Hangers reduce shockloads to the blade, axles, bearings and frame when working in fields with rocks or stumps. The Rhino 1"x2"
spring bearing hangers provide maximum strength, add protection, and reduce downtime expenses. The Rhino Quadraseal gang bearings are trunnion mounted to the spring bearing hangers to allow the gangs to flex freely without undue stress being placed on the gang axle.

Tapered Discs/Cover
Discs. Three disc blades of step-down pattern from 22" to 20" to 18" and the 16" cover disc, on the rear gangs, gives you a smooth, level, ridge-free job. Another RHINO advantage
It's all standard equipment

Uni-Loader . . . for power-in-hand command

Uni-Loader design eliminates pedal controls. Helps dairymen get their scraping, lifting, dumping and other backbreaking chores done faster and easier, without unnecessary "steps" to coordinate foot and hand movements. Two hand levers control everything — power, speed, direction, loader and bucket functions.

Other productive advantages include hydrostatic 4-wheel drive for smooth going with infinitely variable control. 360° turn capability for getting in and out of pens, out-buildings and other tight spots with ease. Quick parts and service — with dealer access to the Case nationwide network of computer-linked parts depots.

John Deere's Max-Emerge™ conservation planter available in 4 row adjustable (30- to 40-inch rows) 6-row narrow or wide and 8-row narrow models gives you a rugged planter you can rely on in conditions like sod or stubble. Heavy-duty springs help transfer weight from the 7 x 7-inch frame to each planting unit to keep coulters in the ground. The coulter fluted or ripple cuts a path ahead of the Tru-Vee™ opener with the cutting depth of both controlled by the depth-gauging wheels. Optional cast-iron firming wheels firm soil around seed in extra-tough conditions.

The Vicon KM-240 cuts and conditions the tallest, tangled, wettest, heaviest, hay. This new mower-conditioner eliminates a pick-up reel, so you can put up more hay - FASTER. With a working width of 7'10", it can mow twice as much area in a day as most competitive models. Most competitors use a pick-up reel, which limits ground speed, adds maintenance problems and allows leaf loss.

The Vicon six-disc cutter bar feeds your crop directly, stem first, into rubber rollers that condition green hay or wet grass. It dries faster and bales easier, saving time and labor.

The KM-240 has no chains, no belts, no sickle bar.
If you need only a mower, look at the Vicon CM-165
(4 discs-5 1/2' working width) or the CM-240 6 discs-7'10" working width). Both make clean cuts in heavy grass or tangled crops.

GUNITE Silo Relining & Repairs

Extensive tests have been conducted on Gunite. Below are some of the properties of Gunite

1. Excellent bonding
2. High Density
3. Extreme strength and hardness
4. High resistance to absorption

The excellent physical properties of the material are due to the water content being only the amount needed to satisfy chemical hydration

Reseal and re-strengthen your silo with Gunite.

Cumberland 4-H'ers wrap of winning year

BY BETH HEMMINGER
Staff Correspondent

CARLISLE — Another year has rolled around for the Cumberland County 4-H Dairy Calf Club and for eleven members Monday evening was their first Dairy Club Awards Banquet. For others, this twenty-sixth banquet was an annual event looked forward to each year.

For one first-year club member, it will be an evening to remember. Stacy Cornman was presented the Outstanding First Year Dairy Member Award by Raymond Shoemaker of Eastern Milk Producers.

Outstanding First-Year Dairy Member honorable mentions were presented to Darlene Coover and Robert Smith. These three members were selected for the awards based on their showmanship records, attendance at meetings and project scores.

John Stamy, IV, was presented the overall award of Outstanding Dairy Member for 1981. John Weaner of the Farm Credit Association of York presented the award. John was selected by his scores and records and other accomplishments in the club. He was the 1981 County Club president and was reelected for his second term for 1982. John has received numerous championship awards at County, District and State shows. And, during the 1981 Roundup he retired the Honorary Showmanship Plaque, winning it for two consecutive years. He is only a fifth year member in the club.

The Cumberland County Dairy Bowl team members, Mike Dyarman, Becky Dyarman, Daniel Mains and Scott Zinn were honored at the banquet for their outstanding achievement at the 4-H State Day competition. The team placed first in the state which then enabled them to attend the National Dairy Bowl competition in Louisville, Ky. representing the County and the Pennsylvania Dairy Industry.

The 4-H Dairy Calf Club leaders were also honored at the meeting. Merle Miller was presented a silver bowl by the club members as token of their appreciation for his twenty-five years of hard work, dedication and service to the Cumberland County Club. Ten-year leaders Ellen Cornman, Creedin Cornman, Mark Naugle and John Ocker, III, were also acknowledged for the many years of service to the Club.

Andy Rull, a Cumberland County 4-H member and FFA member

was the guest speaker for the evening. He spoke about his previous summer's activities, attending the Pennsylvania Farmers Cooperative Summer Institute and the American Institute of Cooperatives.

"Both Institutes were learning experiences for me," he said, adding that every young person should take the opportunity to attend a Cooperative meeting and learn more about cooperative business and how it operates. "Cooperatives are a vital part of the world's economic structure and we, the young farmers must become involved and learn more about the system. The Cooperative Institutes are a very good way to learn."

After hearing about these programs, he said that many of his peers want to know how to become involved. He said the answer is very simple — make the plans or set the goal to go.

"Everyone has a handful of seeds that is the future and if you throw the seeds to the wind, they won't grow but will just scatter here and there. But, every 4-H'er here tonight should take these seeds and plant them carefully so your goals, dreams and aspirations will grow."

Vicki Basehore, Cumberland County Dairy Princess challenged all 4-H members and adults to become involved in the promotion of the "REAL" dairy products. She encouraged the youth to become involved in the Cooperative activities to participate in judging contests and showing events.

Duane Duncan, Cumberland

County agent, reviewed the 4-H Dairy Club activities of the past year. He said that 1981 was a "good year" for the Cumberland County 4-H Dairy Calf club citing a fitting and grooming workshop, County Roundup at the Carlisle Fair, the District Show in 1981, and activities in promoting milk through displays, exhibits and supporting the Dairy Princess.

The newly elected officers for 1982 are as follows. President John Stamy, IV; Vice President Tony Hock; Secretary Carla Basehore; Treasurer Michelle Cornman; news reporters, Neil Stamy and Christine Young; and social chairmen, Stacy Cornman and Jett McCullough.

Stacy Cornman, Outstanding First Year Member, receives her award from Eastern Milk Producers Representative, Raymond Shoemaker. She received the award based on her records, scores and merit.

John Weaner, Farm Credit Association of York, presents the Outstanding Dairy Member award to John Stamy IV, for his fine accomplishments during his five years as a member in the county Dairy Club. John Stamy was presented the award at the Annual Cumberland County 4-H Dairy Calf Club Banquet.

In 1980 inflation — as measured by the Consumer Price Index — was almost 11%. In 1980 and 1981 combined inflation reached almost 20%. Labor and materials in a Morton Building advanced in price as inflation rose. Yet we are offering this Morton Building at the same price level advertised in this magazine two years ago — a rollback to March 1980 prices. The building is identical in size and includes the same doors and skylights. But our 1982 building also includes improvements made in the past two years. This has got to be the best

Eastern investigates quality bonus

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative is undertaking a feasibility study with Leprino Foods which may result in quality premium bonuses for Eastern members in the supply area serving the mozzarella cheese plants at Waverly, PA and Horseheads, N.Y.

Both organizations have been discussing the option for some months, but at its February 26th meeting Eastern's Board of Directors made a definite move to accelerate development of a quality milk "bonus program."

The Board advised Eastern management to "undertake a feasibility study with Leprino Foods Co. and other major companies to develop a premium program based upon improved cheese, yields through improved quality and composition of the raw milk supply."

Many people believe that poor quality raw milk, when unfit for other manufactured uses, can be used without harm in manufacturing cheese. The logic of this thinking seems simple: Bacteria is necessary to make cheese, so poor quality raw milk makes no difference. Cheese manufacturers who have carefully studied the chemistry of milk, however, have come to realize high quality raw milk results in higher yields of quality natural cheese. These cheese companies are sometimes interested in passing a bonus to farmers for quality milk which will provide more cheese per hundredweight.

Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative has been encouraging members to produce the highest quality milk possible for some time. Recently Eastern adopted a policy which has reduced the contamination of milk by antibiotics. The Cooperative's fieldmen constantly work with farmers to limit mastitis, a condition which directly affects milk quality and production.

Many quality problems, especially as they relate to cheese production, are affected by mastitis. This condition is an inflammation of the cow's tissue — especially those closely related to the making of milk. When tissue is damaged, the body of the animal seeks to repair itself. In the case of mastitis a clear indication of this repair attempt is the presence of somatic cells in the milk. Because of this, somatic cell counts in milk are an accurate indicator of herd health. Research has determined that low somatic cell counts indicate high milk production per cow — and more cheese yield per pound.

Eastern General Manager, Michael Donovan, believes a basic appeal of instituting a quality bonus plan is that the dairy farmer can increase both pay price and production with little or no additional capital investment.

"A quality bonus incentive encourages getting more out of what the dairy farmer already has invested," said Donovan.

Eastern will meet in weeks to come with Leprino Foods and others, to develop a pricing plan related to potential cheese yields. Eastern management and directors believe anything less than 100% quality milk costs the farmer money in the marketplace, or in future sales.

In other Eastern action, delegates of Eastern, meeting in Syracuse February 25, approved a budget for the next fiscal year, commended its management, and resolved to have the association become a member of the National Milk Producers Federation.

The budget approved by Eastern's policy body calls for no increase in dues, which will remain at $.14 per hundred pounds of milk produced. Belt tightening is planned for most budget line items, with one significant exception. Nearly $250,000 additional dollars will be set aside as a reserve next year for uncollectible accounts.

Eastern Milk Producers has several claims against the New York State Milk Producers Security Fund for money owed Eastern by milk dealers which went bankrupt three to four years ago. Long delays by the state in resolving the claims prompted the organization to increase its contingency fund.

Michael Donovan said, "We are pleased to be holding the line on dues in this period of high inflation and high interest rates. The next several years will be difficult for dairy farmers and the nation's dairy industry. Organizations like Eastern must 'hold the line', just like dairy farmers will be forced to do."

Delegates also approved Association membership in the National Milk Producers Federation, a Washington-based lobbying organization for the nation's dairy farmers.

"The Federation is the dominant voice for dairy farmers in the Capitol," said Stanley Korona, President of Eastern. "Membership in the Federation will broaden the government relations position of our members in Washington D.C."

Delegates gave a vote of confidence to the cooperative's General Manager Michael Donovan, the staff and Board of Directors for a fine job done over the last year. Over that period the association reversed a long period of monthly marketing losses to a strong pattern of marketing profits.

Also singled out for commendation by delegates was Mildred Toepp, of Liverpool, NY. Mrs. Toepp has served as executive secretary to several general managers of the organization. Since Mildred is soon retiring from her position, delegates chose this meeting to thank her for "many years of tireless and loyal dedication to the association."

Clarion Co. plans tour

CLARION — Clarion County Extension will sponsor a "Spring Beef Tour" on Saturday, March 27.

The tour will feature three Armstrong County beef farms. The first stop will be Oren Claypoole's beef feedlot and dairy farm in Worthington. Claypoole is feeding about 250 head of heavy cattle with corn silage and high moisture corn. The feedlot is a converted turkey pen. Cattle must use steps to get from the bedding area to the feed bunk outside. The Claypooles are currently milking 40 cows and farm about 270 acres.

The second stop features Willard Kimmel's 200 head feedlot in Shelocta. Kimmel is currently feeding all heifers. The farming operation has 650 acres of cropland that includes certified oats and barley seed.

A lunch stop is planned with each person buying his or her own lunch. Reservations cost $6 per person and must be made by March 22. The first 40 registrants will be accepted. Send reservations to: Dave Fowler, Box 230, Clarion, Pa. 16214.

The Dairy Business By Newton Bair

ENERGY AND THE DAIRY FARM

To paraphrase Winston Churchill's famous statement, "Never have so few grown so much food for so many people with so little land and labor as do American farmers." - Today, the average American farmer produces enough food to feed 65 people - 10 times as much as his grandpa did back in 1910.

Now, before we start patting ourselves on our aching backs for this accomplishment, we should take a look at how and why we are able to do this. Simply put, we attribute our success to science. Agricultural chemicals, Plant and animal genetics, and farm mechanization, plus our ingenuity at putting it all together, constitute the science of modern agriculture. But the key to the whole business is energy. Energy is the essential raw material in farm production.

The most obvious change in the use of energy from grandpa's day to the present is in the use of fossil fuels - first, for the operation of tractors and farm machines, and electricity for light and power. A bit more obscure, but nevertheless just as vital is the use of energy to produce fertilizers, herbicides and insecticides and other chemicals. Most of these are derived from natural gas or petroleum products. It also takes enormous amounts of energy to produce the machines, barns and equipment we need, as well as to keep them running.

In other words, we have substituted mechanical and chemical energy for human labor. (Not that you aren't working as hard as grandpa did, - you probably are, - but there are fewer of you working at it today.)

But the big challenge today is to keep up that high level of production, with an eye to holding the use and cost of energy down. That word, cost should get your attention if nothing else does.

If we are going to continue to produce crops efficiently, we are all going to find ways to minimize both the use and the cost of energy inputs. In the short run, there won't be any miracle fuels that are economical enough to compete with gasoline or diesel fuel. Vegetable oils, alcohol and methane gas are lurking around the corner as back-up fuels, but can't compete with fossil fuels - yet. So let's look at some of the ways to economize and still get the job done.

WAYS TO ECONOMIZE ON ENERGY

Minimum tillage, or no-till is probably the number one method of saving energy, time and soil. If you haven't tried it on corn, soybeans or small grains, you haven't full entered the new age of farm technology. According to several University studies, minimum and no-till practices have reduced energy costs from 7% to 18% in corn and soybeans. Crop yields are as high or higher than conventional tillage.

Crop drying is another place where energy costs have gotten out of line. You can do several things to reduce crop drying costs. Number one is to plant varieties that dry down naturally. There are vast differences between high yield varieties in the moisture content at harvest time. A few farmers are using solar collectors to heat air instead of burning expensive gas or oil. In Lebanon County, Mark Harshey was probably the pioneer in solar corn drying. Bob Sollenberger and Lloyd Senseng also have done a good job with solar driers. And, don't overlook the old fashioned corn crib! For feeding dairy cows, ear corn is preferred over shelled corn, and a well designed corn crib is a natural solar dryer. Even grandpa knew that!

All farm chemicals and fertilizers are energy users and are getting more and more expensive. They are necessary and cost effective in crop production, if used wisely and discretely. The best cost and energy saver is a sharp pencil. Measure everything precisely. Calibrate your spreaders, planters and sprayers to the finest tolerance possible. Give manure and crop residues their true value as fertilizing elements, then apply only what the crop needs, especially when applying nitrogen, which is a dynamic element that won't stay put in the soil. Many dairymen have a tendency to over fertilize heavily manured fields, which can result in wasted fertilizer and lodged crops, to say nothing of the possibility of water pollution.

In the milkhouse, heat exchangers for heating water have been proven to be cost effective. After all, the heat that must be taken from the milk need not be wasted - why not use it to heat the water you need.

And don't overlook the obvious when using energy. An 80 horsepower tractor will cost often less to operate pulling a light implement like a planter or drill than that 150 horsepower monster. Of course, it won't have a cab and stereo, but the dollars you save will be your own.

One more thing. Be extremely wary of simple products that promise to cure all your troubles. There is some "organic" stuff being marketed with absolutely no proof that it works - only unsubstantiated and unwarranted testimonials. Can you honestly believe that a couple of quarts of all purpose cleaner will soften the soil, promote plant growth, control weeds, repel insects and increase protein content? Believe only what you read on the container label. You will usually find that anything published or promoted by oral promises is quickly disclaimed by the company.

WHAT THIS MAN KNOWS ABOUT FARMING COULD FILL A BOOK... A BANK BOOK.

Farming. It's a complex business. No surprise to you, of course. We only mention it because when it comes to getting a farm loan, we know you don't want to have to start at ground zero and explain the expenses of livestock, machinery, construction, mortgages and operating expenses to a novice loan officer.

Which is why we suggest you turn to Bob Badger, the head of our Agricultural Loan Division. Bob knows farming — inside out and upside down. He's been helping our community's farmers meet their business objectives for years. So when it comes to farm loans, he takes a very interesting point of view yours.

Next time you need to talk to a banker about financing your business, talk to the banker who understands your business. Bob Badger at Bank of Lancaster County. Visit Bob at our Strasburg office or give him a call and ask him to visit you.

USDA approves fumaric acid use in processed meats

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Beginning March 24, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will allow food producers to use fumaric acid to speed both the curing time and color development of processed meat and poultry products.

Fumaric acid is not new to the food industry, according to Donald

L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service. It already is approved by the Food and Drug Administration to prevent refrigerated dough from spoiling, to keep vegetables fresh and to control the acid content of wine. It occurs naturally in many plants and is produced commercially from glucose.

Houston said fumaric acid allows meat and poultry processors to use higher cooking temperatures, which results in shorter cooking times.

Consumers will benefit from this change since fumaric acid is less costly than other substances that hasten curing, such as citric acid, according to Houston. It may be added to a variety of cured products, including frankfurters, wieners, bologna and knockwurst, as well as meat and poultry loaves, he said.

The expanded use for fumaric acid was proposed by USDA Jan. 6, 1981. USDA received three comments expressing general opposition to the use of food additives, but no specific criticism of the use of fumaric acid.

Final approval for the use of fumaric acid in processed meat and poultry products becomes effective March 24 and was published in the Feb. 22 Federal Register, which is available in most public libraries.

Forage testing

meeting Tuesday

TERRE HILL — The Eastern Lancaster County Adult Farmer Program will sponsor a meeting on forage testing on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., in the agriculture shop of the Garden Spot High School.

The featured speaker will be J.S. Shenk, Penn State agronomy professor, who will bring the portable forage testing van into the shop and analyze forage samples at the meeting. Once the samples have been tested on-the-spot, feeding program recommendations will be made. Samples of all the forages fed on several dairy and beef farms will be analyzed and actual feed recommendations made. A "hay judging" contest will be conducted to compare "sight" judging to the forage analysis.

Analysis procedures will be demonstrated and an explanation of how the feeding recommendations are made will be discussed. Samples of hay, silage, high-moisture corn, haylage and other forages will be done.

New Banvel® herbicide 2-step overlay program...

Now you can lay-by corn
BEFORE it's 5 inches high!

Here's how the Banvel early lay-by program works:
1 Apply your pre-emergence herbicide to control grasses.
2 Apply Banvel before corn is more than 5 inches high when broadleaves are germinating before weeds have robbed significant amounts of moisture or nutrients from your crop.

Result: Banvel early lay-by controls a broad spectrum of important broadleaf weeds including the tough ones 2-4 D misses during the time when weed control is most needed.

And you probably won't have to go back into the field till harvest!

Call us now about the Banvel herbicide 2-step overlay program from Velsicol.

Like money in the tank

Invest in a Calumet Vacuum Tank with soil injector.

Liquid hog manure can save you several thousands of dollars in commercial fertilizer costs. That's why it pays to invest in Calumet. Pick the tank size that fits your herd—from 1180 to 4500 gallon capacities. Choose from three vacuum pumps—177 CFM, 247 CFM, or 353 CFM—for fast filling. Select PTO powered at 540 or 1000 RPM, or optional hydraulic motor drive. Then put those liquid assets to work with a Calumet 2 or 4 shank soil injector. Injecting helps retain four times the nitrogen usually lost in surface spreading. And you'll reduce odor and runoff problems. You'll get long term dividends too. Calumet tanks are engineered for years of efficient, low maintenance operation. Heavy duty steel alloy tanks are epoxy coated to resist corrosion. Double reinforced A frames and support skids add strength for heavy loads. All Calumet products are backed by a 12 month warranty.

So start profiting from the fertilizer produced on your farm. Get a Calumet vacuum tank and soil injector. It's a tank you can bank on.

ASA names Stevenson to Board of Trustees

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, March 20, 1982—D15

BOZEMAN, Mt. — Thomas H. Stevenson of Sherwood, Maryland has been elected to the Board of Trustees of the American Simmental Association, for a three-year term.

Stevenson was chosen to fill the position previously occupied by the late Enos Groves of Fortville, Indiana. Groves suffered a fatal heart attack just a few weeks after having been elected as a Trustee.

Stevenson, who will represent the Eastern Region, earned both his B.S. and M.S. from Indiana University, and served as an assistant professor at Dean Junior College, Franklin, Massachusetts. He also served as editor of the North American Simmental Magazine and has been manager of Langdon Farms in Maryland since 1978. He's a past president of the Maryland Simmental Association. Stevenson and his wife Leslie are the parents of two children, Jeff, 10 and Julie, 7.

The American Simmental

Association is governed by a sixteen member Board, four from each of four geographical regions.

The Eastern Region includes all states east of the Mississippi River, except for Illinois and Wisconsin.

The American Simmental

Association is headquartered in Bozeman, Montana. ASA has an active membership of nearly 10,000 breeders and Simmental cattle are found in all 50 states. World-wide Simmental are the second most populous breed, ranking next to the Brahman breeds.

The Proof is in the Silage!

Results say it all.

Here's how Silo Guard stacks up to four other best sellers on the market.

VERSES UNTREATED SILAGE

which showed that silage treated with Silo Guard recovered 6.9% more dry matter per ton stored. The other well known brands recovered from 5% to a minus 3%. This outstanding savings of valuable nutrients by Silo Guard means that for less than $2. per ton of silage treated, you can improve feed efficiency 8-10% and increase cattle gains 4-5%.

Because of the numerous silage additives on the market today it is extremely important to buy a PROVEN product. Silo Guard is proven to out perform the others — and that means a greater return to you.

For the complete details of this revealing study and other valuable information call your local Silo Guard distributor and ask him to send you this brochure. Or call us toll-free on the "Silo Guard Hotline" 1-800-847-1691 (out of state) 1-800-252-4620 (in NY only)

A BALING BREAKTHROUGH

Krone Round Balers

A totally NEW concept in baling machinery, the Krone line of round balers features an endless chain conveyor without belts. Closed chamber reduces problems associated with conventional belt type balers. Less horsepower required for the Krone Round Baler's fewer moving parts means great energy savings. Produces weather resistant bales with hard outer wrap and medium density core for better curing. Available in two models for bale diameters of five or six feet.

Sheep Producer directors face industry's problems

DENVER, Colo. — Rodger L. Wasson, Executive Director of the American Sheep Producers Council, credited the Board of Directors, last week for having worked "long and hard evaluating opportunities in the areas the ASPC should be involved with" at the 63rd semi-annual meeting.

"They believe there needs to be strong emphasis on promotion, expanding demand for lamb to increase returns to the producer," said Wasson. "to accomplish this, there was much interest expressed in backing merchandising programs and also in increased interest in the food service area."

These thoughts were also reflected in a leadership survey conducted which indicated that lamb advertising and merchandising should be top priorities in 1982-83.

One highlight of the survey was that 90 percent of the directors believe ASPC has contributed to profitability for sheep producers, but the majority also felt that the average producer only knows ASPC by name. Other results indicate that ASPC programs should continue to emphasize "AMERICAN" lamb, that sheep numbers will increase in the next five years, and that lamb's share of promotion resources should be higher than the current 55 percent.

Chris P. Jouffas, president of the ASPC, charged his fellow directors with having a "special responsibility."

"Are we up to it?" he demanded. "As directors, we are representing thousands of sheep producers. We are responsible to deal with the tough question, to direct ASPC's programming, and to demonstrate the leadership our industry is crying for."

Faced with these responsibilities, the 48 directors spent two grueling days in heated debate, discussing priorities for the sheep industry, tossing ideas back and forth, and exploring areas to direct ASPC's resources.

Working through a planning process, producers prioritized their goals for the sheep industry.

Their top priorities included increasing the return to the producer by expanding demand for lamb, accelerating lamb merchandising, promoting pelts, increasing lamb consumption, increasing by 10 percent the consumption of lamb through food service, expanding demand for wool, developing non-traditional lamb markets, stimulating grass roots involvement, and studying the cost effectiveness of ASPC programs.

An issue of grave concern expressed by several directors is the possible boycott of domestic wool by buyers because of contamination.

HOW

UNIPEL® 13-34-10

fertilizer can get your corn crop off to a super start:

It has a high concentration of water-soluble Phosphorus that gets to young seedlings quickly. Helps plants establish a good root system—the starting point for top yields. Its quick-acting and long-lasting Nitrogen team up to feed the young plants for full yield potential, continually from sprouting to harvest.

This is the Starter Special that corn growers know from good experience. It's highly effective as a banded starter. And it's SAFE... no chance of ammonia damage to tender, young seedlings when used as a "pop up" and applied directly with the seed at 50 lbs./acre.

How can we fit UNIPEL 13-34-10 into your corn fertility program?

Md. judge orders fine, probation, restitution

ANNAPOLIS, MD. — man has been fined $200, has agreed to make $230 in restitution to a farmer, and has been placed on one year's probation after pleading guilty to four charges in a liming materials case brought against him by officials of the Maryland Department of Agriculture.

George Morrison of Dargan, Washington County, was charged with selling and delivering to a farmer liming materials which were not of the quality stated, not properly labeled, and of failing to comply with the state's regulations concerning delivery tickets.

As part of the settlement, Morrison agreed to pay Prather Hull of Clearspring, a total of $230.52 in restitution according to a formula worked out by MDA officials regarding four loads of liming materials which he delivered to Hull's farm.

The formula was based on claims by MDA's Weights and Measures Section which estimated the lime deliveries were short in weight by some 5 and one-quarter tons out of 32 tons allegedly delivered to Hull.

State chemist Donald Lewis provided the court with official assays of samples of the liming materials which showed the material to contain only 41.6 percent total oxides whereas Maryland law requires materials claimed to be burnt, ground lime to contain a minimum of 60 total oxides. The lower quality of the material was also considered in the restitution formula agreed to by Morrison.

Also present for the trial was Weights and Measures inspector William J. Troup, III who had been working the case since November 1981 when the liming materials deliveries were made by Morrison to Hull's farm.

On hand to back up Troup was Dennis E. Williams, Weights and Measures Inspector from the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services which cooperated in the investigation.

The trial was held Friday, February 26, in Washington County District Court before Judge Alan Lipson; Assistant Washington County State's Attorney Kenneth Long acted as prosecutor.

Commenting on the case, Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley, Jr., stated, "Maryland law dealing with liming materials goes back to before the Civil War and is one of the state's oldest consumer protection measures. The teamwork between MDA's Weights and Measures Section and State Chemist office shows that we are vigilant in protecting the farmer."

"In instances where large bulk loads, such as liming materials, are delivered directly to a farmer, trust that the material is what it is claimed to be in quality and quantity is the essence of the transaction."

"We are going to protect our farmers under terms of our laws so that the farmer gets what he pays for. Such cases are unpleasant for us and they are expensive to investigate and take to court."

"Farmers, however, have to help by demanding proper labels, delivery tickets, and invoices at time of delivery.

"This Department will be the policeman when a policeman is needed. I hope anyone tempted to shave quality and quantity in violation of MDA's regulations will take warning from this case."

"Farmers are having hard enough times these days without being taken in the marketplace for inputs. We just don't let it happen," Cawley concluded.

Selling fish food earns more than 'chicken feed'

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

GARDNERS — "Hello, this is the San Diego Zoo. We'd like to order the usual tonnage of flamingo feed."

"Is this the feed store manager? Put me down for another batch of catfish ration."

These are not the usual conversations most people expect to overhear while eavesdropping on most feed stores in Pennsylvania. But they are the types of discussions that buzz through telephone lines to an Adams County firm, known as Zeigler Brothers, Inc., on a daily basis.

Located here in the heart of the orchard region of Pennsylvania, Zeigler Brothers started out like most feed companies — carrying poultry and cattle feeds. That was in 1935, when Ty and Leroy Zeigler opened their original mill at nearby Arendtsville. The business was moved to its present location 14 years later.

Then in 1954, the two founding brothers had a parting of the ways, and brother Leroy was left to carry on the feed business. Good fortune kept the small company thriving for a number of years, but eventually economic hardships took their toll. When the business was on the brink of financial ruin, Leroy passed the company's keys to son Tom. That was in 1965.

From that time on, the mill began feeding a 'horse of a different color', focusing its attentions on the meals of laboratory animals, zoo residents, and fish. Tom, who had earned his doctorate degree in nutrition from Cornell University, had unlocked the door for a successful, even though

Since that desperate switch to the specialty feeds market, Zeigler has become one of the foremost fish ration experts in the world and has co-authored 19 scientific publications on the subject. Zeigler Brothers, Inc. now is an expression of Tom Zeigler's theory of 'total systems' approach in formulating and producing animal food.

Supplying the specialty market has left little time for Zeigler's to deal in poultry and livestock feeds. A workforce of 54 people, which includes four Ph.D. professionals, help churn out the fish, flamingo, and other feeds, at the rate of about 240 tons a week. These feeds, formulated to meet individual needs for each animal, bird, or fish, contain an average 10-12 ingredients.

For all their painstaking care in developing, manufacturing, and marketing these specialty feeds, Zeigler Brothers expects to be reimbursed by their unique clientele just as generously. This year the company will gross more than $6 million, with the bulk of the income generated by fish food sales, according to David B. Knapp, director of Marketing and Sales.

Knapp explained that in addition to fish rations, another large part of Zeigler's business is formulating feeds for laboratory animals. However, he said, these sales have declined since federal research program budgets were cut. Knapp expressed his hope that the slack in federal funds will be picked up by Tim Markey, seated, supervisor of Quality Control, and David B. Knapp, director of Marketing and Sales for Zeigler Bros. Feeds, examine some of the sample packets of feed to be shipped from the mill. Quality control is monitored daily and all formulation sheets are double-checked for accuracy. The Adams County feed company formulates hundreds of different rations for guinea pigs, dogs, fish, monkeys, and chinchillas, to name a few.

Another factor that could influence the sales of laboratory animal feed, said Knapp, is any effect of animal welfare legislation on controlled research. Knapp expressed concern that the specialty feed business would feel the ripple effects of this movement if it succeeds in curtailing laboratory testing.

Along with being famous for its fish and laboratory feeds, Zeigler's has earned a reputation over the years for formulating new feeds. According to Tim Markey who serves as supervisor of Quality Control and Assistant to the President, the company's director of Technical Services John Chah developed a medicated parrot diet. The exotic bird feed — the only one of its kind approved by USDA — is used at quarantine stations and has been shown to be effective in eliminating contagious diseases in imported birds.

Along with USDA, Zeigler's ships feed on a daily basis to such famous clients as King's Dominion recreational park in Virginia, the San Diego Zoo in California, the National Zoo in Washington D.C., the National Institute of Health, along with large pharmaceutical companies like Squibb and Smith-Kline, plus corporations like Exxon Bio-Medical. Adams feed mill County specialty company's feeds are marketed to every state east of the Mississippi, according to Markey.

Even though the company has expanded its specialty lines over the past 17 years, trout feed continues to make up the bulk of the feed company's business, and supplying the feed needs of aquaculture demands most of its research efforts.

"Two-thirds of the earth's surface is covered by water," observed Knapp, "so why not use it to grow food? Instead of going out to sea to catch shrimp, you can grow them in a confined area."

"We've had requests from people in Japan to get feed for eels that they're growing in aquaculture. We're a specialty feed company and producing for this market is right up our alley. We're trying to become a leader in the field."

Knapp pointed out that some of the advantages of aquaculture include being able to grow things, like trout, shrimp, catfish, lobster, and tilapia in a more controlled environment. Another advantage is the potential for big profits. He cited statistics showing that in 1979 catfish farmers turned a profit of $500 per acre compared to $100 an acre earned by soybean farmers.

Knapp admitted the industry is still an infant and has a lot of rough edges to polish. However he emphasized that efficiency of production is aquaculture's greatest asset — fish convert feed into meat at an extremely high ratio.

With an eye to the future, Zeigler Brothers, Inc. is working toward a major marketing expansion which not only includes more distributors for their current line of exotic feeds, but also exploring new areas for sales.

Catering to the temperamental

NEWARK, DEL. — Corn planting time is fast approaching. How good a seeding job will you do this year?

Decisions you make at planting will likely affect your results at harvest, says Delaware Extension power and machinery specialist Tom Williams. Some crops can compensate for poor planting practices, but most do best when they are seeded uniformly.

tastes of celebrity zoo residents, laboratory research subjects, or trout has earned more than 'chicken feed' for a once floundering feed company. The tale of Zeigler Brothers, Inc., from success to failure and back again, is one fish story you can believe.

Planting was one of the first farming operations to be mechanized, Williams notes. The first corn planter, patented in 1893, allowed the farmer to plant without stooping. Today farmer rides in an air conditioned tractor cab with electronic monitors and plants a 30-foot-wide swath at five miles per hour.

Even the meaning of the word, planting, has become far more complex. Today, planting might consist of applying dry or liquid fertilizer beside the row; applying granular insecticide in the seed furrow or beside the row; opening a seed furrow; metering seed at a uniform rate; placing treated seed at a uniform depth, with good seed-to-soil contact for fast germination; and covering the seed for protection. Spraying herbicides can also be accomplished at the same time. Proper calibration of metering mechanisms is critical if a planter is to apply all these materials at the intended rates under varying conditions.

The Delaware Cooperative Extension Service will sponsor a workshop to demonstrate proper calibration techniques on Tuesday, March 16, at 1 p.m. It will be held at White Brothers Supply Co. on Route 896 north of Middletown. Corn planters, row fertilizers, granular applicators, grain drills, PTO and ground-driven sprayers will be covered. The meeting will count toward the recertification of pesticide applicators.

CHORE-TIME

hog feeding...

Your imagination is the limit when it comes to the hog feeding layout you can get with Chore-Time's patented FLEX-AUGER® Feed Delivery System — it goes up, down, around, thru, over, or under. And it does it all without gears, corner cogs, or other energy-eating mechanism. The secret is our sensible one-piece, continuous, spring-type "centerless" auger.

With more than 40 models to choose from, Chore-Time's line-up of feed bins lets you choose exactly what you need — not what somebody wants you to have. They're all completely galvanized (no painted parts) and have other quality features that you need in a bin for long years of trouble-free service at low cost.

Keep animals comfortable, and you keep them far more thrifty and far more profitable. Chore-Time's Advanced Air Systems approach combines controlled air inlets with the finest variable speed and single speed fans and other components. They're fitted to your specific building. The result is year-around, day-in and day-out comfort for your animals.

Bureau outlines 12-point plan to improve farmers' lots

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Last week American Farm Bureau Federation President Robert B. Delano outlined a comprehensive 12-point plan designed to improve depressed farm income.

"The bottom line is that we have overbuilt our agricultural production plant compared to expected demand over the next few years," said Delano. "This is a result in many ways of federal farm and credit programs which stimulate overproduction and the adjustments which are taking place as inflation is reduced."

At a Washington, D.C., news conference, Delano divided the Farm Bureau recommendations into three segments: Immediate, short-term and long-term.

For immediate action Delano recommended:

—Support of the Economic Recovery Program. Delano noted that "farmers are beginning to receive some of the benefits of the fight against inflation with input costs expected to rise only 5 to 8 percent this year. This compares to 8 to 10 percent in 1981 and 15 percent in 1979 and 1980. An easy money policy could temporarily reduce interest rates, but if input costs shoot up, farmers will be the big losers."

The projected federal deficit of $92 billion or more in fiscal 1983 is unacceptable. "We call upon the president and Congress to reduce this deficit by $50 billion through cuts in entitlement expenditures, —Passage of legislation which guarantees that grain purchased by foreign buyers scheduled for delivery within 120 days will not be embargoed for any reason short of war. Delano said this would help curb feelings of uncertainty among potential foreign buyers whether the United States will be a continuing and reliable source of grain.

Social Security, government retirement programs and through a moratorium on all cost-of-living adjustments in federal spending programs."

—Immediate funding of the Commodity Credit Corporation Export Revolving Fund. Delano explained that this fund was authorized by the 1961 Farm Bill, but was not funded. "Funding this program will help U.S. grain compete in world markets and expand new markets, but loans should not be given to countries which are poor credit risks," he said.

—Allocate a "fair share" of Export-Import Bank financing for agricultural exports. Delano said, "The Export-Import Bank financed agricultural commodities until the previous administration shifted all financing of agricultural products to the CCC. Proposed legislation (H.R. 4510 and S. 1852) would mandate that a share of that share of Ex-Im Bank resources be devoted to the financing of agricultural commodities based on the ratio of U.S. agricultural exports to total exports. Agricultural exports amount to 20 to 25 percent of total U.S. exports."

—Given the supply and price outlook for major commodities, "now is not the time to promote farm production and long-term storage in anticipation of better prices. Farmers should be encouraged to properly use storage as an essential tool for profitable marketing. If the USDA Farm Storage Loan Program is continued, the costs should not be subsidized," said the national farm leader.

—Inform farmers and ranchers of severe economic adjustments which will be required if livestock, poultry and dairy production continues to expand beyond demand.

—Control costs at the farm level. AFBF President Delano noted that "farmers are under tremendous pressure to control short-run costs and improve cash flow. Cutting costs of production and marketing is still important for improving farm income."

The American Farm Bureau program contains two short-term actions:

—Encourage the secretary of agriculture to change the wheat and feedgrain set aside program to include a cash incentive to participate. Delano said his organization "proposed an acreage reduction program with incentives to encourage enough producer participation to reduce production and stocks. The principal advantage of the Farm Bureau proposal is that it would reduce stocks while the USDA program is likely to get poor participation, add to grain stocks which are already excessive and cause farm price problems at harvest.

—The Farmer-Held Reserve must be an orderly marketing tool, as originally intended, and not a quasi-government storage program to limit market price opportunities for farmers. Delano said, "This change should include a price level where farmers could sell out of the reserve without penalty; no increase in the loan and release prices from the reserve for the 1982 or 1983 crops; no waiver of first year interest; and no increase in yearly storage payment."

The Farm Bureau plan calls for three long-term actions:

—End the Farmer-Held Reserve. "The U.S. has become the residual supplier of grains to the world because the federal government has encouraged long-term storage of grain in this country. Buyers will not bid aggressively for U.S. grain and prices will remain depressed as long as U.S. supplies are excessive."

—Work with international agencies to teach developing nations the value of building storage facilities and buying U.S. grain when supplies are abundant and prices are favorable to them. Delano said there is a need to rethink the PL-480 program and adapt that concept to today's U.S. and world economic conditions.

—Expand market development activities in cooperation with other U.S. farm groups and USDA with particular emphasis on those developing countries which have rapidly rising per capita incomes.

TWO NEW DX MODELS

The New Deutz DX 130 Tractor

DX-120 (110 HP) F6L-913 N.A. Engine

DX-130 (120 HP) BF6L-913 Turbo Engine

Two new Deutz DX-series tractors with new features and positioned at two popular horsepower ranges, were introduced recently by Deutz Corporation, Agricultural Equipment Division.

The new DX120 and the four-wheel drive DX120A version, is rated at 110 pto hp, the new DX130 at 120 pto hp.

New features on these models continue to build on the DX reputation for top fuel efficiency, outstanding operator convenience and safety, and impressive power capabilities.

New on the DX130 are all new TW-91 transmission, a multi-range Powermatic transmission with 24 forward speed, 8 reverse, all fully synchronized, all-new centrally-located front-wheel-drive (on the DX130A) with a protective wrap around oil pan, bigger-than-ever lift capacity of 14,332 pounds, more than the weight of the tractor itself.

Both new DX models feature new "mixed control" function (lets operator blend "position" and "draft" control settings) and improved lower-link sensing in the Deutz Transfarmatic hydraulic system, new EconoCool thermostatically-controlled air-cooling for even greater fuel economy, 6-8% greater.

The DX130, with 106-inch wheelbase, offers the convenient maneuverability of smaller DX models, but can be ballasted to a hefty 17,000 pounds. The new DX130 also features dual speed pto with hydraulic clutch pack for smooth control, rugged planetary final drive, enclosed outboard disc brakes, plus a powerful fuel-efficient, six-cylinder, air-cooled diesel engine — turbo-charged on the DX130 — typical of the engines which have given Deutz three fuel-efficiency records and a better fleet average than any other brand.

N.J. State Police seek rural-renting fugitives

BLAIRSTOWN, N.J. — Three male fugitives, who are known to rent rural, isolated houses directly from farmers, are being sought by the New Jersey State Police in connection with the murder of a state trooper.

"We know that they have rented farmhouses in rural Pennsylvania in the past and believe they are continuing to follow the practice," according to Det. Richard Touw, of the New Jersey State Police.

"These rentings have been traced to such places as Germansville in Lehigh County and Marshalls Creek in Monroe County."

The three fugitives are:

Thomas William Manning, Richard Charles Williams and Raymond Luc Levasseur, all white males in their mid-30's. Manning and Williams have been charged with the murder of N.J. State Trooper Philip Lamonaco on Dec. 21, 1981, and Levasseur is wanted for questioning in connection with the murder. Manning and Levasseur are also wanted by the FBI for bank robbery.

All are heavily armed and considered extremely dangerous.

Manning is five feet, 10 inches, 150 lbs. brown hair, hazel eyes with fair complexion. He has a scar on his nose and pierced left ear. Numerous tattoos include heart with cross on upper right arm, shield with "Tom" and banner on lower right arm, spade on back of left hand, rose with "Donna" on upper left arm and panther head on left forearm.

Williams is six feet, 200 lbs., with brown hair and blue eyes. He has a scar on little finger of right hand and over right eyebrow with a mole on left cheek.

Levasseur is six feet, 200 lbs. with brown hair, green eyes and ruddy complexion.

All use numerous fictitious identifications and a number of different names.

Heavily armed, they are known to shoot target practice with both handguns and rifles.

The fugitives are the subject of an intensive investigation by the New Jersey State Police through a special command post in Blairstown.

PFA head addresses Chester/Delaware group

GUTHRIESVILLE — "Non-farm neighbors need to be made aware of agriculture's contribution to the community," Keith Eckel, president of Pennsylvania Farmer's Association told Chester/Delaware Farmer's Association members and guests at their annual spring banquet at the fire hall in Guthriesville.

"The farmers in this country, less than 3% of the total population feed this nation plus a large part of the world's population. We must help our neighbors recognize this interrelation between farm and city."

Farmer's Association members also heard reports from the local Affairs, Advisory Councils, Legislative, Women's and Insurance Committees.

"Farming must become profitable in the Pennsylvania area," Eckel emphasized. "Transportation costs for moving food to market have increased. Production of food close to the market have increased. Production of food close to the market is becoming an economic necessity."

"It is essential that the Farmer's Association and PFA help farmers gain the tools to market their own products. Farmers are experts in the production of food. Farmers can become just as proficient in marketing their products as they are in producing them," Eckel continued.

Byron Hawthorne, Coatesville, Chairman of the Local Affairs Committee, reported that his committee had been evaluating the "Ag Districting" Act.

Leon Wilkinson, Landenberg, chairman of the Legislative Committee, thanked the Chester County Commissioners for their cooperation with agriculture and farmers.

He pointed out that the state legislators had been quite helpful and very responsive in considering legislation that could effect agricultural activities in Chester County. He mentioned labeling of imitation agricultural products and realistic labor regulations as two areas in which the assistance had been prompt.

Portia Breckbill, Cochranville, Chairman of the Women's Committee announced the 4th annual youth conference for youngsters in tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades. This will be held in Lock Haven this summer.

She also said that the Association's "Women's Day Out" would be held April 1, at the Olde Maple Inn, Honeybrook. The speaker will be Mrs. Martin from the Hershey Azela Farms.

Joyce Hershey, Cochranville, Membership Chairman, said that there are now 765 family memberships in the Chester/Delaware group.

Harold Bryson, Oxford, Chairman of the Insurance

Committee, gave credit to the state committee for reducing Workmen's Compensation rates from $12 to $7.72. He urged all members to participate in the programs so that perhaps even lower rates could be established.

"New Advisory Councils are forming," Al Bartels, West Grove, chairman of the committee said. "This is where Farmer's Association policies originate—a chance for neighbors to discuss local and state policy. Then forward their resolutions up to state and national levels."

Farmer members Roy Kolb and Clint Blackwell donated milk and mushrooms for the dinner. Portia Breckbill and the Women's Committee prepared the table decorations.

County Commissioner Earl Baker and Patrick O'Donnell were present. Legislators attending were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pitts, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Vroon, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Smith, Elinor Taylor, and Noah Wenger from Lancaster Co. Arthur Hershey, Cochranville, was recognized for his eight years of service as a State Director from the Southeast region. It was mandatory that he retire at the end of that period of service.

Farmers Union demands immediate Congressional action

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In order to avert the "most serious cash-flow crisis in modern agricultural history," delegates to the National Farmers Union convention last week demanded immediate and forceful action by Congress.

In a special order of business, the farm convention said the "totally inadequate pricing provisions" of the 1981 farm law would accelerate the three-year decline in farm income, creating the cash-flow crisis.

The Farmers Union said Congress must take action independently because the Reagan Administration has "systematically refused to recognize or understand the desperate conditions facing rural America. Instead of realistically and constructively acting to deal with this emergency, this Administration has only offered its repeated and mystical reliance on its special brand of economic platitudes."

The farm group urged Congressional action on six fronts, beginning with increases in commodity price support loan levels to meet current costs of production. The Farmers Union said Congress should take necessary action to reduce interest rates to affordable levels, and to establish an immediate end to foreclosures or forced liquidations of family-sized units by federal

Congress also was asked to require the Farmers Home Administration to immediately release Economic Emergency Loan funds, to authorize appropriate additional funding for ongoing FmHA farm loan programs, and to restrict all FmHA farm loan programs to family-sized farm operators.

Congress was urged to reverse USDA Secretary John Block's decision to suspend the farm storage facility loan program and "fully reinstate a nationwide farm storage facility loan program through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The convention further said additional cuts in food and nutrition programs should be rejected.

According to Farmers Union, "Farmers cannot wait for the promised millennium" which the Reagan Administration "believes is coming with the proverbial light at the end of the tunnel. No matter how many turns or bends the Administration discovers as it travels down this tunnel, it will remain a dark maze without an end, foreclosing the future of agriculture in its passengers."

While recognizing that agriculture cannot "borrow itself into prosperity", the farm organization warned, "without the infusion of additional farm credit resources at affordable interest rates, thousands of family-sized farm units will be liquidated."

The Farmers Union statement expressed deep concern about the impact of the cash-flow crisis on beginning farmers and predicted without Congressional action "the nation will lose the newest generation of family farmers with their commitment, talents, education, and innovative skills in agriculture. Such a loss would be devastating to the future productivity, stability, and continuity of agriculture and rural America. It would be an irreversible loss impacting the entire society for generations to come."

In addition to the cash flow crisis, the farm organization said "increased unemployment, reduced consumer earning power, and cuts in food and nutrition programs are further dampening farm market prices by reducing the ability of consumers to purchase quality, nutritious foods. When the additional factors of continuing high interest rates, a serious economic recession, and depressed export markets are included in this negative formula, the equation spells disaster for the agricultural economy and its related industries."

servation and Credit Subcommittee's Chairman, U.S. Representative Ed Jones of Tennessee. His Subcommittee has been holding hearings on farm credit problems.

Debate on the resolution brought testimonials from convention delegates relating their personal financial difficulties, together with reports of foreclosures, farm sales, and business closings in rural areas.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

The Changing World

The changing world made it tough to farm with horses. Other than our Amish, very few farmers still farm with horses. Most present day farmers would not even want to operate with horses, although a well trained horse did have its merits.

Now we are getting another change that will have a long lasting effect on our farmers. As people become more sedentary, more weight conscious, and less affluent, their eating habits change. Fifty years ago who would have thought that people would go jogging to exercise. Most people did a lot of walking, worked 60 to 70 hour weeks, and had a garden. Today we ride everywhere, work 40 hour weeks (except farmers, county agents and a few others), and buy our fresh vegetables at the store.

For awhile, as these changes occurred, people found they could eat better which helped push up consumption of beef and dairy products. Now, as a result of the economy and a sudden interest in low fat diets, beef is a drag on the market and dairy products are taking a beating.

What Can You Do?

I don't know what you can do, but here are a few suggestions.

1. Quit fighting with consumers who are pressuring for reduced price supports. It's a no win situation. Instead fight to open up our stores of surplus dairy products to world-wide competition. I think we can compete on the world market at a lesser cost to the government than if they have to buy your surplus.

2. Quit fighting to prevent imports. Fight, instead, to have those imports meet the same standards of cleanliness, constant inspection, purity, and handling as you must meet. Fight against the use of natural product symbols and names by artificial products.

3. Cull those below standard cows. Most dairy producers would make more money if they would sell the bottom twenty percent of the herd right now and then do a better job with the remainder. Don't cull according to beef prices but according to a profit standard. One $1,000 net profit cow takes up less space, takes less labor, eats less feed, and produces less milk than two $500 net profit cows.

4. Quit raising dairy bull calves.

Let the veal producer have them or let some one who wants to lose money raise them to sell as beef.

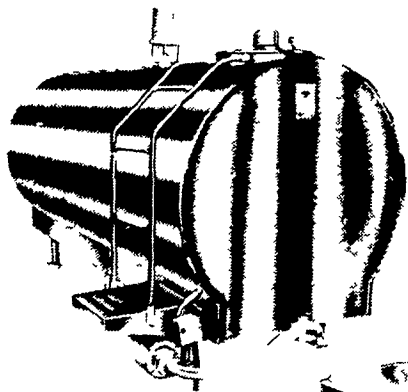

5. Feed colostrum and perhaps even surplus milk to calves. Why spend money to buy replacer from your competition?

6. Keep and use good records. There is no substitute for good farm records to see the direction you are taking, where you can increase your income, and where you can decrease expenses.

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

Let corporate farms sink or swim

An increasing number of state governments have established laws banning completely, or placing severe restrictions on, corporate farm activity. Almost one-fourth of the states — most of them western and mid-western farm states, have such laws and the list is growing.

If you're fond of the family farm you may applaud these actions. Beware — laws that control entry can also control exit. And something that was set up to control the bad guys may also work against the good ones.

On the surface, a law that restricts the movement of multi-company corporate giants into the corn fields and cow barns of rural America seems like a good idea. But let's look deeper.

In the first place, those big corporations aren't that hot when it comes to farming. Many of them tried it with disastrous results.

They couldn't sell out and go back to town fast enough. A few have stuck it out, but pose no great threat to family farming.

Over the years farming hasn't been profitable enough to attract much corporate money. Beyond that, there are just too many uncertainties. Board members and corporate managers aren't geared to financial loss due to hail storms and flooded fields. They'd rather spend the stockholders money on things that can be counted on. They understand assembly lines, production per man hour, things like that. They don't understand corn blight, dysentery, and wet ground.

Another thing farmers must consider before applauding too loudly for anti-corporation legislation is the direction all agriculture is headed. The word is big. Big farms with big equipment and big money needs will rule agriculture in the future. In fact, they do already.

While most of these are still essentially family farms, they're organized differently than they used to be. The family farm corporation is commonplace and plans that involve pooling of resources and talent between individual farmers are increasing. Laws now on the books could restrict these kinds of arrangements.

Here are examples of some corporate farming restrictions:

- North Dakota — all corporations are prohibited from producing food.

- Kansas — no farm corporation of more than 10 shareholders and no more than 5,000 acres.

- South Dakota — no more than a 20 percent increase in acreage in any five-year period.

- Minnesota — five shareholder limit and a majority must live on the land or actively engage in farming.

- Missouri — two-thirds of corporation's income must result from farming.

Obviously, these are the harshest parts of several detailed laws aimed at saving agriculture from big city money.

I guess the point that really upsets me about this concept is that governmental units are deciding who will be allowed to farm. If a corporation can be excluded, why not lawyers and doctors?

Maybe the legal heirs to a farm

USDA issues final rule on nonquota tobacco

WASHINGTON, D.C. — To meet provisions of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1981, the U.S. Department of Agriculture recently announced a new rule to identify and certify all nonquota types of tobacco produced in states with marketing quotas.

J.T. Bunn, a tobacco official of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said this law requires AMS to determine whether such nonquota tobacco is "readily and distinguishably different" from all kinds of quota tobacco. Under this law, if a nonquota type of tobacco meets the standards for any quota tobacco, it will be considered quota tobacco and counted against marketing quotas.

"The production of Type 32 Maryland tobacco has been increasing in quota growing areas since this tobacco became a nonquota crop in 1966," said Bunn. "Past certifications of nonquota Maryland tobacco produced in quota areas have shown the need for rules that certify this tobacco as to type, and for use in distinguishing nonquota Maryland tobacco from quota tobacco."

The Food and Agriculture Act of 1981, commonly known as the "Farm Bill," was enacted Dec. 22, 1981, and amends Section 320 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938. AMS' final rule amends Subpart F of USDA's regulations covering Maryland Type 32 tobacco to conform to Public Law 97-98 by eliminating all reference to Maryland nonquota tobacco. The subpart now includes guidelines, as well, on the identification and certification procedures for use with all nonquota tobaccos produced in quota areas.

Certification regulations apply in all states which have marketing quotas. These states are Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Notice of the interim final rule will appear in the March 3 Federal Register, available in many local libraries. Although the rule is final upon publication in the Federal Register, comments will be accepted and minor changes may be made if warranted by public and industry comment.

Comments should be submitted to J.T. Bunn, Acting Director, Tobacco Division, AMS, USDA, Rm. 507-Annex, Washington, D.C. 20250. Deadline for comments is April 2, 1982.

would have to sell the place because they live somewhere else. And possibly a group of farmers would be denied the right to set up a farrowing operation or grain drying facility.

Taking this concept a little further, perhaps a law could be passed that would establish for all time the number of farming units in a state. A farmer would then be tied to the land until an acceptable replacement was approved who would then buy out the farmer at some government established figure.

And the young man from the city who attends an agricultural college and gets financial backing from a rich old uncle is denied entry completely because the "board" feels his roots are not in agriculture and he would be an undesirable addition to the community.

This may sound farfetched, but if you combine the worst of the existing laws you come up with something about that bad. And if it's possible to combine the worst, somebody will probably try. I think agriculture would suffer in the process.

Let's keep agricultural entry and exit wide open. Anyone who can afford to get in or get out should have the chance. I think the family farm will survive a lot longer in a free environment.

So while we may not appreciate the big nonfarm giants setting up their great big farms, it seems unwise to legislate against them. Let them sink or swim like other farmers.

If they can adjust let them enjoy the same opportunities that more traditional farmers enjoy. If they can't, they'll get out soon enough and make room for serious farmers.

Farm Bureau tells Bush reducing deficit is key to solving economic woes

WASHINGTON, D.C., Officials of the American Farm Bureau Federation told Vice President Bush last Monday, that farmers and ranchers feel reducing the federal deficit is a key part of the solution to agriculture's economic woes.

The Farm Bureau delegation told the vice president that one of the most crucial problems is high and volatile rates of interest.

"Until the cost of credit is reduced, there can be no meaningful reversal in the economic decline that farmers are experiencing," said AFBF President Robert B. Delano. "A review of the economic situation indicates that the federal deficit is the most important contributing factor to high interest rates."

Delano told Bush that the projected federal deficit of $92 billion or more in fiscal 1983 is unacceptable to Farm Bureau members. He urged additional spending cuts in entitlement expenditures, including social security and all government retirement programs. We support a moratorium on all cost of living adjustments in federal spending programs as a means of reducing deficits.

"Our disappointment with the current budget deficit has reinforced our strong support for a constitutional amendment to control federal spending and require balanced budgets in the future," Delano added.

The officials told the vice president that Farm Bureau opposes reversal or delay of the tax cuts enacted in 1981.

They also told Bush that efforts must be mounted to increase farm exports in order to increase farm income, provide additional employment and improve the balance of payments.

Rains benefit northern hemisphere crop areas

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Precipitation benefited many northern-hemisphere winter grain areas recently as spring-like weather edged northward, according to a weekly report issued last week by the Joint Agricultural Weather Facility of the U.S. Departments of Commerce and Agriculture.

Drier weather over most of South Africa's Maize Triangle worsened localized moisture deficits for corn in the late stages of development.

Highlights of the report follow:
—United States. Relatively mild, dry weather prevailed over most of the Nation early in the week which allowed some land preparation for spring plantings in the Southeast. Significant precipitation fell later in the week over the winter wheat areas of the southern Great Plains which were short of soil moisture, and over the Southeast which further delayed fieldwork. The northern Great Plains retained a snowcover at weeks end.

—South America. Showers

brought additional moisture to Brazil's soybean area. The major portion of the crop is still in the pod-filling stage although an increasing proportion is reaching maturity. In fact, about 12 percent of Parana's soybean crop has been harvested, primarily from western and northern crop areas. The long harvest season for corn has begun in northern crop areas. In Argentina, mostly light scattered showers occurred over the crop areas. Corn, generally favorable conditions prevailing.

—Europe. Beneficial rains continued over winter grain areas in Spain. Only light precipitation fell on grains from England southward into France and northern Italy. In southeast Europe, beneficial precipitation in western Yugoslavia, southern Romania, and southern Bulgaria, aided soil moisture recharge. Generally dry weather continued over central and northern Europe. Temperatures were below normal over most of Europe—with the exception of the Iberian Peninsula, where temperatures were near normal.

—Western USSR. Wet weather benefited the major winter grain area of the Ukraine late in the week, breaking a dry spell which had persisted since early February. Winter grain areas of southern Belorussia and the western Black Soils also received beneficial precipitation with relatively dry weather prevailing elsewhere. Temperatures for dormant winter grains went from below normal early in the week to above normal late in the week. No potential winterkill conditions were reported over the region.

—Mexico. Timely light rains over the extreme Northeast should help germinate recently-planted corn and grain sorghum. However, soil moisture still remains low in parts of the area because of an unusually dry winter. Beneficial rains falling over citrus orchards around Jalapa should help support spring bloom and growth.

—Eastern Asia. Precipitation increased slightly in China's northern winter grain areas; 5-15 mm fell over a fairly broad area. Temperatures rose far enough above normal to permit winter grain growth in most areas south of the Yellow River. Above-normal rainfall occurred in the lower Yangtze Valley and in the hills and along the coast to the southwest. The moisture was mostly beneficial in improving preplanting conditions, but some heavy amounts in Guangdong may have caused localized flooding.

—South Asia. Late in the week a storm advanced eastward across Pakistan, spreading light to moderate rainfall over much of that country and into India. The moisture was still beneficial in northern winter grain areas of these countries where the crops were nearing maturity. Most light amounts in southern winter grain areas of India should not have caused any problems for mature crops.

—Northwestern Africa. Abundant rainfall continued in most winter grain areas, and prospects remained good as the crop continued vegetative growth. Pasture conditions in western Algeria have improved following a second consecutive week of moderate rainfall, although winter grains were probably not sown there this growing season because of earlier dryness.

Introducing Master Mix Multiphase™ concentrate. The answer to today's efficiency questions.

Phase 1

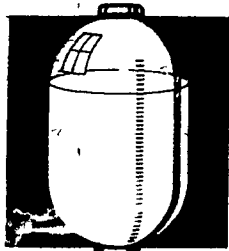

This is the early lactation period, lasting about 10 weeks. During this time, the cow usually cannot physically consume enough feed to support her peak production. Multiphase dairy concentrate and the appropriate Density Plus Nutrient Pac with the recommended levels of grain allows the cow to peak at the highest possible level. This is critical to profitability since each additional pound at peak equals 200 pounds over the course of the lactation.

Phase 2

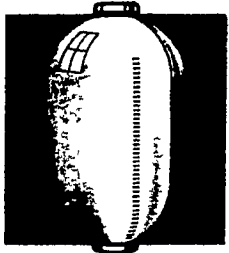

During this phase, milk production begins to decline, feed intake peaks and the cow's body weight stabilizes. The cow is still producing at a high level and her nutritional needs remain high. Shorting her nutrient needs would cause her milk production to drop faster than the normal 10% per month. The appropriate Master Mix Density Plus Nutrient Pac along with Multiphase and grain will help maintain maximum milk production.

Phase 3

The cow continues her natural decline in production during the final 24 weeks of lactation. However, her appetite stays strong, and she can consume more feed than needed to maintain her lower production level. Feed cost can be cut by keeping feed intake in line with milk production. Density Plus Nutrient Pacs are not normally needed during this phase. Proper feeding during Phase III minimizes the amount of grain needed during the dry cow period.

Phase 4

Proper feeding during this eight week period reduces disorders such as overfat cows, off feed, displaced abomasum, calving difficulty, and retained placenta. For most cows, average or good quality roughage supplemented with the proper amount and balance of minerals is an adequate diet. Cows that are in poor body condition may need additional grain ration to build body reserves. To prepare the dry cow for her next lactation, start feeding the milking ration two weeks before calving. Lead feeding allows the dry cow to adjust more easily to high levels of grain consumption at freshening. Do not exceed 1 percent of body weight before calving.

Once again Master Mix® brings you a new answer to the age-old question of how to boost the efficiency of the dairy cow.

Simple, flexible, and profit-making, the answer came just in time, because today more than ever you need a feeding program that squeezes more net profit from your cows...to cover operating expenses and pay yourself a good income.

Based on the concept of phase feeding, the new program includes Master Mix Multiphase™ dairy concentrate and two new Density Plus Nutrient Pacs—Silage Pac and Legume Pac.

This new Master Mix Phase Feeding Program fits any type of operation. Use Multiphase as the foundation concentrate for the entire herd, then add the appropriate Density Plus Nutrient Pac when you need to boost the nutrient density of the grain ration.

Nothing could be simpler for phase feeding. Multiphase allows you to feed each cow for optimum production. This allows the cow to reach maximum milk production without the costly waste of over-feeding. That means more net profit from each cow every day of the year.

The Breakthrough People.

York Holstein breeders hear benefits of roasting beans

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

EAST PROSPECT

"Generally speaking, soybeans will not enter your feed cheaper than when they're roasted at the farm," says Dale Schnupp, a custom grain roasting operator from R6 Lebanon.

Schnupp spoke to York County Holstein breeders at their annual spring barn meeting held last Tuesday afternoon at the farm of Thomas and Theresa Stein.

According to Schnupp, roasting is done with a little air and a lot of flame compared to drying beans which uses a little flame and a lot of air. Beans pass through the custom portable roasting equipment, complete with its own electricity source, and are heated to 280 degrees Fahrenheit, as they flow through the flaming—"oven" part of the machine.

This heating process removes toxic enzymes present in raw beans and breaks down the valuable soy oils so that they become totally digestible. Lethicin, a nutrient found in the beans, enables other components of a cattle ration to be more easily utilized, making roasted beans a feed that Schnupp calls "more than one-hundred percent digestible."

Roasted grains store for longer periods of time, according to Schnupp, since the heating sterilizes the kernels, eliminating spoilage bacteria as well as fertilizer and chemical carryover from the field. Because the heat singes the outer skin of the bean, nutrients are not "breathed" away as rapidly.

Most of Schnupp's eight hundred customers prepare their beans for feed rations by grinding, rolling or crimping the roasted oil-rich seeds, but some feed them whole. Schnupp adds, though, that he really doesn't recommend whole-bean feeding. Since nutrients will begin to leach out of the beans more quickly once they are ground, Schnupp recommends preparing them as close as possible to the time they'll be fed to livestock.

The sixty Holstein members and guests in attendance also had ample time to look over the Stein's 80-tie-stall dairy barn, built just last year.

One interesting feature of the set-up is the manure storage system. Manure leaves the barn by way of a gutter cleaner and is, deposited in a storage lagoon that is divided with a picket-type fence, made of slats set closely together.

Solid manure remains behind the fence, while liquids drain through to the lower side of the lagoon. Liquids can be handled through spray irrigation, while solids go onto fields via a traditional spreader.

Stein raises corn silage and high moisture grain on the farm's 40 acres, and purchases needed flaked feed and hay for total mixed ration feeding. Current rolling herd average for the 75-head milking string is over 15,000 pounds milk with 565 pounds fat.

Chester District offers tree seedlings

WEST CHESTER — "The Chester County Conservation District will be sponsoring its 8th annual evergreen tree seedling sale on Friday, April 16 and Saturday, April 17, 1982," announced Marshall Haws, executive conservationist for the District.

Six civic organizations will be handling the sale at locations around the county, including the Red Clay Valley Watershed Association, National Secretary's Association of Chester County, F.F.A., Boy Scout Troop 70, League of Women Voters of Central Chester County, and Brandywine Valley Association.

Five varieties of two and three year old evergreen seedlings will be available at the various sales locations. For more information contact the Chester Conservation District at 235 W. Market Street, West Chester, PA 19380, telephone 215/696-5126.

Lebanon County custom grain roaster Dale Schnupp briefed York Holstein breeders on the benefits of roasted soybean feeding during the group's barn meeting Tuesday.

The Milk Check

Referendum Dates

Even before the last hearing is held on March 12, in Harrisburg, the dates for conducting the referendum in Pennsylvania have been announced for May 8 to 22. It doesn't mean that there can't be any changes in the proposal after the last hearing but it does sound like the advisory committee isn't expecting any. The committee will meet, perhaps for the last time, on March 12 after the hearing to make a final approval of the proposal as it will be submitted for the referendum. So, if anyone has any ideas for changes they better get them into the hearing testimony on March 12 because that will be the last chance.

A referendum in May would still give the co-ops plenty of time to notify their members, in writing, 30 days in advance how they will cast their block vote. This allows the member to vote his own ballot if he doesn't agree with the way his co-op is voting. Which brings up the question of who gets a ballot.

The rule is one ballot for each milk check. If there's more than one name on the milk check they will have to decide between them and cast one ballot. Any combinations of partnership, husband and wife, father and son that appear on the same milk check will get only one ballot.

If you're wondering whether or not you will get a ballot, you can be sure you will if you received a copy of the proposed program in the mail back in January. If you didn't, or you have any doubts about it, you can check it out by calling the toll free number 1-800-932-0699.

Just remember that every producer in Pennsylvania (according to the name on the milk check) is entitled to receive a ballot and cast one vote — for or against the proposal — if he chooses to do so, no matter where he ships his milk. All that is needed on the individual ballot is a copy of your December 1981 milk check stub to verify the volume of milk produced, your signature and your vote.

Co-ops will be getting their ballots the week of March 15 so they will have ample time to notify their members how they will cast their block vote before individual voting starts May 5. This schedule should give you enough time to gather all the information you need to make a decision, but don't let it go until May when you'll be so busy you won't have time for anything but field work.

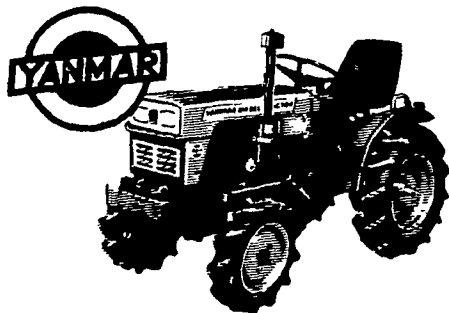

All of the farm organizations and the milk marketing co-ops will be glad to talk to you about the proposal as well as the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and your Extension office.

So, go where you feel comfortable and confident but get the information you need for decision making now. A lot of producers have already made up their minds and are ready to vote tomorrow. However, I feel that the issue will be decided by the silent majority who haven't attended meetings on the subject — or if they did, they didn't say much. So, if you're still undecided while it seems like everyone else has made up their minds don't worry about it. I believe producers like you will be the ones to decide which way the voting goes.

QUALITY CONTROL

No other mower-conditioners control curing time and hay quality like the Hesston 1091 and 1071.

Hesston full-width 14-channel rolls on the 1091 and 1071 Mower-Conditioners give you better regulation of conditioning action...to better suit your haying requirements.

Non-intermeshing opposed spirals provide minimal leaf stripping. A built-in speed differential gives a "scuffing" action for thorough conditioning. Whether you want aggressive handling for fast drying...or gentle action to save more leaves, the choice is yours.

The new four-bat reel and adjustable lean-bar cleanly gather the toughest crop. And for heavy or down crops, optional 5th and 6th reel bats give you clean, aggressive harvesting.

Windrow forming and fluffing shields are standard on these 7-foot 3-inch and 9-foot 3-inch Mower-Conditioners. A simple adjustment lets you change from windrowing to swathing as weather dictates.

Exclusive sickle drive gives smooth, dependable cutting action that's unmatched in the field.

Hesston 1091 and 1071 Mower-Conditioners — the Prime answer for smooth cutting and controlled curing — with designed-in reliability.

14-channel conditioner rolls are large and aggressive to handle a wide range of crops and conditions. Non-intermeshing design gives thorough conditioning with minimal leaf stripping.

ELECTRIC BEDDING CHOPPER

Wic also makes an electric 200 volt a.c. chopper or a 24 volt d.c. battery operated chopper including an automatic charger. These two models are equipped in the factory with a manual starter panel and are protected by fuses to diminish risk of accidents.

Very quiet these bedding choppers are mostly used on small or medium sized farm. As well as being mobile the 220 volt a.c. model can be installed stationary. Motor: 220 volt a.c. 3 h.p. 24 volt d.c. 2 1/2 h.p.

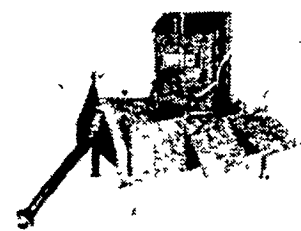

GAS BEDDING CHOPPER

The gas powered bedding chopper is the most popular on the market. Its operation is simple and it handles easily. Equipped with a Honda 4 stroke gas engine, the Wic bedding chopper insures maximum output while in use.

Motor: 5, 7 or 10 h.p. 4 stroke Honda

Starter: 5 h.p. manual and 7 and 10 h.p. manual or electric start

W.Va. peach grower wins nat'l award

MARTINSBURG, WV — From a national 4-H champion to master farmer, J. Kenneth McDonald has been bestowed yet another honor to add to his long list of achievements. The Berkeley County, West Virginia grower is the most recent recipient of the National Peach Council Achievement Award.

The award, a sculptured, hand-blown glass peach, was presented to McDonald February 4th at his home located on almost 700 acres of rolling orchard and crop land near Martinsburg — headquarters of J.E. McDonald & Sons, Inc. It's the most coveted award, given in recognition of outstanding service to both NPC and the peach industry in general.

The presentation was made by NPC President, Robert G. Kemp who personally thanked McDonald for "many years of selfless dedication and hard work on behalf of the Council."

A leading force behind the growth and strength of NPC, McDonald served as President, 1973-74, and has been active since. He has served several terms as a director and alternate director.

McDonald has been described by his peers as "involved, concerned, cooperative, progressive, ambitious and energetic." Based on his work with the Council alone those words certainly ring true. His life, in general mirrors the productivity of his farm operation.

He completed his Bachelors Degree in Horticulture at West Virginia University in only seven semesters, graduating with high honors. He went on to study pomology, accepting an assistantship at the University of California.

At West Virginia University he was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Army Reserves. His long and distinguished military career culminated with the Meritorious Service Medal, presented upon retirement as a Lieutenant Colonel in the 97th Army Reserve Command at Ford Meade, Maryland.

As a farmer, numerous innovations have made McDonald and his family's sophisticated operation a model for others to follow. His firm was among the first in West Virginia to plant dwarf trees in 1959. Wind machines, towering 38 feet high, have virtually eliminated the possibility of frost damage to fruits. Concentrate spraying replaced conventional methods, resulting in significant reductions in materials, water and labor.

The McDonalds' success with machine harvesting, selling line packaging and controlled atmosphere storage has helped change their business from individual ownership to an incorporated system boasting 38-40 full-time employees. Still, the family involvement is ever present, spanning three generations. Ken's wife, Mary, and son Kenneth — one of three children — play a vital role in running the business.

For their efforts, the McDonalds' were recognized as the Outstanding Farm Family of West Virginia in 1976. Ken has personally received numerous awards and honors including the Distinguished Alumnus Award of West Virginia University's College of Agriculture and Forestry Alumni Association.

He is a past-president of that association as well as the West Virginia Horticultural Society, the West Virginia Agricultural Industries Association and the International Dwarf Fruit Tree Association. He has also been active in countless other farm and civic organizations too numerous to mention.

AJCC supports marketing policy

COLUMBUS, OHIO — Production in excess of consumption is the most serious problem which confronts the American dairy farmer. There is serious likelihood that government programs which affect the industry may be dramatically changed. Some of these programs have already been curtailed.

American Jersey Cattle Club — National All-Jersey, Inc. would urge industry support for the following measures.

✓ A law which would set higher minimum standards on milk offered for sale to consumers. Food and Drug Administration could change its present regulations as an alternative to new law. Such change would consume much of the non-fat solids presently being purchased by Commodity Credit Corporation. Currently, the consumer has no meaningful guarantee that all milks are alike in terms of nutritional value. So long as milk protein values may vary by as much as 15-25 percent, the consumer deserves some regulatory assurance of adequate nutritional content.

✓ Adoption of a mandatory program which would generate funds to promote the use of dairy products of higher minimum standards. This action would be the result of a national referendum.

✓ A change in all milk buying plans (including Federal Milk Orders) to establish "End Product Pricing" for milk used in the manufacture of cheese (hard and soft), butter and powder. This would eliminate milks which cannot be used profitably in the marketing system under present pricing methods. It would reduce the energy needed to haul to market and dispose of unprofitable amounts of fluid carrier.

✓ An executive decree or congressional action which would adequately fund reasonable levels of price for milk. The Secretary of Agriculture has been instructed to develop new government regulations to help control overproduction. Studies of methods to do this are underway currently. It is unrealistic, however, to assume that such actions can be taken before 1983.

Ask the VMD

Synthea Maas
Tim Trayer
Edgar Sheaffer

A reader asks:
What is the best way to treat and control lice and mange in a swine operation?

Dr. Trayer comments:

The external parasites, lice and mange are old profit-eaters of the swine industry.

The best method of control is prevention, that is, buy animals that have a written statement which declares the them free and clear of these parasites and get a veterinarian to examine them.

If one of these parasites exists on the farm, then the only way to eradicate the problem in 1982 is to depopulate.

At the present time, once the parasites are a farm problem, the farmer can only control the parasites with regular planned spraying of insecticides for the life of the unit.

Lice infections usually can be seen on the hog, especially behind the ears or on the neck region. Of the two parasites, lice is most easily controlled using a varied list of products.

The mange mite is the individual that is hard to control. The identification is also difficult since it requires scraping the skin several times to isolate the microscopic mange mite.

This mite usually is associated with thinning of haircoat, rubbing of flank and ears and wrinkling of skin.

The only product that I recommend for either parasite is a 12.5 percent Lindane solution. My program is:

✓ Dip or spray any replacement animals three times, about seven to 10 days apart before adding to a clean herd.

✓ If your present spraying program is not controlling the infections, treat whole herd as recommended in previous step. Contact your veterinarian for restrictions.

UNIVERSITY PARK. — The importance of marketing received a lion's share of attention during the biennial Beef Cattle Conference held recently at Penn State.

H. Louis Moore, College of Agriculture economist, summed it up by saying that aggressive marketing is the greatest need facing the eastern beef cattle business. Competition is keen, he announced, from already efficient poultry marketing in particular.

He predicted that production of poultry broilers will expand 2.4 percent yearly until about the year 2000, with turkey production expanding 2.6 percent annually. Beef cattle production will go up at a slightly lower rate, at about 1.5 percent annually, he said.

The Penn State farm economist indicated the price margin between poultry and red meats will widen in the future, keeping poultry meats a best buy. He added that mechanical deboning is "old hat" today in the poultry business but is not used widely with beef and other red meats. Although mechanical deboning gives consumers lower cost meat, labeling restrictions have limited its use in the red meat industry.

About 88 percent of the beef sold to stores by the end of 1982 will be marketed as boxed beef, he commented. Boxed beef describes the shipment of loins, rounds, and other basic cuts in cardboard boxes. In the older delivery method, carcasses or sides of beef are shipped from packers to wholesale outlets and retail stores.

He called attention to several aspects of good management that could help to keep cattle producers in business during the next 10 years:

"Be as close as possible to your markets," he suggested. "Understand as much as you can about future markets. Make use of the price edge that eastern cattlemen and farmers have in the current fuel crisis. Make every effort to produce competitive meats. Use the most efficient size operation you can develop in producing cattle."

Moore claimed Pennsylvania cattle producers are in a better competitive position in cattle slaughter than are producers in neighboring states. Fifty-eight percent of all Northeast cattle slaughter is carried out in Pennsylvania, compared to just over one-third of 30 years ago.

Cattle producers were advised to be optimistic about the future of the beef cattle business by Michael O'Feild, vice president of the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore.

"Tell the public, in various ways, that food is a good buy," O'Feild stated. "You should get your story out to the consuming public. Make them understand that the price of food is cheap in the U.S. The average American spends less of his disposable income for food than any other human being in the world."

"Take the story of good food buys to the grocery store, your local civic clubs, and everywhere you go. Don't assume that everybody knows as much about agriculture as you do. Less than 3 percent of the U.S. population is involved in producing food."

"An even better way to convince consumers that foods are good buys is to show them," O'Feild declared. "Take the opportunity to invite a chamber of commerce, ladies' bridge club, or similar urban group out to your farm. Explain to them that production agriculture is not inexpensive or easy work. Make them appreciate the cheap food you're providing, and perhaps they won't be so reluctant to pay today's prices at the supermarket."

USDA assesses impact of transportation deregulation on agriculture

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Transportation specialists from the U.S. Department of Agriculture and land-grant universities will assess the impact that transportation deregulation will have on agriculture, according to Martin F. Fitzpatrick, director of USDA's Office of Transportation.

Some of the areas to be evaluated include rail rate and services discrimination among agricultural shippers and receivers; rail rate flexibility, including contracting, surcharges and adequate notice; and certain provisions of the motor carrier act. Fitzpatrick said the assessment is expected to be completed by early summer.

"This will be the first extensive, objective study of the impacts on agriculture of deregulation based on the Staggers Rail Act and the Motor Carrier Act of 1980," Fitzpatrick said. "In initiating this assessment, the Office of Transportation is fulfilling its role as the voice of rural transportation.

"The results of this assessment will be used by Congress, farm groups and administration policymakers in their deliberations on the appropriate adjustments needed in transportation policy that will benefit agricultural shippers, as well as presenting an objective and timely picture of the current state of agricultural transportation."

*Take time to know

COLLEGE PARK, MD. — Grain farmers should take a lesson from plumbers, declares L. Ronald Wade, an agricultural agent in Dorchester County for the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

Wade noted that plumbers — and most other home appliance repairmen — always calculate their charges in advance. Likewise, farmers should take time this winter to make detailed estimates of what their costs will be for producing an acre of each crop that could be grown this year on their land.

There are several important uses for such cost information, Wade told 1,600 farmers attending the annual Delmarva Corn and Soybean Technology Conference recently.

These uses include providing a basis for analyzing costs of production and setting a target price at which each crop will be marketed. Knowing your costs also can help to set a value on farmland and establish a line of credit with your lender.

Most of all, knowing production costs will help decide which crops and how many acres of each crop can be grown most profitably on your farm this year.

Worksheets for calculating per-acre costs of growing corn and soybeans by either no-till or conventional tillage methods were made available to persons attending the Salisbury educational meeting. They were tailored for Eastern Shore conditions, Wade pointed out.

Delmarva area farmers who want similar information on costs of production are advised to check with their local county Extension agricultural agent.

Wade advised potential users of his worksheets that he calculated machinery expenses on the basis of custom rates for the lower Eastern Shore.

Another method for determining machinery costs would be to calculate depreciation on equipment, plus interest, repair costs, taxes and insurance. Don't forget to add estimated fuel and oil expenses. The grand total should then be divided by the number of acres of cropland in order to arrive at a per-acre cost.

The Bio-Mittent™ Lighting Program

The Purina® Bio-Mittent Lighting Program is a unique lighting program for pullets and layers which saves energy and money without adversely affecting growth or egg production. It supplies pullets and layers with 15 minutes of light and 45 minutes of darkness each hour they receive light under a standard lighting program. This intermittent lighting program resulted from the discovery that chickens will grow and produce well when supplied 15 minutes of light per hour instead of 60 minutes.

Why Bio-Mittent Lighting Works

Bio-Mittent Lighting works because short periods of light repeated often are interpreted by the chicken as constant light. The chicken's hormonal reproductive control system does not recognize darkness unless she is without light over 3 hours. Thus, the dark periods are never perceived as such by the hen's system. For Bio-Mittent Lighting to provide maximum benefits, light tight housing is required. In non-light tight houses, electrical savings are realized but feed savings are slightly less. In open-sided housing, the advantage is only electrical savings. However, this still can be significant.

Bio-Mittent Lighting for Pullets

The function of a pullet lighting program is to control sexual maturity. As with a standard lighting program, on the Bio-Mittent Lighting program pullets receive constant light from 1-14 days of age. Afterwards, until 20 weeks of age, the Bio-Mittent Lighting Program is implemented. The intermittent pattern of 15 minutes light/45 minutes darkness per light hour is used during the time lights are normally used.

Bio-Mittent Lighting For Layers

When the hours of light are increased to stimulate onset of lay, constant light should be initiated and continued through 36 weeks of age. At which time, layers can gradually be phased onto Bio-Mittent Lighting. Intermittent lighting is continued throughout the laying cycle and can be used in the second cycle with comparable savings, if the flock is molted.

*Tests were conducted at Purina Research Farm with commercial White Leghorn strains of hens lighted 15 hours per 24 hour day.

Number of minutes of light/number of minutes of dark per light hour. Birds were grown under the same lighting regimen as pullets using 8 light hours per 24-hour day. At 20 weeks, lights were increased to constant light for 15 hours and at 24 weeks to constant light for 14 hours. At 28 to 36 weeks, 15 patterns of designated light sequences were used.
